WOODS' FAIR

THE FIREMEN'S FUNERAL SPOUTING BOILING MUD!

Burial of the Brave Fellows Who Perished in Toronto.

Immense Procession—Eight Carriage Loads of Flowers Contributed.

Toronto, July 14.—The funeral of the five firemen—Walter O. Colford, W.
Harry Clarke, Adam Kerr, David See and Frederick G. Russell—who were killed at the disastrous conflagration of Thursday last, took place yesterday afternoon from St. James' Cathedral to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, and was the most largely attended in the city's history.

The dead firemen were all members of the Orange Order, and one of them, See, was a veteran of Paardeburg. Not only, therefore, were the Orangemen and militia specially interested, but the city council and other public bodies, the local members of Parliament and representative business men attended.
A combined band, representing the Musicians' Association, and consisting of over 200 pieces, played the "Dead March in Saffron" and "Nearer, My God to Thee," and the procession passed up Yonge street.

For two miles from the cathedral, where Rev. H. C. Dixon conducted the services, Yonge street was black with people, over 100,000 persons being packed into the street.

The sympathy of the community with the fire brigade was shown by the fact that eight carriage loads of flowers in the form of wreaths and mottos followed the five hearses containing the remains.

Hon. J. L. Paine, who was in the city today, attended with the mayor, thus showing his sympathy.

GASOLINE FOR WATER!

Ice man Doused a Woman Whose Clothes Were On Fire.

Waterbury, Conn., July 12.—Mrs.
Joseph Abramson was literally roasted alive yesterday by a fire which ruined her cottage. Her gasoline stove exploded, and she was struggling to save the building and some valuable jewelry, when her clothes caught fire.
William Leisard, an ice man, ran to her assistance. Picking up a tin pail which he thought contained water, he dashed the contents over her. It was gasoline, and, of course, it added greatly to the woman's suffering.

S. Mendelbaum and D. Bietman, of Brooklyn ran from the next house and dragged the woman from the burning cottage. They were painfully burned themselves.

Mrs. Abramson lived for a long time in New York. Her husband, a commercial traveler, is away from home.

CONNECTING WITH PERE MARQUETTE

The L. E. and D. R. R. Gives Michigan Road an Outlet.

SARNIA AND PORT HURON FERRY

Will Soon Be in Operation—Some Talk of Selling Out the Canadian Road.

Sarnia, July 14.—Workmen are putting the finishing touches to work on the sidings at Sarnia, which will give the Pere Marquette Railway a connecting link with the east by way of the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway.
The Detroit Free Press, officials of both railways have been in Sarnia the past week superintending the completion of the work and preparing the details incidental to the placing of the car ferry International in commission between Port Huron and Sarnia. It is expected that by the end of this week the docks and switches will be completed, and the ferrying of cars across the river will be commenced immediately after.

The Pere Marquette will have running powers over the Lake Erie and Huron branch of the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway, and at Rondeau, the car ferry International, which connects at Conneaut, Ohio, with the Essex and Lake Erie Railway, controlled by the Carnegie interests.

This means freight from the upper peninsula can be carried into the Eastern States over the Pere Marquette Railway as speedily as over any other lines now doing business between the west and east.

The distance between Sarnia and Conneaut, Ohio, is about 175 miles, half by land and half by water. The Shen-ango is capable of carrying from 25 to 28 loaded cars at a trip, and can make 12 round trips in a week. The she will carry an immense amount of freight across the lake in a season.
She is also supplied with cabins and staterooms for the accommodation of passengers, whose transportation reached large proportions during the past year. It is estimated that a train does and carries in a single day, at 10 o'clock in the morning will be in Conneaut 24 hours later and ready to be sent on to the sea coast. In all probability the business demands it.

The completion of the line has again revived the story that the Pere Marquette intends purchasing the way of the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway in order to secure a permanent outlet to the east.

At the last session of the Dominion Parliament the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway was granted an extension of time in which to commence and complete its line from St.
Thomas to Niagara Falls, and that this will be the ultimate terminus of the line none of the officials of the road deny.

With the facilities offered the Pere Marquette would be able to handle a vast amount of business now going to other lines, and the officials of the two roads have held several conferences, but the price demanded by the Walkers for their road is too high for the Pere Marquette people.

However, negotiations have not been entirely broken off, and the sale of the
may be announced at any time.

A WONDERFUL CASE

Picked Up a Newspaper and by So Doing Saved Her Husband's Life.

Ottawa, Ont., July 14.—George H.
Keown, of 309 Gilmour street, was dying from Bright's Disease.

He was in the very last stages, and the physicians had given him up. At last one evening his wife told him that his wife that he could not live until morning.

While watching at his bedside Mrs.
Keown happened to pick up a copy of the Ottawa Evening Citizen, and in containing an advertisement of a cure for Bright's Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

A messenger woke up the nearest druggist and procured a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, which Mr. Keown began to take at once.

He commenced to improve, and he was well and at work in two months.
He has not lost a day through illness since.

That was seven years ago.

the well-digger, is making all reasonable progress towards recovery from the result of the terrible experience of four days underground. He is still confined to his bed.

Ready for Them.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 14.—Sheriff Spencer summoned a large force of night patrolmen to the jail, and heavily in the expectation that a second attempt would be made to blow up the county jail and liberate many desperate criminals. Enough of the mine was stolen from a rock quarry to blow up half the town. A considerable part of the explosive was discovered to have been smuggled into the jail. Sheriff Spencer sent his family away. No stranger is permitted to approach within 50 feet of the building.

BULLER'S CAREER SADLY MARRED

His Character and That of Kitchener Contrasted.

THE BLUNDERER CONDEMNED

While the Man of Iron Nerve and Unbending Will Is Honored.

London, July 14.—Despite the great interest in the King's progress back to health, his future movements, the date of the coronation, the rowing carnival at Henley, and the magnificent coronation bazaar, the prominent figures in the public eye have been two generals who commanded the British forces in South Africa. But in what different lights they stand!

Kitchener, the triumphant organizer, a stern, unbending, silent man of iron deeds; Buller, domineering, bluff, half fellow well met, boastful, headstrong, a wilfully blind man, now shown to have been devoid of every qualification to command men or himself.

In view of London's enthusiasm over Lord Kitchener of Hartmann, the man of Egypt and South Africa, the British Empire's foremost soldier, it is interesting to recall the fact that the first uniform worn by him was the blue blouse and red trousers of the French army.

TUTORED BY DEFEAT.

To the lessons taught by the French defeat of 1870-71 can be traced the dominant characteristics of Lord Kit-chener's method. His belief in and insistence upon absolute discipline and perfect organization have given him success where others have failed.

Lord Kitchener was not quite 20 years old and was living in picturesque Dinan when the dark days spread over France. Filled by an impulse, which he said at the time he was unable to resist, the future first soldier of the British Empire enlisted as a private in the 6th Battalion of the Buffs, and attached to the second army of the Loire, under Gen. Chanzy. He did not take part in any actual fighting, but he saw the horrors of war, and after winter retreat in January, 1871, when after three days' fighting, the second army was badly defeated at Le Mans.

With the facilities offered the Pere
other lines, and the officials of the two
roads have held several conferences,
but the price demanded by the Walkers for their road is too high for the Pere Marquette people.

entirely broken off, and the sale of the
may be announced at any time.

THE OTHER PICTURE.

Quite different is the other picture.
The saddest and most pathetic picture seen in England today is undoubtedly Gen. Sir Redvers Buller. Fallen from his pedestal, the laurel wreath plucked from his brow, this hero of a hundred fights, who, when little more than a boy, won the Victoria Cross for his part in the Boer war, is now described in most unmistakable terms by both press and public.

One of the most pitiful phases of the story is that of a man with a blind stubbornness that is quite inexplicable, brought all the trouble upon himself.
When the discussion began about the defeat of the Boers, and any British general could have behaved in the way he did.

DAMAGING ADMISSIONS.

He admits himself that he wanted to abandon Ladysmith, leave the salutary garrison to its fate and retire to some place where he could take the defensive against the Boers.

The newspapers express regret, not so much for Gen. Buller's sake as for the prestige of the British army, that these admissions should have been allowed to see the light.

The Daily Telegraph asks it readers which of the two generals they would be—Buller, who sickened and despaired and who was unable to grasp the situation, or White, who, despite the alarming increase of entente fever, still refused the very idea of surrender.

A SAD COLLAPSE.

Yet, Buller was a general who was sent out to South Africa with a great furnish of trumpets, who said he would take the Boer capital, Pretoria, before Christmas, that was, in two months from landing; who condemned the tactics of his fellow-officers, who tried to throw the blame of Spion Kop on others when Lord Roberts said he ought to have been there himself.

He is one of the men who have been responsible for the past training of the British officer.

BUTCHERED BY BARTENDER

Jealous Husband Killed Three Persons and Fatally Shot the Fourth.

Portland, Ore., July 14.—A. L. Belding, a bartender, has shot and killed his wife, his mother-in-law and a male inmate of his house, and fatally wounded his father-in-law.

The deed was done by Belding, his wife, Mrs. McCroskey, his mother-in-law, and Frank Woodward, an inmate of the McCroskey house, fatally wounded: L. McCroskey, father-in-law.

Belding married the daughter of the McCroskeys eight years ago, but has not lived with his wife for some time. He was jealous of Woodward, whom he suspected of being on intimate terms with Mrs. Belding.

Going to the McCroskey home, Belding met Woodward in the hallway, drew a revolver in each hand, exclaiming, "You first," and Fred Woodward fell to the floor fatally wounded.

Mrs. Belding rushed upon her husband and was shot down by the infuriated man. Then the parents of Mrs. Belding came to the hallway, and were both shot by Belding. After his bloody work was finished, he walked out of the house and gave himself up, saying: "These people have been misusing me for years, and I am sorry that I did not kill them all. They are bad lot."
