

that this noble woman heard of the destitution of the Labrador Coast, and just because of the difficulty of the work and the unlikelihood of any one else doing it, she consecrated herself to it—a free gift, as she is laboring there without salary. It may be that in this meeting some would, in like manner, give themselves to the missionary work.

Mr. Dougall, said that this Society was a connecting link between the Christians of Canada and the United States. The Committee and the field were Canadian; the missionary and most of the fishermen who crowded the coast in the summer season were Americans. The New England churches so far as they were acquainted with the mission, took a deep interest in it, and a deputation from Canada to collect for it, would he had reason to believe, be well received everywhere, especially in New England.

The Chairman in putting the resolution explained why so much money had been spent in buildings. They were essential to the carrying on of the mission, and all the lumber and other materials had to be sent from Canada, incurring heavy expenses of freight, &c. Besides the materials had arrived too late the first year to complete the house, and an autumn storm had blown off the roof; next season it was completed, but all these things increased expense. The missionary was, however, so competent, that they had every confidence in the success of his much needed labors.

Rev. Mr. Bonar of the American Presbyterian Church, gave a brief sketch of Moravian Missions on the Labrador coast, saying their interesting history presented a continuous series of revivals. He paid a high tribute to the ability and excellence of Mr. Carpenter, and expressed his confidence in the importance and success of the mission.

Rev. Dr. Wilkes of Zion Church, pointed out the striking manner in which Divine Providence had placed fields of labour in the hands of this Society. Mr. Carpenter and Capt. Kennedy had both written to the Society, and he had received a letter that day from a Greek student at Andover, who wished to be sent back to Greece as a missionary. He did not know the writer, but it might be that this was a call like that which grew out of Mr. Carpenter's first letter, which described the destitution of the Labrador coast, and asked the Society to do something for it.

Rev. Mr. Snodgrass of the Church of Scotland, in seconding the resolution, paid a tribute to the devotedness of Capt. Kennedy, and sympathized with his disappointment at the Lake of the Woods, hoping that he might yet be able to return and carry on a good work there.

Dr. Williams, of Canton, said he pitied the man who could attend this great catholic meeting without being elevated. We had heard to-night of a mission in a region of country in which he did not think anything had been done, and he rejoiced to hear of a union or catholic mission
