One of The World's Young Men made an afternoon trip on the new route of the Street Railway Company. At King and Yonge-streets he boarded an already crowded car labelled "Sherbourne, Bloor, Spadina, King." The conductor said the crowded state of the car was owing to its being the opening day of the belt-line. Every car had been well filled. It is likely to be a very usual mon.hly meeting at the office of the society on Thiraday, 24th inst., at 4 p.m.

An inquest was held by Coroner Pickering last evening, on the body of an unidentified man whose body was fished from the Don recently. Found drowned was the verdict returned.

W. Mooney was arrested yesterday afternoon as a drunk, but on examination by Dr. Aikins it was ascertained that the poor fellow was sufference in the city.

The instructions to the conductors were more liberal than at first foreshadowed. Passengers were taken on at any part of the extended route and were readily transferred to any passing cars on various routes.

The Belt Line is a pleasant ride. En passant one sees the shops and crowded side walks of King-street; the fine residences in Sherbourne-street, with its trimly-kept gardens and tree-bordered walks; the fashionable quarters of Bloor-street, with its palatial homes; the quiet and eminently respectable ing business houses of Toronto's Broadway.

This list shows how convenient the route will be for access by day or night to the places indicated, apart from the host of places of business and thousands of contiguous residences. Yesterday working men crowded the cars morning and night, during the afternoon ladies coming down town to do shopping were the principal occupants. Many were the transfers to the various lines touched in

The Baron and His Trans The case of Earnest Albert Macdonal against the Toronto Street Railway Company came up in the Police Court yesterday and was adjourned until the 22nd at the request of the company's counsel. Mr. Mac-donald wanted a transfer from a King-street car to one which would leave him at the car to one which would leave him at truing Station. There being no car passin he had to get off. When he got on the other car he refused to pay fare, and the drive William McBrien, had him ejected. Madonald now charges McBrien with assault.

Want More Money. The Street Railway Company turned of about 50 men yesterday whom they had kept about the stables during the week of the fair. These men consider they have been unfairly dealt with. They were kept about the stables and told not to leave as they might be wanted any minute. Nevertheless they claim they have only bee paid for the actual time they were driving on the cars. This they think an injustice, and they intend testing the legality. The men will meet at the stables on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock to discuss what steps should be taken.

Another Suggestion, Editor World: In regard to street railway transfers how would this idea work: Use both kinds of tickets now in use and have them in use all day, the eight for 25 cents to be only available for a continuous trip on one line and the six for 25 cents to be used where a transfer is required, the "conductor to be provided with transfer checks some what similar to the one lately printed in The World.
