UNSELFISH CHILDREN.

A Letter to Young Mothers, in Scrib-ner's Monthly, taking for a text the remark that "always to receive and never to give is as bad for children as for grown people," offers the following suggestions: To be sure there is not much they can do

giving us something, and getting up things for us, and now we have forgotten things for us, and now we have forgotten her. Oh! dear, dear!? Close by stood a little basketful of stones, picked up in their afternoon ramble—just such stones as you can find in any New England pasture lot, or by any stone wall. But the white, imperfect quartz crystals and the shining little bits of mica seemed very beautiful to the child. Suddenly she noticed the basket. There was a hurried consultation with the younger sister, a great parade of secrecy. younger sister, a great parade of secrecy and business, a rattling of stones in the kitchen wash-basin, and much dancing about and shouts of "Now, mamma, we've got something for your birthday. Don't look into that basket! Now, don't guess, oh! you can never quess what it is!" oh! you can never guess what it is

The next morning at breakfast there was something on mamn.a's plate heaping up the napkin so carefully spread over it.

When the napkin was lifted there was nothing but the heap of shining stones,

If you can do but little, it is worth a great deal to have them grow up with the habit of being happy. If this habit comes—not because every wish is gratified, but because they are always busy at some cheerful or helpful work, never fear that they will grow up querulous and selfish. Children so trained are apt to fall into fashiomable littlesself. fashionable listlessness or to give them-selves up to idle grief, if disappointment and sorrow come into their mature lives.

Bigots to the Core.

If the public are fairly and faithfully dealt with they will come to appreciate it sooner or later. This fact is well illustrated in the experience of Messrs. Tuckett & Son, with their well known "Myrtle Navy" tobacco. Throughout the manufacturers of T. & B. have stood firmly by their original idea to give the public the best article possible, at the lowest possible price, and in the large demand for their tobacco the public have manifested their appreciation.

OUR PRIESTS.

Our priests, for are they not ours? Are they not here having abandoned all, obe-dient to the Master's will to toil amongst dient to the Master's will to toll amongst us, labouring and sowing, weeding and reaping, and gathering in God's own har-vest! Do we value them as we ought? Do we ever in some moment of thought look over our young city, and remember that, but a few years ago, naught broke the repose of that soft green ascent where lies repose of that soft green ascent where lies our cemetery; almost alone the large cross crowned the hill now so full of white enclosures. Do we ever think of those holy men whose bones lie at the foot of that cross, and whose spirits, we believe, are with others of our earliest missionaries, midst those of the just made perfect. Jesus Christ the everlasting priest abides forever, and priest succeeds priest, in His everlasting priesthood is spread o'er the face of the earth, among all nations of the world, living as Christ did, teaching and preaching. Great in "its duration, its dignity, its prerogatives, "its duration, its dignity, its prerogatives, its object and its power." Are we conscious of this? Let us speak simply. God's for you, but what they can do is worth very little in itself, but just because it develops a generous thoughtfulness for other people's pleasure. Children are naturally generous, and delight to make gates. In them is the power to purify and remit sin, to consecrate, and feed us with the Divine food of our souls, and I saw another birthday celebration once, and shall never forget it. The mother's birthday had come too soon for the child's calculation, and there was no preparation made. The oldest, a sensitive, loving child of seven years, was overwhelmed with grief, and sobbed. "Mamma is always withing and cattier." them, to know their worth. God's priests keep knowledge, not for themselves, but in store for others; theirs the task to study, consider and communicate spiritual knowledge, ours to receive. Let us try to meet them in all things, spiritual and temporal. Let us with all our might relieve them of the latter, especially that dreadful hin-drance, debt, wherever it lies, remem-bering always that however much they bear the burden we were the contractors. Our shepherds are few in number for their large scattered flocks, but they toil with superhuman strength, and it behooves us to move with them in order, peace and good will. A sure means to advance our moral and social welfare, and in our children to lay the foundation of a Catholic nation.

An Antique Devotion.

In the early ages of the Church title of stations was appropriated to certain fixed days, on which the faithful assembled in When the napkin was lifted there was nothing but the heap of shining stones, but the children were as happy as if they had been gold and diamonds. Said the youngest; "Mamma, I picked out the very prettiest, the very whitest and shinyest;" and the oldest added. "We washed them just as carefully last night."

The father said afterwards:

They came to me in the evening in great glee, for now they had something for mamma, and they showed me the stones, all wet and dripping in the basket—about as pitful a thing for a present as could be light that went with that worthless little pile of stones could not be counted by dollars. No wonder the mother's eyes the days, on which the faithful assembled in some appointed church, whither the Pope repaired at the head of the clergy in solemn to the chain of the clebration of divine office and public prayer. The name some hold to be derived from stature, to appoint the celebration of divine office and public prayer. The name some hold to be derived from stature, to appoint the celebration of divine office and public prayer. The name some hold to be derived from stature, to appoint the call of the clergy in solemn to the chain of the clergy in solemn to the chain of the clergy in solemn to the call the head of the clergy in solemn to the chain of the chain of the clergy in solemn to the chain of the chain of the clergy in solemn to the chain of the clergy in solemn to the chain of the chain of the light that went with that worthless little pile of stones could not be counted by dollars. No wonder the mother's eyes grew dim as she looked from the stones heaped upon her plate to the glowing faces of her children, and that she carefully put the stones away. Triffes like these are the very dearest of treasures to a mother's heart, if some day the bright eyes that shone with delight are forever shut from her sight, and the busy little hands are folded still and cold.

You never know how long you and your children will have each other. At tributed the concession of the Indulgences best they will not be little children always. best they will not be little children always.

Make the life which you live together as happy and as full of yourself as possible. If you can do but little, it is worth a great deal to have them grow up with the little him to be the stations. They are now observed in Advent, throughout Lent, on the Rogation days, on the Ember days of the four seasons, at Pentecost, etc; formerly they were principally celebrated on Sunday, Wednesday and Friday. On the day of the appointed station the entire church, with its crypts, chapels, relics, etc., is thrown open to the public, and thoroughly adorned and illuminated; and consequently seen to better advantage by visitors, who are thus anabled to examine and admire at leisure.—London Tablet.

There are many Ritualists who feel more indignation against those members of their families as submit to the Catholic and it is positive proof that the remedy of their families as submit to the Catholic Church than against others who become Rationalists. And what the Ritualists feel and say against us, in those extraordinary freaks of uncharitableness into which they break out one of their number carries. inary freaks of uncharitableness into which they break out one of their number carries the Ritualistic premises to the Roman and only logical conclusion, is felt and said, it seems under similar circumstances, by Low Churchmen against themselves. Mr. Horsley, the Protestant chaplain at Clerk enwell Prison, writes as follows, in a letter published in the Guardian this week: "A lady lately was interested in a fallen girl. On hearing she was going into a House of Mercy, under the care of a sisterhood, she said she had rather she went back to the streets!" This reminds us of a rumor, and a well authenticated one, which asserts that a very celebrated lady philanthropist used her influence to prevent a Ritualistic Mission to women of this class being preached in the vicinity of one of our camps—lest any of the listeners might adopt views that were "high."—London Register.

A GREAT REVELATION.

Synopsis of a Lecture Delivered by Dr. Selwyn Stanley Before the Metropol-itan Scientific Association of London.

"The free and independent thought of this age accepts statements only where they are proven to be truth, while the developments of mental power seem equally great in every other department of life. The valuable inventions of the day are counted by thousands. The increase of scientific study is universal. The spirit of inquiry in all fields is so marked as to cause comment on every side, while people cause comment on every side, while people seem investigating and advancing in every direction which can help them morally, mentally or physically. This is specially true of the human body and everything true of the human body and everything which concerns it, and the truths which the people have found, even in the last fifty years, are simply marvelous. How really ignorant some cultured and supposeably scientific people were only a few years ago, as compared with the present day, may be better understood from a few

"A prominent America , writer prepared an elaborate essay to prove that steamships could never cross the Atlantic, and his pamphlet was issued just in time to be carried by the first steamer that came to England. People once believed that the heart was the seat of life and health. It is now known that this organ is only a pump, simply keeping in motion wha ather and more important organs of the body have created and transformed. I body nave created and the state of a person felt a pain in the back, the liver was deranged; if a pain came in the lower chest the lungs were affected and consumption was near; it is now known that a pair in the back it is now known that a pair in the back indicates diseased kidneys, while troubles in the lower chest arise from a disordered liver and not imperfect lungs. A severe pain in the head was once thought to come from, some partial derangement of the brain; it is now known that troubles in other parts of the body an laway from the head, cause headaches, and that only by removing the cause can the pain be cured. It is a matter of cured. It is a matter of caused principally by weariness. A physician was called who 'bled him him coplously.' Strange to say, the patient be-came no better! Another doctor was called, who again took away a large amount of the vital fluid. Thus in suc-

"Let us look at this matter a little more closely. The human body is the most perfect and yet the most delicate of all created things. It is capable of the greatest results, and it is liable to the greatest isorders. The slightest causes sometimes seem to throw its delicate machinery out of order, while the most simple and company any series care restores and teams them in mon-sense care restores and keeps them in perfect order. When it is remembered that the amount of happiness or misery we are to have in this world is dependent upon a perfect body, is it not strange that

1870, I found myself losing both in strength and health. I was unaccountably strength and nearth. I was unaccountably tired, my appetite was fickle, my head troubled me at times and occasionally pains would shoot through different portions of my body. I could assign no cause for this decline, but it continued cause for this decline, but it continued, until finally I called to my aid two prominent physicians. After treating me for some time they declared I was suffering from Bright's disease of the kidneys, and that they could do nothing more for me. At this time I was so weak I could no raise my head from the pillow and I

FAINTED REFEATEDLY.

My heart beat so rapidly it was with difficulty I could sleep. My lungs were also badly involved. I could retain nothing upon my stomach, while the most intense pains in my back and bowels caused me to long for death as a relief. It was at this critical juncture that a physical long-ing which I felt (and which I most firmly believe was an inspiration) caused me to send for the leaves of a plant I had once known in medical practise. After great difficulty I at last secured them and began difficulty I at last secured them and began their use in the form of tea. I noticed a lessening of the pain at once; I began to mend rapidly; in five weeks I was able to be about, and in two months I became perfectly well and have so continued to this day. It was only natural that such a result would have caused me to investigate, west thereafted. gate most thoroughly. I carefully examined fields in medicine never before explored, I sought the cause of physical order and disorder, happiness and pain, and I found the kidneys and liver to be the governors, whose motions regulate the entire system."

After describing at length the offices of the kidneys and liver, and their important part in life, the doctor went on to say:

had saved my life, found their health had saved my life, found their health steadily improving and their strength continually increasing. So universal, where used, was this true, that I determined the entire world should share in its results, and I therefore placed the formula for its preparation in the hands of Mr. H. H. Warner, a gentleman whom it cured of a soverte kidney disease and who by reason severe kidney disease, and who, by reason of his personal worth, high standing and liberality, has become known and popular to the entire world. This gentleman at once began the manufacture of the remedy on a most extensive scale, and to day Warner's Safe Cure, the pure remedy that saved my life, is known and used in all parts of the world and can be found on the shelves of every drug store.

"I am aware a prejudice exists toward proprietary medicines, and that such prejudice is too often well-founded, but the value of a pure remedy is no less because it is a proprietary medicine. A justifiable prejudice exists toward quack doctors, but is it right that this prejudice should extend cession four physicians drew away the life of a great man who was intended by nature for an old age, and who premature for an old age, and all the doctors who are earnestly and an old age, and all the doctors who are earnestly and an old age, and all the doctors who are earnestly and an old age, and all the doctors who are earnestly and an old age, and all the doctors who are earnestly and an old age, and all the doctors are all the doctors are all the doctors. life before it became a proprietary medi-

That one of the greatest revelations of the present day has been made in ascertaining the true seat of health to be in the kidneys and liver all scientists now admit, and I can but feel that the discovery which I have been permitted to make, and which I have described to you is destined to prove the greatest, best and most reliable friend to those who suffer and long for happiness, as well as to those and long for happiness, as well as to those who desire to keep the joys they now possess."
