C-33

"The government sees Bill C-33 as an important element in the overall fiscal strategy of debt control and deficit reduction," he said.

Liberal MP Mary Clancy, who has seven universities in her Halifax riding, said Bill C-33 would be disastrous because post-secondary institutions are already over-extended.

"It is going to have dastardly effects on PSE. We are going to be hard pressed," she said.

Federal transfer payments are designed to help provinces maintain adequate standards in health and education.

About 68 per cent of these payments go to health, the remaining 32 per cent to PSE.

Federal transfer payments for PSE total $5.4 billion for 1989-1990 — a slight increase from $4.7 billion 10 years ago.

C-33 is the latest in a series of cutbacks to transfer payments since 1977, and the second cutback to be initiated by the Conservative government. Bill C-96 in 1985 reduced the escalator by two per cent over a five-year period until 1990-1991, resulting in a loss of $1.6 billion to PSE. Bill C-33, has yet to be approved.
