TO FIGHT GREAT BRITAIN'S ENEMIES.

(Continued from page 1.) the could march round by the front. Had this been done, the contasion which did occur would have been avoided. The band, however, marched into the side entrance. The police sought to keep them back and the crowds on either side of the door inside broke into the cleared space and all order was lost for the time.

The police worked hard and roll.

The police worked hard and well. There are, hewever, one or two complaints made. One prominent citizen threatens action against Chief Clark for ejecting him from the station. He says that some man was being put out and that he was dose at hand. The chief stepped on his foot and then ordered him out. He protested and two officers were called to put him out, which they did. He claims this action of the chief was unjustifiable and was due to a motive. A prominent physician was roughly handled by a peliceman while he was assisting two ladies from the crowd. He was thrown against the side of the building and his hat kucked from his head by the force of the shove. He made complaint of the matter to the chief. The police worked hard and well

COMPANY AT SUSSEX.

The Whole Country at the Station. Sussex, Oct. 25-Company G, of the Canadian regulars, must have felt proud at the splendid reception they met at Sussex tonight. Bonfires were blazing, illuminating the country for miles around, and all the inhabitants, by the around, and all the inhabitants, by the looks of the vest assemblage, must have left their homes to bid a fond and affectionate adieu to the soldier boys who were willing to sacrifice everything for queen and country. All the local officers of the 74th battalion were at the station in uniform to meet the boys and the enthusiasm of the assemblage begrared description. When Conductor Campbell sanz out the words "All aboard," the cheers were deafening. In the glare of the brilliant bonfires thousands listening to the appropriate music being rendered by the band in attendance raised the hearts of the listeners to such a pitch that if necessary the whole N. TRUBO, Oct. 26-W. Fillmore, who exlated in the Nova Scotia unit of the Canadian contingent, was last night permitted to get off the train carrying his company at Folley Lake, where the engine took water. He failed to return and his absence was not known on the train until after the arrival of the company at Moncton.

He was picked up by the night freight following, in charge of Conductor Fisher, and carried to Oxford Junction, where Fillmore resides. The latter decided that it was impossible for him to get on the military train again after it started. the cars being vestibuled and the doors closed. His intention, he said, was to try to eatch up with his comrades by means of No. 25 and connecting trains. Filmore was a member of the 93rd and is a steady and courageous fellow.
