ed intervention. War in South Africa with one of the states would be one of the direct calamities possible. The speaker pleaded for further friendly and prudent action through Dutch sympathizers at the Cape. He saw no reason why this should not achieve conspicuous success, as a similar course had done in Canada in time past.

Mr. Chamberlain's Reply.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Chamberlain, opened his speech in reply by declaring that Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman's language was calculated to embarrass the action of the Government. The grievance of the Utilanders, Mr. Chamberlain said, were admitted on all hands to be serious, but the most serious part was that the outrageous treatment to which they were subjected was part of the settled policy pursued by the Boers.

Dangerous to Imperial Interests,

Dangerous to Imperial Interests.

The situation was dangerous to Imperial interests. As regards the racial feud coming out of war, race antagonism already existed and was poisoning the community. The danger of dissatisfaction in Cape Colony and the Orange Free State was entirely due to the action of the Transval. It was not a question of a five or seven years franches, but of the power and authority of the Empire and of the position of Great Strain in South Africa.

Colonies Are Loyal

Referring to Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman's enlogy of Hon. W. P. Schreiner, forman's enlogy of Hon. W. P. Schreiner, formerly Prime Minister of Cape Colony, and J. Hofmyer, the Afrikander leader, Mr. Chamberlain said both of them had declared that the earlier and iliusory proposals of President Kruger were entirely adequate and satisfactory. When they were quoted as impartial judges whose assistance the Covernment ought to invite, the House Kruger were entirely adequate as impartial judges whose assistance the Lyons was making his appearance that he was struck by the brick. Lyons says, however, that he does not know who threw the missile. The injured man will be treated by eye specialists to-

The Latest Proposals.

In dealing with the latest proposals, Mr. Chamberlain said: "President Kruger had invited friendly advice, and the Government has thought itself justified in appealing to him that a joint enquiry should be held. These proposals were with the view of determining what representation will be immediately given aliens, which can be the only basis of satisfactory settlement. If the enquiry is accepted experts will be appointed and the Government hopes that then it will be possible to reach an agreement. In any case the Government will press for necessary alterations in order to secure the objects in view.

Must See It Through Now.

"We have undertaken the cause of the Ultianders and are bound to see it through. We shall not rest until a conclusion satisfactory to us has been reached. I anticipate that the efforts will be successful, but we will not tie our hands in regard to measures that may be necessary to fulfil anticipations."

The Vote Adopted. The House adopted the Colonial Office vote without a division, after a protracted sebate upon the South African policy or the Government.

The Standard echoes the remarks of The Times.

The Daily News remarks upon the large measure of agreement which the debate revealed between the Liberal and Consreative parties, and says: "When this fact is recognized, it ought to have a most salutory effect in South Africa and contribute powerfully to a peaceful settlement."

Colonies Are Loyal.

Referring to offers of colonial help, Mr. Chamberlain said that if the matter were happily arranged it would always be a satisfaction to think that in times of triat the country might count upon the loyalty of the colonies. Mr. Chamberlain justified he right of intervention, firstly, because the was the right of every civilized power to protect its own subjects; secondly, because freat Britain had the right of intervention under the convention, as the suzerain power, and thirdly, because the convention had been broken in letter and in spirit.

"Their masters cherish the forlorn hope that the machine, with a spending power of sixty million dollars to drive it, may save them.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Ontario flunkeys can have no such hope. It would be the height of impudence for them, with the black record of the present session behind them, to ever again present themselves before the electors whose confidence they have so grossly betrayed.
