you so; at least not in that brutal style." She flushed redder than before; then stooped down; brushed the rich, black hair off from his forehead; put a kiss upon it; thanked me with her eyes; and then, said, "I declare I forgot my scissors after all," and slipped out of the room. "John," said Mr. Wheaton, grasping me by the hand, "I am much obliged to you. I remember Lucy always had a sensitive soul; I wonder if I have been pricking it with sharp words without knowing it all these years. I think I have learned a lesson to-night which I shall not forget." "I think I have learned one, too," I replied.

Remember the Remedy

In the "Memoir of William Marsh," it is related that a few days previous to his ordination he was invited, with several other candidates for the ministry, to meet at the house of Richard Cecil in order to spend the day in the study of the Scriptures, conversation and prayer. Sixty years afterwards he referred to it with the same freshness of enjoyment and thankfulness as if it had been the day before.

"Mr. Cecil," he said, "was most happy in the art of illustration. Wishing to impress upon our minds the importance of ever making prominent in our preaching Christ and his atonement, he told us an anecdote of his former life. He had been a great sufferer for years, and none of his medical friends had been able to ascertain the cause. At length Mrs. Cecil was told of a physician who was extremely skilful in intricate cases, and whom she entreated him to consult. On

Pay the Price and Take It

It was four o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and tea was being served in the Gerald's shady side yard. One lady and seven girls were the company present, and the lady, who was the mother of the hostess, was listening eagerly to the conversation of the others, only now and then making a remark or asking a question.

The gate clicked and a lady came up the walk.

"If you don't look too comfortable for any use, Anne Gerald!" she cried.

Mrs. Gerald sprang up with an exclamation of welcome.

"Del Davenport, what a lovely surprise! Nancy, make a cup of tea for Aunt Del. These are some of Nancy's friends, Del, Christine and Miriam Jenner, Bess and Elsie Cardiff, Louise Griffin and Mary Crane. And this is Miss Davenport, whom Nancy calls Aunt Del."

The girls stood up and bowed rather shyly. Elsie passed a plate and Louise the cakes, but they were evidently embarrassed by the guest, and Mrs. Gerald, seeing it, sent them down to the garden for flowers.

"Have I interrupted a party?" Miss Davenport asked. "It isn't Nancy's birthday, I know."

"No party. We do it every week."

"Every week!"

Mrs. Gerald nodded. "Those are girls who work in the handkerchief factory on Mill Street. Nancy met them at Endicott House, and invites them here every Saturday afternoon. And I can't tell you how I enjoy it. And the things we discuss! It's better than a whole entering the physician's room, he said, 'Welcome, Mr. Cecil; I know you well by character and as a preacher. We must have some conversation after I have given you my advice.'

"Mr. Cecil then described his sufferings. The physician considered a moment, and then said, 'Dear sir, there is only one remedy in such a case as yours; do first try it; it is perfectly simple and then he mentioned the medicine.'

"Mr. Cecil, fearing to occupy too much of his time, rose to leave, but the physician said, 'No, sir, we must not part so soon, for I have long wished for an opportunity of conversing with you.' So they spent half an hour more, mutually delighted with each other's society.

"On returning home," added Mr. Cecil, 'I said to my wife, "You sent me to a most agreeable man—such a fund of anecdote, such originality of thought, such a command of language."'

"Well, but what did he prescribe for you?" Mrs. Cecil anxiously inquired.

"There was a pause, and then Mr. Cecil exclaimed, 'I have entirely forgotten the remedy; his charms of manner and conversation put everything else out of my mind.'

"Now, young men," said Mr. Cecil, 'it will be very pleasant for you if your congregations go away saying, "What eloquence! what original thought! and what an agreeable delivery!" Take care they do not forget the remedy, the only remedy, Christ and His righteousness, Christ and His atonement, Christ and His advocacy.'

course in civics. I'm learning the whole world and all its intentions over again from a girl's viewpoint—schools, church, home, society."

"It must be great. But how in the world do you get time for it? You're the only woman I know who could. And you're one of the very few who really seem to enjoy living."

"Don't the two things go together? I enjoy living because I take time for it. And the secret is very simple—I don't do other things! It's all a matter of selection. How many clubs do you belong to, Del?"

"Civics, Wednesday music, Suffrage, Lafayette, Whist."

"And you are going to the symphonies and to the fine-arts courses? And going to a dozen teas a week?"

"You don't go to them—you go through them—on a lightning express! How I hate the things! Yet you can't get out of them."

"Oh, yes, you can—if you are willing to pay the price. Being thought odd or left out."

"As if one would care for that!" Del scoffed. But her color rose. Would she not care?

After she had gone her old schoolmate sat thinking. How many, many things there were that we might have—if we would only pay the price! And how few after all were willing to pay it!

RHEUMATISM

A HOME CURE GIVEN BY ONE WHO HAD IT

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write to-day.
