supreme Innocance of Head and Front of Local Organization

Simcoe, Sept. 28.—(Special.)—The town was again crowded to day with election witnesses who were not aware that the trial of the petition against A. M. Little was concluded on Tuesday night and his seat vacated. About 100 of these got off the eastbound train this morning, and a large number drove in from near-by towns. They had been subpoenaed by the Conservatives to give evidence on the charges that were to have been investigated to-day. After receiving their day's allowance they rereceiving their day's allowance they returned home. The costs for these witnesses will rest upon the petitioner un- Appenl of G.T.R. in Grimsby Acciless the judges concede the point raised by Mr. Blackstock on Tuesday. The calling of so many witnesses bears out the statement of the Conservative counsel that they were fully prepared to enter upon all branches of the case.

Rather a surprise.

The quick disposal of the petition forms the subject of considerable talk. It was well-known that the Liberals were from the first willing to lay down their hands anl allow the voiding of the seat, but the Conservatives would not compromise or deal with them in any way, so that many looked forward to a protracted session of the trial court. The uncovering of so much bribery in so short a time was rather a surprise to those who have been looking on with calm disinterestedness.

those who have been looking on with calm disinterestedness.

The question: "Where did the money come from?" it is regretted, has not been answered to the satisfaction of anybody. The childlike innocence of those who were known to be actually cnd actively engaged in prosecuting the campaign on behalf of Mr. Little causes amazement. Mr. Little himself was not able in his examination for discovery to throw very much light on what went on in Norfolk in his behalf. Neither did the head and front of the Liberal organization in the county, Hal B. Donly, appear to know very much about the campaign. If A. M. Little and H. B. Donly were unaware of the presence of election crooks in the riding and of the course of the corruption fund, which, as Chancellor Boyd remarked, was disbursed with lavish hand, who then does know these things? Does anyone imagine that Charles Baker and his mysterious friend were throwing money around about Christmas time just to to colonies and the motherland is sure to prove most satisfactory in bringing the interested parties face to face and avoiding discouraging and sometimes irritating decay. Letters of thanks and congratulation were also received from Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Premier Seddon of New Zealand.

as Chancellor Boyd remarked, was disbursed with lavish hand, who then does know these things? Does anyone imagine that Charles Baker and his mysterious friend were throwing money around about Christmastime just to spread cheer among the farmers of Windham Centre. There is a strong feeling that the Conservative counseishould have pursued the investigation to the extent of ascertaining the source of this money. If Hal B. Donly and A. M. Little were unaware of the presence of election scoundrels in North Norfok their innocence cannot be excused.

Suppressed the Facts.

There is no doubt that damaging facts were suppressed the Facts.

There is no doubt that damaging facts were suppressed the Facts.

There is no doubt that damaging facts were suppressed the Facts.

There is no doubt that damaging facts were suppressed. Mr. Blackstock admirably conducted the case for the petitioner so far as it went. but a good many people are anxious to know why more viliainy was not exposed. It is common talk that in the by-election of Jan. 7, 1902, there was more money foating around than in any previous by-election in the Province of Ontario. Only the corner of the veil was lifted and the quick disposal of the profest prevented the public from gaining a full knowledge of the methods of the men who conducted that campaign. It would at least have been a satisfaction to the people to know how an up-to-date the review of the department of several separate provinces, said the thories were bought up for a heriod previous to voting day. If this be true, there was no opportunity to present evidence of it. The World has it on the authority of Dr. Snider, the defeated candidate, that there was the "drunkenest revel in the history of the province." Did A. M. Little and H. B. Donly shut their eyes to what was going on? They claim they had no part in it, because they swore to no part in it, because they swore to on part in it, because they swore to on of the congalization relieves the candidate and the fund that the corner of the organization ing fund come from the headquarters of the organization in Toronto? And has it come to this, that the central organization relieves the candidate and the riding from all worry in connection with an election contest by taking full charge itself. The supreme ignorance of the local Liberals concerning what transpired during those three weeks preceding Jan. 7 must lead to the besumes all responsibility for the methods by which a campaign was carried on.

not many, the neighbors say, but they were to the point. She said: "John, I think you're going crazy, and I've a good mind to leave you."

When he went out she packed her trunk and sent it to a neighbor's, and soon an expressman called and took it to the Union Station. Mrs. Doyle took her 2-year-old girl baby and went for a walk. She also took with her $300 in crisp bank notes.

From other sources it was learned that Mrs. Doyle purchased a ticket for Port Huron, and wired her sister in Ingersoil to meet her at that station as she passed thru. The sister did so, and Mrs. Doyle, after a handshake, continued on her journey to Port Huron, where she probably now is. The police have been asked to assist in the search.
