Ottawa, March 1, 1932.

Mrs. R. H. Inglis,
McRae Avenue, R. R. No. 4,
Victoria, British Columbia.

Dear Mrs. Inglis:

I have received your letter of the 23rd ultimo, and have read the same with interest and care.

As regards your views on the Statute of Westminster, they are not widely different from my own. As a matter of fact no actual independence was achieved by that Statute. We already had all the independence that was of any value, and have it still. We were a part of the Empire and are yet a part, and our relations with the Mother Land are constitutionally substantially the same as they have been for years.

As regards the establishment of another national holiday now, in the 14th year after the close of the War, I do not think the suggestion would be well received. Armistice Day - or as it is now called "Remembrance Day" is Canada's memorial holiday, commemorate of the War and the Canadians who took part in it.

I am,

Very sincerely yours,
