RECENT DEATHS

Mrs. Sarah Emma Turnbull died on Friday night at her home in Digby. She leaves two sons, Arthur and Ernest, and three daughters, Misses May and Annie and Mrs. Henry Trask. Her first husband was John Lefebvre, who died in Havana and her second the late George Henry Turnbull.

When his little grandson entered the home of Cornelius Cain in North street yesterday at noon to bring him to the home of Mrs. Turner, his daughter, 108 Rockland Road, he found the aged man dead. He had died just in the act of retiring for he had the bedclothes partly turned down, his clothing partly removed, and one hand was on the heel of his boot as though he were taking it off. Mr. Cain had been in the habit of going to his daughter's every Sunday for dinner, and when he did not arrive yesterday she became worried and sent her little daughter, Mary and then her son. The little girl could not get into the house but the boy had a key. Mr. Cain had lived alone for many years. He was well liked by all who knew him. He was a mason by trade and was for some time with B. Mooney & Sons. He was a native of Ireland. The funeral will take place from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Turner, in Rockland Road, tomorrow at quarter to nine o'clock.

THE GAY MUSICIAN, OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT

Music lovers of St. John will have their first opportunity tonight of hearing the latest work of that famous English composer, Julian Edwards. The Gay Musician is said to far surpass all the other compositions of Mr. Edwards.

The score contains twenty-two song hits, amongst which are "Love-light," "My Darling Soldier Boy," "Hail to the Queen of Beauty," "That's How I Got Treated," "The Saucy Sparrow," "My Blue Eyed Baby Boy," "A Little Band of Gold," "Have My Doubts," "Ram Tam Tiddle,"

Love-light is the hit of the opera and all St. John will be whistling this air in a few days. The book and lyrics are by Charles Campbell and Edward Seidle and give great opportunities to the performers for comedy. The staff of comedians in the Gay Musician is fully competent to handle this part of entertainment and, unlike most of the musical attractions of the day, the comedy is of the clean and refined order not always found in musical shows.

The cast is headed by Miss Lottie Kendall and she is supported by an all star cast including Harry Short, remembered here for his good work in Madame Sherri. Others in the cast are Harold Rehill, Isabel Miller, Hayden Clifford, Gertrude Taylor, William Ryan, Fritz Klingel, Roy Torrey and several other well known favorites, assisted by the best singing chorus in comic opera.

The engagement is for four nights with one matinee on Wednesday at popular prices. The prices have been arranged so that everyone will have no excuse for missing the best comic opera of the season.

ALL ON BOARD DROWNED
Saturday's French Naval Disaster Unexplained — A Tribute to the Dead

Cherbourg, June 10.—As a further investigation only confirmed the impossibility of recovering the bodies of the crew of the submarine Vendemiaire, which was sunk off the Cherbourg peninsula on Saturday, the minister of marine, M. Delcasse, went to the scene of the disaster aboard the armored cruiser Gloire to pay homage to the dead.

The warship steamed up slowly to the spot where the submarine disappeared, the engines were stopped and the minister of marine, standing on the bridge and surrounded by admirals, bared his head and made a brief address.

The minister presented arms, the band played the Marseillaise, and the guns boomed a salute. The crews of the Gloire and the two other warships, which were moored to mark the spot, were drawn up in lines on the decks.

The exact cause of the disaster can never be known. The officer in command of the battleship Saint Louis, who was on the bridge at the time of the collision, declares that the Vendemiaire's periscope shot up so close to the battleship that there was no time either to reverse the engines or put over the helm. He distinctly saw the ram cut the submarine in two, and did not doubt that all on board perished instantly.

HOW VERY SAD.
Seated at little tables in an old-fashioned coffee house were a number of honest workmen, partaking of their humble dinner.

Presently there entered a poor, bedraggled woman, who was bitterly weeping and who looked the picture of misery.

"My dear little Nellie," she sobbed, "she's been run over and killed."

"They were only hard-working mill hands, but their hearts were touched, and soon the hat was being passed round among them for the benefit of the afflicted woman."

"And how old was she?" asked one of the sympathizers.

"Five years," came the answer; "and I'd had her ever since she was a kitten."

WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC FROM ACROSS OCEAN

Alarm in Scotland Over Reports of Danger to Women Immigrants

STORIES FROM CANADA

Woman Writes Home and a Toronto Newspaper Article is Republished — Scottish Clergyman Plan to Communicate With the Canadian Government

(Times' Special Correspondence)
London, May 23.—Quite a fuss has been caused on this side by the publication, in newspapers throughout Great Britain, of an item referring to the white slave traffic in Toronto which recently appeared in the Toronto Telegram.

The article in the Telegram sets forth that a committee had been appointed to enquire into the existing condition, which was stated to be very bad. Scottish newspapers took the matter up and I learn that Canadian officials have been busy replying to the charge. The question has now been taken up by the synods of the Presbyterian church in Scotland, and at the meeting of the Synod of Lothian and Tweeddale recently it was pointed out that there was an evil going on in connection with women going out to Canada.

The clerk said that there were agencies in this country and Canada which were not doing their best for these women, who were tempted out under promises of situations, and when they arrived in Canada found that these promises were deceptive, with the result that a great many deviated into immoral paths. So bad did he consider the situation that his opinion was that the church should form an emigration committee, and communicate with the Canadian government in order that Scottish women should be well looked after. A statement coming from such a responsible source is calculated to do extreme harm to the efforts of Canada to encourage British women to settle in the dominion.

In addition to the item referred to, a letter from a Scotswoman in Canada has been published in the newspapers here. She writes that of the thousands of girls lured to Canada by the account of the great prospects, a very great number go to farms where there are one or two hard-bellied men, and the natural sequence is ruin. Numbers of others go into the cities and take the easy avenue which the white slave traffic offers.

"The white-slave traffic is the most appalling that Canada has to do with," she writes, "and notwithstanding all efforts of the moral and social reform societies and others it flourishes most dangerously."

It need hardly be said that items like these are industriously circulated by a section of the press which is antagonistic to Canada, and will undoubtedly retard the settlement of a good class of British women in the dominion while it is conceivable that it will equally encourage the movement of those of questionable morals.
