TURKEY'S FUTURE IS STILL BIG PROBLEM

Hints of the Difficulties in the Way of Securing a State Government—Much of the Country is Concentrated in Constantinople.

London, Aug. 21.—While hopeful views still prevail regarding the new regime in Turkey, there is a growing disposition to believe that future developments will not be the same happy train as the early history of the revolution. This may be only the reaction from the optimism with which Europe generally has watched the progress of events so far, but

An interview has been given by a Turk, who, while fully in sympathy with the Young Turk ideals, long held and still holds an important administrative post under Abdul Hamid. It will be understood why his identity cannot be disclosed when it is pointed out in his opinion the constitutional movement will not have attained complete success until the present Sultan is succeeded on the throne by his younger brother.

Liberal Ruler Hoped For.—Long before the revolution was accomplished, said the officer, "the accession of Reshad, who would undoubtedly succeed Abdul, though he has been a prisoner in the palace thirty years, was looked forward to as the date of the liberation of Turkey. It was quite well known that Reshad would grant the constitution. He is, in fact, in sympathy with the ideals of the Young Turks. Some surprise has been expressed in Europe at the method in which the country generally receives its new liberties. The Turkish population really is not so backward and ignorant as it is supposed to be. It is quite capable of playing its part in a constitutional government. The danger lies in the Sultan. He seems to have accepted the situation graciously, so long as he occupies the throne so long will the cause of constitutional liberty remain a peril."

Letters which have begun to arrive in London from special correspondents who started Constantinople on receipt of news of the revolution, do not reflect these forebodings. Sketches of the Sultan's reception by the populace as he went to the Selamlik after the proclamation of the constitution show him standing up in his carriage to acknowledge the plaudits of his admiring and grateful subjects.

"Vast crowds," writes one correspondent, "assembled to watch the procession to Yildiz Kiosk, a dourly every soul wore the red and white rosette badge of Young Turk. The one idea pervading the conversation was the Sultan and give vent to feelings of thankfulness and loyalty."

Mr. King is also commissioner for the survey of the Atlantic boundary from the Portland canal to the Arctic. This work has been going on for a couple of years, and is of a most interesting character, as the southern part of the line runs over mountains and glaciers, making the work of a great deal of difficulty.

Mr. King came to the west as early as 1872, or two years before Col. Walker looked on the Calgary horizon. In 1872 he held a subordinate position on the international boundary survey from the Lake of the Woods to the Rockies; the work being completed in 1874.

"At that time," said Mr. King, "I roamed the plains in their thousands, making a very striking picture to one seeing them for the first time. Of course," said Mr. King, "there was very little of what is now the present city of Calgary. The first time I saw here was in 1880. There were a few mounted police, the old Hudson Bay fort, and the store of J. G. Bell & Co., but very little else. They were all located, if I remember right, east of the Elbow, the town on the other side not having been built until the advent of the railway."

"I remember," Mr. King went on, "the delightful time I used to have when we were camping on the banks of the Bow at that time. Sometimes, when I got tired of making observations, I would throw a line into the river. Many a trout a foot long did I pull out, making a very agreeable addition to our meals of bacon and beans."

FOREST FIRES RAGING ON VANCOUVER ISLAND

Thousands of Dollars Worth of Valuable Standing Timber Being Consumed—Fire Has Entered the Timber in Squamish Valley—Kaslo Vancouver's Water Supply Threatened.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 19.—The worst forest fire in the province in the history of Vancouver is now raging, consuming thousands of dollars worth of valuable standing timber, and leaving hundreds of acres with nothing but charred stumps and fallen timber.

Blaze which, if it spreads, may clear up a lot of standing timber in the watershed of the Capilano, the side source of Vancouver's water supply at the present time, is now eating its way through the Squamish valley. It is said to threaten the civic waterworks property. Today Chief Fire Warden Laurier will commence a tour of inspection to the Squamish valley. It is said to threaten the civic waterworks property. REFUGEE IN LONDON

Former Secretary to Sultan Fleed to England at First Outbreak.

London, Aug. 22.—The Daily Mail says this morning that it has been discovered that Izzet Pasha, former secretary of the sultan of Turkey, and father of Mehmed Ali Bey, former Turkish minister at Washington, is living as a refugee in London. The beginning of the recent reform movement Izzet Pasha fled from Constantinople and took refuge aboard the English steamer Maria, which, despite the protest of the Young Turk party to the British ambassador, sailed for the Mediterranean with the sultan's former secretary as a passenger.

A MIRACLE OF SURGERY

Brooklyn Surgeons Hope to Save Life of Youth Whose Neck Broken.

New York, Aug. 21.—The surgeons at Kings County hospital, in Brooklyn, hope to work a miracle of surgery in the case of Walter Canning, fifteen years old, Sheepshead Bay, who crushed part of his spine into the base of his skull by diving into shallow water. His case is almost identical with that of Peter Duran, of the military hospital at Quebec, whose neck was broken many years ago, but who is still alive.
