GENERAL LOGIE VERS CHARGES OF BAD RATIONS
 Statement Declaring at Camp Borden Is Good.

GENERAL COMPLAINTS AT FIRST.
 Produces Correspondence to Show How Defects Were Remedied.

Camp Borden, Aug. 17.—Brigadier General W. A. Logie, contrary to custom, issued the following statement yesterday:

"I have made it a practice never to reply to newspaper comments with regard to inaccurate statements in connection with conditions at Camp Borden, but I feel it my duty to make the following statement with regard to the article published in yesterday's Globe, entitled 'Camp Borden Bread Green with Mould'."

"I inspect the kitchens of every battalion every day, and investigate conditions of cleanliness and the quantity and quality of the food. The first complaint which reached me in regard to the quality of the bread was on July 14, when several battalions complained that the bread was mouldy."

Packed When Too Hot.
 "Boards of officers were immediately held, and sergeant cooks called as witnesses, the result being a report that the condition of the bread was the result of the same being packed while too hot in cardboard cartons which were not sufficiently ventilated."

On receipt of these boards' reports, the following correspondence ensued:

(Telegram)
 Camp Borden, Ont., July 17.—Messrs Nasmiths, Limited, Toronto.

A large quantity of your bread has been mouldy owing to improper packing while hot. Unless you remedy this by packing in ventilated containers and shipping in ventilated carts, I propose to cancel your contract.

(Signed) W. A. LOGIE,
 Camp Borden, Ont., July 19.
 Messrs. Nasmiths, Limited, Toronto.

Dear Sirs—The following is a report on the defects in your bread. Please have the same corrected forthwith.

"At the time of issue the outward appearance of the bread appears all right, but on cutting into it is soggy, and this is attributed to the bread being 'too young,' as the bakers call it, the meaning being that, instead of being left to rise for say four hours, it is put in the oven too green at the expiration of say three hours."

"That the bread should be shipped in boxes especially adapted for the purpose, or the bread should be allowed to cool off before packing. The result from being shipped in the present condition in boxes that are practically air-tight, the bread sweats, and bread issued this morning will be mouldy by to-morrow at breakfast."

"The bread lacks flavor, and this is also attributed to the preparation and bread issued which is many times not sufficient salt used in the making."

Yours truly,
 W. A. LOGIE,
 Brig-Gen.
 D.O.C., M.D. No. 2,
 The Company's Reply
 Toronto, July 21.

Dear Sir,—We acknowledge receipt of your of the 19th inst. re bread, and in reply have to state that we are employing the same methods in manufacturing camp bread as we do for our own regular business, and which we think produce the best results. For your special benefit we are calling in a bread expert to go over our system and have him issue a certificate as to our methods. On receipt of same we shall forward it to you.

Particular attention is being paid to the packing and shipping of the bread.

As regards the question of salt, we have to state that we use more salt in the bread going to the camp than we use in our ordinary baking. We have our inspector at the supply depot every morning to see that the bread averages in good condition and we think that this will overcome any difficulties that have been experienced in the past, but we cannot be held responsible if any of the regiments keep the bread, either in the hampers or the corrugated boxes after the ration has been issued.

Weather conditions are so severe at the present time that we think it is necessary for bread to be stored in a dry place. If, during the excessive heat, the Army Service Corps keeps their stock of bread to a minimum, we think that there will be little difficulty in the future.

We again give you our assurance that we are doing our utmost to give you satisfaction. Yours truly,
 (Signed) W. A. LOGIE,
 Brigadier-General.
 John Turnbull, Pres.
 The General's Sharp Demand
 Messrs. Nasmiths, Limited,
 42 Duchess St., Toronto.

Dear Sirs,—I have your letter of July 21st. I do not want a certificate from your experts, what I want is good bread for the troops. I am glad to know that you are using every endeavour to meet this requirement. I cannot afford to have the troops living from hand to mouth, as in the event of breakdown in the railway service, 30,000 troops would be clamoring for bread.

Yours truly,
 (Signed) W. A. LOGIE,
 Brigadier-General.
All Right Since Letter.
 General Logie's statement continues as follows:

"Following my letter of July 22, I had an interview with the representative of the contractors, who stated that it was not feasible to provide immediately wooden boxes for such a large quantity of bread, but that his firm would at once place an order for these boxes, and meanwhile specially ventilate the cardboard cartons."

"On July 22, I have particularly inquired from officers commanding quartermasters, sergeant cooks, and the men themselves, whether the bread was satisfactory, and had not received any complaint, but, on the contrary, the bread was stated to be satisfactory."

"In order to eliminate any possibility of any defective bread being served out, I instructed all quartermasters to examine each loaf of bread as they received it from the contractors, through the Army Service, and to return forthwith to the contractor any bread which was found defective in quality or condition, and receive in return, if desired, wholesome bread. This course I have found by enquiry has been carried out, and I propose investigating the complaint in question with regard to the 166th Battalion, and ascertain if mouldy bread was served on Sunday last, and why the quartermaster of that unit did not carry out my orders.

In Justice to Contractors.
 "In justice to the contractors permit me to say that they have difficulties to contend with. If they supply bread which will reach Camp Borden in a fresh condition, the danger of mould is always present in such large quantities. If, on the contrary, they allow the bread to cool in their factories by the time it reaches the men's tables it is stale and accordingly if the men are to obtain fresh bread, and until the contractors can obtain ventilated wooden boxes, there is a danger of a certain number of loaves being spoiled on the outside with the result that the contractor will have to stand the loss of this bread."

"In conclusion, permit me to say that the rations of the men have my most anxious personal supervision and that if the men present their complaints through their commanding officer to me, I will take prompt steps to see that every well founded complaint receives attention, and the condition complained of rectified."
