QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Miscellaneous.

POSSIBLY BLACK HEAD.

I had a number of turkeys last year which did well at first; but when about three or four weeks old, would droop their wings and die. I fed them eggs (cut), with cut green dandelions when young, and, afterwards, fed small wheat and corn meal, mixed with a cake made of corn meal. Please tell me what was wrong, and what is best to feed them.

R. R.

Ans.—The most probable supposition is that the disease was black head, information concerning which has been given in these columns half a dozen times during the year. The disease is very infectious, and land where affected turkeys have ranged is unsafe for turkeys or the poultry the following year. To diagnose black head positively, a post-mortem examination is necessary. The walls of the caeca (or blind pouches at the lower end of the small intestines) will be found thickened, either throughout or in spots.
The membrane lining of the caeca becomes reddened and eroded, and from this inflamed surface there is poured into the caeca a quantity of creamy material or exudate, more or less tinted with blood. The liver is enlarged and darkened, while scattered over its surface are distinct round spots, sometimes whitish, or, again, with a yellowish tinge. Young birds are more especially subject to infection of black head, and it is not confined to turkeys, either, but may attack hens. Of course, we cannot be sure your turkeys had black head. It might have been lice, or something else, but the symptoms are suspicious.

REMEDY FOR LICE—DEALERS IN POULTRY AND BEE SUP- PLIES—BOOKS ON BEE- KEEPING—CALVES SUCKLING MANGERS.

1. Would a solution of Zenoleum, applied with a spray pump, be an effectual remedy for large blue lice and small lice on cattle?
2. Give addresses of any reliable dealers in poultry and bee supplies.
3. Please give names of any practical books on beekeeping for beginners, also prices of same, and where they may be obtained.
4. Are pulped turnips good for suckling calves one month old?
5. Give cause and remedy for yearling calves eating their manglers. They are fed on hay, roots and chopped oats.

W. S. M.

Ans.—1. We believe the manufacturers of Zenoleum claim it will do almost anything, fairly killing the lice at sight, but it would probably be better to apply with a brush or cloth. A mixture of one part insect powder in three or four parts cement, dusted along the backs of the animals, is a cheap and simple remedy.

2. A. J. Morgan, London, Ont., handles poultry supplies, and Gould, Shapley & Muir, of Brantford, Ont., supply beekeepers' wants.

3. "Langstroth on the Honey Bee," revised by Dodant, is probably the best book for a beginner who wishes to post himself. Price, through this office, is $1.60 postpaid. "A B C of Bee Culture" is cheaper, at $1.40.

4. Yes; in moderate quantities.
5. This is a habit, induced by any one of a good many causes, possibly by being allowed to suck the milk pails from which they were fed, or may be by the lack of some essential element in their food. Add to their ration a little bran and oil meal.
Give them all the salt they want, and in their feed, once or twice a week, put a teaspoonful of sifted wood ashes.
