PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It is more blessed to give than to regret.

Patience is a virtue which you look for in others, but seldom possess yourself.

We wonder at times how a grouch would manage to enjoy life if all the undesirable people were killed off.

Our idea of a diplomat is a man who can persuade his wife that she looks just as well in cotton stockings.

When a man begins to rejoice because the rich can't get to heaven he means to confess that he has failed.

The world won't be perfect so long as people think they can change human nature by passing a law about it.

Looks as though predictions of a long and severe winter may not come true, though some cold weather may be expected.

The engine chokes when the car goes too slow. What we need is an appliance to choke the driver when he goes too fast.

It's nice to have a car that will climb the hills, but somehow the upkeep reminds you of that old poem
"Over the hills to the poorhouse."
