BALFOUR'S MESSAGE
CHEERED IN SENATEThree Great Democracies,
Britain, France and U. S.,
Must Triumph.

HUNS' FATAL BLUNDER

Germany Unable to Comprehend Anglo-Saxon Devotion to Ideal.

Washington, May 8.—Foreign Secretary Balfour declared in an epochal address in the senate chamber today that the war conferences have had a great deal to do with the great democracies, destined to crush the greatest world menace of all time and to save civilization and liberty. Two severe trials still must be faced, he said, free peoples now have been aroused and fired with a determination insuring the ultimate triumph of free institutions.

"This war is to be settled by hard fighting," said the British statesman, "and when it comes to hard fighting neither America nor Britain nor France need fear measuring themselves at any moment against those who have risen up against all that we hold dear for the future."

Everyone Must Help.
 "It requires every man and woman on this side of the Atlantic, as on the other side, to throw their efforts into the scale of right, but that effort unquestionably will be made, I speak with confidence about the issue of this struggle—a confidence which is redoubled since you have thrown in your lot."

The submarine campaign presents a grave situation just now, Mr. Balfour said, "more than one difficulty of like magnitude has been overcome. The war could not be won, he predicted, by killing helpless women and children, or by unwarranted attacks upon neutrals."

Huns' Great Blunder.
 Failure to comprehend that the two great English-speaking peoples would and could fight for an ideal characterized as the great blunder which would cost Germany the war.

"Because we were undivided," he continued, "they jumped rashly to the conclusion that we were afraid to fight, and secondly, that if we fought we should be negotiating possibly, to find out their mistake."

The foreign secretary expressed full appreciation of the warm reception given the war missions by the U. S. Government and people, saying this attitude had made the conferences historic.

Enthusiastic Reception.
 In his visit to the senate chamber, Mr. Balfour was accompanied by Lt. General Bridges and Admiral De Chazelles, the British mission, and they were given a reception rivaling in enthusiasm that accorded them Saturday in the house. Vice-President Marshall presented the foreign who have risen up against all that we hold dear for the future.

secretary as "the foremost champion of liberty without which neither America nor France would be or have a hope of being."

Applause both from the senate floor and from the galleries greeted the pointed declarations punctuating Mr. Balfour's speech, and at the end the senators rose to their feet and cheered.
