TYPICAL BIGOTS.

Biget No. 1.

A group of bright little children seated on the porch of a New England summer hotel intently studying a book, attracted the attention of one of the guests. He looked and saw that they were gazing at a picture in the book. The picture represented four or five monks, some dressed like Dominicans, others like Franciscans, engaged in torturing with piecers and reasting alive a beautiful woman, half-naked.
"What is that picture?" asked the guest.

"lo is a Romish priest ourning a Protest not!" replied the eldest of the children, a flaxen baired boy.

"Are there more pictures like that in the book?" said the guest.

"Oh, yes!" replied the boy; "it's full of them."

them.

And, sure enough, it was full of illustrations, all calculated to inspire the young with hatred of the Catholic Caurch or cover it with ridiof the Cathello Clurch or cover it with rich cule. The pictured matter was as full of talse-hoods as Redpath's history. Yet it was written in a plain, simple style in good English adapted to the minds of children. It was published by a respectable publishing nouse, which yearly sends out thousands of copies of books of a aimilar character to poison the minds of the young against the faith and practice of Catholics. There is hardly one of our readers who has not come across some of these bigoted publications. They produce the child a bigot. The little mind is filled with lies about Popes, hishops, priests and nuns, and the doctrines of the Church are ridiculed and travestied. Even writers as distinguished as Charles Dickens did not hesitate to stoop to this vile task of trying not nemere to scoop to this vite task of trying to inflame the passions of the young against "Popery." His Child's History of England is a proof. One of the most prominent American writers who have devoted themselves to this nefarious purpose is Goodrich, or 'Peter Par-ley," whose histories, lacking in truth as the inscription on tombstones, are in the hands of all American children. These books fill the country annually with a crop of young bigots, are able to get over their early prejudices in

Is there a remedy for this evil? Yes; it is to produce a number of elementary histories, well illustrated to make them interesting, written by competent Catholics for the benefit of the young. One of the best things the late Father Hecker ever did was to publish the pamphlet, "Is it honest?" and scatter it broadcast over the land. It was an appeal to the sense of fair play in every honest man's breast against the common calumnies against the Catholic Church. If it did not always make converts, it Certainly killed prejudice in many minds Our Cetholic colleges have clever professors of English lilerature and history. Will not some of lish lilerature and history. Will not some of them write truthful histories for the young, to counteract the fairy tales, but called histories, of "Parley" and Redpath? The late John Hassard and John McCarthy did something in this line. But much yet remains to be done by our Catholic literaseurs and our Catholic pub-lishers to stem the tide of juvenile bigotry set in motion by attractive but false elementary

Bigot No. 2.

Here is a gentleman from Boston, polite, educated, cultured. His wife goes to the Catholic church to hear the music. He himself, possessed of a sweet tenor, being acquainted with some Catholic musicians, sometimes sings in a Catholic choir, or at a concert for the benefit of a Catholic charity. He is the most amiable of men. He is a merchant, keeps Catholic help and clerks, and chides them if they do not go to their own church every Sunday. He will even invite the priest to dinner sometimes and doff invite one priest to dinner sometimes and doff his hat to him in the street. In fact, he thinks Father A. the "nicest fellow" he knows, and so, when both happen to meet at the seashore in summer, he will invite Father A. to a sail,

After supper the condemned men were taken or to his house for a game of chess. But our Boston friend is like some of those lunatics one meets at Bediam or Blackwell's Island, sane in everything but one. His crazy point comes out after the first game of chess, especially if he Would I not preciseally be saying that you were a har? Would I he a gentleman to refuse to believe your word? Now, you know me well. You know that se a Casholic prices I know the theology of the Catholic Church, and especially the teaching of the Jecuits. I have read their honer that they condemn the proposition that the end justifies the means. Will you persist in refusing to believe me when I certainly ought to know the truth in the matter better than you? I know that the Jecuits are not hostile to American institutions. "Oh, well," replies the Bostonian, "we'll not discuss the question further. Have another game of chees!"

But his tone and manner showed that he still believed that the Jesuits held the condemned doctrine and were foce of American liberty, and that Father A was a liar. Nothing could change his opinion.

For this kind of bigotry there is no moral remedy. A surgical operation similar to the one required, they say, to get a joke into a Scotchman's head, might get the truth about the Jesuits in the skull of our Boston friend.

Biget Ne. 3.

He was a liar, impecunious and briefless. By good luck and good looks a wealthy woman fell in love with him and made him disposer of her mighty dollars. He was only half-educated in everything except the art of making and keep-ing money. He became ambitious. His ambi-tic became greater than his talents or deserts, and so be foolishly bought a newspaper in order to have an "organ" so grind out his views and music for his processional march from the bar to the stateman's chair.

So he became an editor. Sometimes he writes editorials, the rhetoric of which seems to have been studied on the back of a hippogriff. He scatters foreign words over his editorial page, till he makes it look like a bill of fare in a fash-ionable resturant. In this he imitates the other fashionable Fifth avenue writers, like the author of "Valentine," and the hysterical Mrs. River Chandler. "Will religion pay "Will at help to further my political aspirations!" There's the nut for our lawyer-editor to crack. It will. So at once he publishes sermons of the leading Protestant clergymen, texts of Scripture which he does not understand nightness of which he does not understand, pictures of the Methodist Bishops, and distribes upon Popery from Dr. John Hall, or any other bigot who will write them. His newspaper became as spotted as a rabid coach dog or a leper with equips and eneers against Catholics. Before the Presidential election his prejudices were held in aboyance less Catholic Republicans should go back to the Democrate. But, now that the election is over, this treacherous shepherd gives his Catholic sheep up to the tender mercies of the Protestant welves. He poses as the Pharisaic custodian of the Sunday—because it would not pay to run his cabs on that day. He out-Calvins Calvin, yet he hothols with Atheists and Socialists. He dines with Vanderbilt and Depew, and speechifies with Herr Most and the Social ists. He has always a kind word for them, but ever a blow for the Catholic. If the Catholic protests, he pigeon-holes the protest for days and then publishes it with a forged date, permits the carrion crow driven out of the Church to caw their replies in his columns, and then closes them against the Catholic who feels aggrieved. And this lawyer-editor poses as a sypical New Yorker and a Simon-pure American. Is he a bigot? It is hard to say whether he is a bigot, a hypocrite, or an idiot, or all three together. Considering his mental calibre, he is certainly the last in his office of pander to Methodist and Presbyterian prejudice, and in

But is there a remedy for his bigotry? Yes, a supernatural one is prayer. The only natural one we know of is a cowhide or the toe of a boot, and every honess man feels like ap

WOMEN SLAYERS HANGED.

A Quartet of Murderers Cibbeted in the New Eternity-The Bravest Dies the Hardest Death.

NEW YORK, August 23.—Four murderers, Packenham, Nolan, Lewis and Carolin, were hanged in the Tombs this morning. Packenham and Nolan were hanged on the Franklin street side of the Tombs at five minutes to seven, and Lewis and Carolin were strangled on the Leon-ard street side eight minutes later. The scenes during the night were pretty much the same as always mark the last nights of condemned murders on earth. At 7 o'clock last evening Father Prendergast and Father Gelinas arrived to assume the charge of the men until death should relieve them. Pat Nolan's sister and two women cousius, who have called on him several traes since he was sentenced, were with him yesterday. The women broke down and sobbed hysterically, while Nolan looked at them curiously and puffed a little faster on his cigar, which he chewed nervously. "You don't do any good by crying," he said at last, "for that won't help things any."

won't help things any."

Later, when a message was brought to gray-haired Packenham, telling him that his children were coming to see him, he stepped briskly up to the wire netting of the cage. His son and daughter entered the corridor. He cut their visit very short, telling them not to grieve for him and to take warning by his gloomy fate. Their sobs echoed along the walls of the corridor as they withdrew. In the evening, a little before 10 o'clock, young Robert Packenham, who had come from his farm work to see his father on the vigil of his death, returned to the prison, and a still more affecting interview than that of to the yard for a last taste of air and recreation.

They ranged themselves along the wall of the prison and smoked, laughed and talked as if they had no connection with the dreadful ordeal of the coming day. By midnight the men were in bed and asleep. At half past 4 the men were busy arranging their last toilet. Nolan payed particular attention to the arrangement of his necktie, while Lewis spent most of his time in blacking his in voice devoid of tremor. At five o'clock the march to the chapel was commenced, Father "No, indeed, I am not," replies one prices.

THE MARCH TO DEATH.

When the condemned men emerged from the iail, Fasher Pendergast supported Packenham and Father Gelinas walked alongside Nolan. The procession brought up with Father Van Rensealer. The arms of the condemned men were pinioned, and over the shoulder of each was the black cap, with its long streaming rib-bon flapping in the wind. Packenham's face was of ghastly pallor, but his step was firm. He looked unfinchingly into the faces around him.

his left ear, seemed to chair him, for he moved his head usessily once or twice in his brief walk to death. Notan took his place under the rope hanging nearest the Franklin street wall. Peakenham was four feet away from his companion and next to the prison.

Both men turned and grasped the priests by the hands, wringing them farvently. The traps were sprume and the hodies of the men were jerked in the air. With the rebound came the sound of the falling weight plunging to the ground. For an inviant there was not a movement and them a tremor passed through the firame or Notan. His legs were drawn up alightly, and his cheet heaved faintly. Packunham remained motionless for fully 30 seconds and then came a violent trembling from head to foot. His body swayed from the hips downward for a half minute and became still. At the expiration of four minutes there was a mighty throe, almost together, in the suspended murderers. Packenham's pulse had gone up to 96 and then sank rapidly to 50 bests a minute. Notan's pulse at the fourth minute was at 70, but it became weaker and weaker, and at the expiration of five minutes was no longer perceptible. There was a slight muscular contraction then in Nolan. As his body awang round a tiny stream of blood could he seen a rickling down his neck. At 10 minutes past 7 o'clock both men were pronounced dead, but were permutted to hang 15 minutes lenger.

While this scene was being enacted prepara-tions were being made for what proved to be the most shocking speciacle that has ever taken place within the walls of the Tombe. Two place wishin the walls of the Tombs. Two minutes after seven Carolin and Lewis, with the price's, cams through the door. Lewis walked unsteadily the first dozen paces, but quickly recovered himself. Carolin had the butt of a cigar between I his lips, and was puffing vigorously, blowing greet clouds of smoke into the pricets as he turned around and felt the rope touch his shoulders. Spitting the cigar stump from his mouth, he broke out into blasphemy that horrified the spectators. Atkinson had just pinioned his legs when he spoke. Looking sullenly at the three pricets he suddenly exclaimed: "I die an unocent man G—d d——n it, I didn's do this thing." Lowis, who had then been pinioned, balf turned his head and addressing his companion, said:

"What's the matter with you any way? Why don't you die like a man?"

don't you die like a man?"
"I will die like a man," shrieked Carolie, his face turning perfectly livid. "I will die like a

A SHOCKING SPECTACLE.

The words were scarcely out of his mouth before Atkinson had clapped the black cap over the murderer's face. The assistant hangman covered Lewis' face at the same moment. Atkinson gave three deliberate raps, with a perc-peible interval between them. The sound of a blow came from within the box, and the weight fell. Instead of bounding up, as Packenhau.
and Nolan had done, the miserable wretches went into the air with so little force that there went into the air with so little force that there was accreely any rebound at all. Lewis immediately began to struggle in the most suckening manner. He shrew his legs about so violently as to kick off his slippers. Then he began to gurgle and choke. The rasping, wheezing sound came from under the black cap for fully ten seconds. His body turned and swayed and the contortions were so painful that half a dozen men turned away their heads. The poor or at ture was slowly strangled. Carolin's body was violently contorted also, but he uttered no sound. The weight fell at 7.03 o'clock, and at 7.10 both men were dead. The four bodies sound. The weight fell at 7.03 o'clock, and at 7.10 both men were dead. The four bodies hung half an hour and were then cut down and put in plain coffins. All the murderers were atrangled, but the deaths of Packenham and Nolan were comparatively painless; that of Lewis must have been agonizing.

Patrick Packenham killed his wife on March 13, 1888, because she would not give him money to buy liquer. Jas. Nolan shot his mistress, Emma Albert, on November 22, 1888, because she had tired of his abuse and his dependence and had determined to get rid of him. Ferdi-nand Carolin butchered the woman with whom he lived on March 15, 1888, with a hatchet.
John Lewis, the negro, shot Alice Jackson, a mulatto girl, on July 17, 1888. The motive with him was almost identical with that of Nolan. Alice Jackson had been his mistress and he had followed and persecuted her.

There are fitten other murderers in the Tombs awaiting trial. Most of them are liable to be executed by electricity, if the new law is held to be constitutional.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY YEARS.

The Extraordinary Age Reached by a Cali-fornia Indian.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 28.-For several years there has been domiciled at the Monterey County hospital an Indian known by the name County nospital an Indian known by the name of "Old Gabriel." As to the exact day, month or year of his birth proof is absent, but of the face that he has passed the wonderful age of 150 years there is a quantity of proof. Gatriel was born in Tulare county, this state. Father Junipero Serra arrived in Monterey in 1770, and it is well authenticated that at that time Gabriel was a grandfather. The youngest age at which Indians married was fifteen years. If Gabriel followed the custom and married at that age he would necessarily have been at least thirty-two or thirty-three years old to have been a grand-father at the time of Father Junipero landing

Father Junipero taught Gabriel the art of cutting and laying stone, and at the time of the building of the first chapel on the site of the present Carmelite mission below Monterey, in the years 1771 and 1772, Gabriel was present the years 1111 and 1112, Gapriel was present and assisted in the construction of the walls. He became so very expert at his trade that he managed and assisted in the construction of Carmela Soledad and San Antonio missions in Carmeis Soledad and San Antonio missions in 1791. He was then married to his second wife. Gabriel still proudly speaks of the skill he acquired as a stonecutter. Father Sorreutni, parish priest, and Bishop Amat reached Mont erey some time in the year 1845. The former says that old Gabriel was then living with his sixth wife, and the was by many years the senior of all the other old inhabitants. He was then known by the same name and was said to be at that time over one hundred and ten years of

A widely known old lady by the name of Castro, who died five years ago, at the age of ninety five years, in testifying to old Gabriel's age, said that when a child she saw old Gabriel, and at that time he had children several years older than she then was. Gabriel remained at Old Capitol until a few years ago when he re moved to Salinas Valley, where he has been sojourning ever since. Up to within two or three years he was a very familiar figure on the streets of Salinas city, but he is now rarely seen, as his trips from the hospital to the town are becoming less frequent. He has always been fond of striking colors, and for years were a coat made of cleth representing all the colors of the rainbow.

OVER THE CLIFF TO DEATH.

Another Terribly Faial "Accident" on Southern Railroad

PETROLEUM, W. Va., August 23.—A terrible explosion occurred about 11 o'clock this morning between Petroleum and Silver Run tunnel, in which three men were killed and over twenty wounded. The accommodation train coming west crashed into a special train occupied by railroad magnates on a four of inspection. The cause of the wreck is said to have been conflicting telegrams. The one received by the conductor and engineer of the accommodation ordered them to pass the special at Petroleum,

There are in the Northwest over 50 cities where you could have purchased a few years ago for $25 a building lot that to-day will sell for upwards of $10,000. We think there are just as good opportunities present themselves at the present time. We own and control over 1000 lots in the most promising city of one of the new States. It will probably be the State capital. For 80 days only we will sell these lots for $25 each payable in monthly instalments of $1.00 per month for twenty-five months. Send us your name and address at once for descriptive circulars, plats, etc. This may be the chance of a life time to you. Address, THE NORTHWEST INSTALMENT CO.

PROVISIONS.

BUTTER.—Receipts during the week were 3,606 pkgs, against 3,747 pkgs for the week previous. The market remains very quiet, without any appreciable change in prices. A local trade has transpired in small lots at a cent or so per pound over our quotations which are for round lots. In Creamery butter a lot of 100 tubs of American all the way from Texas is being offered here at 16c in bond, the quality of which is highly spoken of by those who have bored it. Although not equal to Canadian creamery, its body being less waxy, it is said to be shead of Eastern Townships. Western butter is in fair Eastern Townships. Western butter is in fair supply but is not selling very freely as American supply but is not seiling very treely as American dairy butter from Chicago and Boston is taking its place for the Newfoundland and English trade. Still we hear of several hundred pkgs changing hands since our last report at 15½c to 16c. Some holders west of Toronto are firm in their views as they refuse to sell choice late made Wastern at less than 16c f.o.b. EARLY CLOSING!

Our stores will close at HALF-PAST FIVE o'clock EVERY EVENING until the last day of August, except on Saturdays, when we close at ONE o'clock. This object is to allow enployes to get home before six, which will be a great boon this hot month, especially to those who have families, and will be little or, perhaps, no loss to the firm.
