1806, Quebec; 1807, Niagara,—what a move! and on horseback, we suppose. Then goes to the States; once more in 1812 appointed to Montreal, but did not go in consequence of the war. Dr. Bangs has been residing for many years in the city of New York.

N. U. Tompkins. Travelled this year on the Ottawa circuit; returned home at its close and located, 1809.

1803.—Samuel Merwin, Montreal, Eljah Chichester, and Laban Clark, missionaries to St. John's and Sorele. This latter mission appears not to have been successful, as no members were returned at the ensuing Conference, and the missionaries were withdrawn. Mr. Clark afterwards travelled the Fletcher circuit, embracing part of Vermont and a part of it in Lower Canada. He describes it as being like a figure 8, containing two week's appointments in each half or circle; the whole distance around was 400 miles; the Canada part embraced from the township of Sutton to Missisquoi Bay. After travelling nine months, he says, "I received three dollars, and that to repair my boots." The venerable missionary lived to serve the Church more than half a century as an itinerant.

Reuben Harris, Niagara and Long Point; 1804, Bay of Quinte, then returned to Vermont; after many years service in New England and New York, superannuated, 1839. Luther Bishop, Oswegotchie; 1804, Niagara and Long Point; 1806, Smiths Creek; 1807, Bay of Quinte; continued several subsequent years in the connexion in the United States. We are informed, however, that he was one of those in later years who formed the secession known as "Protestant Methodists."

1804.—Markin Ruter, was stationed this year in Montreal, at the early age of nineteen, and yet in the third year of his ministry. Many years after Book Steward at Cincinnati, then President of Augusta College, Kentucky, which office he resigned to undertake a mission to Texas, after its annexation to the United States. He was honoured with the titles of A. M. and D. D. Founded a Literary Institution in Texas, and died there May 16th., 1838, in great peace, and unshaken confidence in God.
