FORGIVE AND FORGET

Gently speak in accents tender,
Of those friends you loved of yore, Then perchance they may not forget All the joys that were before;
There are few whose lives are blameless,
Who have nothing to regret,
Then let others' faults be mine,
Or forgive them, and be kind.

THE QUEEN BEAT AT HOME.—The community of bees is an example of a true monarchy, untrained by any checks on power, yet never descending into despotism on the one hand, or anarchy on the other. Some years ago, while our gracious Queen was making a royal progress through her northern dominions, we witnessed a less interesting sight of the progress of a queen bee in the glass hive of an ingenious friend and lover of nature, at his country retreat. The live was of that construction, which opened from behind, and showed the whole economy within. In a few minutes the queen made her appearance from the lower part of the hive. Her elongated body and tapering abdomen at once distinguished her. She moved along slowly, by now and then pausing to deposit an egg in one of the empty combs, and was most interesting to perceive how she was constantly accompanied by nearly a dozen of bees that formed a circle around her, with their heads invariably turned towards her. This guard was relieved at frequent intervals, so that as she walked forward a new group immediately took the place of the old, and these having returned again resumed the labours in which they had been previously engaged.
Her appearance always seemed to give pleasure, which was indicated by a quivering movement of the wings. The labourers, in whatever way occupied, immediately forsook their work, and came to pay homage to their queen, by forming a guard around her person. Every other part of the hive, meanwhile, presented a busy scene. Many bees were seen moving their bodies with a tremulous motion, by which their minute films of wax were shaken from their scaly sides. Others were ready to take up this wax and knead it into matter proper for constructing cells. Frequent arrivals of bees from the field brought pollen on their thighs for the young bees, and honey, which they deposited in the cells. All was activity, order, and peaceful industry. None were idle but the drones, who seemed to stroll about like gentlemen.—[British Quarterly Review.]

INFLUENCE OF KINDNESS ON THE HORSE.—The Turkish horse is a mixed offspring from the Arabian and the Persian breeds, and from some kind of varieties. It is as gentle and tractable as the Arabian, but neither so fleet nor so vigorous. This bequest, who went as ambassador to Constantinople in the seventeenth century, says—"There is no creature so gentle as a Turkish horse, nor more respectful to his master, or the groom that dresses him. The reason is, because they treat their horses with great lenity. The countrymen in Pontus stroke them, bring them into their houses, and almost to their tables, and use them even like children; and the grooms frequently seek them down with their hands, and never use a cudgel to bang their sides but in cases of necessity. This makes their horses great lovers of mankind, and therefore so far from kicking, wincing, or groaning untractable by this gentle usage, that you will hardly find an ill-tempered horse amongst them." The Turkish horse takes rank with the Arabian as a contributor to the improvement of the English horse.—[Rural Cyclopaedia.]

CONQUERORS AND CONQUERED.—The hospitals of a conquered army generally exhibit a scene of great moral depression, and many of the soldiers die from wounds which did not appear to be of dangerous character, and which in the hands of the victorious, would not only recover from frightful injuries, but even in the midst of the most severe bodily suffering they exhibit gaiety and cheerfulness, entertaining a full and confident confidence in their recovery.—[Medical Times.]

NEWSPAPERS.—A newspaper in a family is equal to three months time in a school, each cent. It goes into a family with a newspaper is taken, and into those who "cannot afford it," mark the difference in the intelligence of the children, and be convinced.

AN IMMORTAL MARRIAGE.—There is living in Moscow, Russia, a venerable lady, who is only 108 years of age. She has had five husbands, and the gray old maid married the last one in her 121st year.

A couple of "limbs of the law," who were conducting a suit before a justice in Rochester, got introduced at each others' chambers, and came to blows.
The court sat by and looked coolly on till the frustrating his honor, but the justice, wincing turbid in the least, and the trial went on.—[American Paper.]
