

Supply—Health and Welfare

I feel that the federal government has been very remiss in this field. I believe that there is a great responsibility which they have failed to discharge. Before I conclude my remarks tomorrow I will show the government that it is incumbent upon them to assume a larger responsibility in this field.

May I call it 10.30 o'clock sir?

Mr. Monteith: I was just wondering if it might be agreeable to the house if the hon. member were allowed to continue his remarks this evening? I think we would be pleased to continue with the estimates of this department and try to conclude them this evening if that is agreeable to other members.

Mr. Knowles: We do not mind sitting for a little while, certainly to hear the rest of the hon. member's speech. However, there are some other members who wish to speak on this first item.

Progress reported.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Mr. Churchill: I should like to ask the house leader about the business for tomorrow.

Mr. Favreau: Tomorrow we intend to complete the discussion of the estimates of the Department of National Health and Welfare after which we will take up the estimates of the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, to be followed by those of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration.

At 10.33 p.m. the house adjourned, without question put, pursuant to special order.
