White Discharge on Paranitriline Red.—According to the Bulletin of the Mulhouse Society, bisulphite compounds of ketones and aldehydes produce effects realizable in no other way, and they are therefore useful in the production of white or colored discharges on azo grounds. The use of zinc dust with paranitriline red has certain drawbacks, such as inapplicability to color discharges, the long steaming required, and the liability of the dust to choke the grooves in the rollers. The ketone compounds remove all these troubles. The best printing color consists of 44 per cent. of the ketone compound, made from ordinary acetone, and in powder 39 per cent. tragacanth thickening (6 per cent.), and 17 per cent. of zinc dust. After steaming for two or three minutes in wet steam, wash, sour with  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. hydrochloric acid, and thoroughly rinse. No reduction takes place before steaming, so that there is no loss by atmospheric oxidation.
