As'jt is now too late to lay the matter of increasing the water supply before the electorate in January next, it is likely that the people will be asked to vote on the question later on-probably in the spring. There are those who still favor the river water proposal for fire-fighting purposes, and the report of Engineer Jennigs has not by any means cleared Jennigs has not by any means cleared up the situation. About the most important statement in the report is that the present supply of spring water can be doubled, but as the city has no use for such a vast quantity of water just yet, it is more than likely the repulse for such a vast quantity of water just yet, it is more than likely the people will be satisfied if another million gallons of water be added daily to the present supply.

The Free Press once in a while gets off a joke, but doesn't know it. In a writeup of Ald. Wyatt, the F. P. says he "buked large" during this year and last in the council. In view of the fact that the alderman has been chairman of the board of works this year and in 1903, and had an overdraft each year, it would appear to the average elector that there appear to the average elector that there is such a thing as 'bulking' too large. Last year the board of works had an overdraft of $5.168. This year the board's overdraft is fully $3,000. Yes, indeed! Ald. Wyatt did "bulk large,"—in fact, he overbulked

Fail to Secure the Bail That Is Necessary.

William Boyd and Hugh Stevenson, alleged confidence men, will in all probability have to remain in jail for another week at least. In the police court this morning an effort was made to secure bail, but the magistrate declined to alter the order made last week, without the consent of the crown attorney. The latter's agreement to the proposal was not forthcoming, and Mr. Ed Meredith, K. C., had to accept he inevitable. The case was adjourned further for week because of Mr. McKillop's inability to be present. Mr. Meredith was agreeable to this, as he could not arrange to have Boyd's counsel from Chatham present here today. Mr. Meredith argued that the bail was altogether too high, and that he could not see the force of the magistrate's argument in placing such an order.
