The free library board met yesterday night had flooded the front part of their The free library board met yesterday afternoon to consider the appointment of Mrs. Perkins for one year as cataloguing clerk at a salary of $450 per annum. Mr. Knowlton objected that she should be engaged for a year but only for such time as she was required. He also urged that the position should be thrown open to competition among other applicants. Mr. Bain strongly recommended her as she could read both French and German. He also showed samples of her work which were very neat. Mr. Knowlton believed that the heart of the library board was too susceptible to the ladies. He insisted that the heart of the library board was too susceptible to the ladies. He insisted that

Street Parade Committee. The bi-centennial street parade commit tee met last evening, Mr. Lyman of York in the chair. Ex-Ald. McMurrich stated that as usual in cases of this kind the accident for which compensation was claimed had happened through the ice not being cleared from property exempt from taxation. Considerable opposition to the granting of the amount considered necessary was manifested, but eventually it was a decided to recommend the payment of $50 in full of all claims on the city.

The question of the annexation of Riverside was brought before the committee, and Mr Henry O'Brien was heard on behalf of the residents who had opposed the annexation. Mr. O'Brien asked that the greater number of the secret and benevolent societies, trades unions and military bodies had notified them that they would take part in the procession. Their duty then was to arrange a starting point, how the divisions will follow each other without any hitch, how many bands will be required, where the parade will end, etc. They had five parades, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, to look after. The military parade would take place on Wednesday with which they would have nothing to do as the military men would look after that. He was of the opinion that a separate committee should be struck to arrange for the bank cashier with a map of the Canadian frontier in his pocket. and Mr Henry O'Brien was heard on behalf of the residents who had opposed the annexation. Mr. O'Brien asked that the expenses to which they had been put in endeavoring to secure separate incorporation be paid by Toronto.
