"In the first place," he said, "the "In the first place," he said, "the general expects to take Manchuria. Then he will go on to Corea, and will finally wind up the trouble in Japan by taking Tokio. There was once upon a time an Irishman who was proceeding along a road with a friend. They came to a point in the road opposite a stone wall, which surrounded a field in which a large, able-bodied bull was grazing. As soon as he saw the bull the Irishman burst into a hearty faugh.

"What's the matter? asked his friend.

I was thinking how funny it would be if I jumped over that wall, caught the bull by the horns and rubbed his nose into the turf.

"In about three minutes he came back over the wall assisted by the horns of the bovine. 'I'm thinking,' he said, as he rubbed his sore spots, 'that it was a mighty good thing that I got in my laugh before I went over there.'"—New York Tribune.

The Antiquity of Chess,

Chess, nov being played between Chess, now being played between ocean steamers by means of wire-less telegraphy, is the oldest of games, and it is a striking contrast that it offers itself for easy operation to the latest triumph of modern science. It was generally assumed until now that the ancient Indians that invested above that it was introhad invented chess, that it was intro-duced from India to Persia in the sixth century by the Arabs, and that in consequence of the Crusades it in consequence of the Crusaus spread from east to west. It is true the Chinese—who invented many things in time long gone, but which had to be re-invented in Europe—assert that they can trace chess in sert that they can trace chess in their own country to about two hun-dred years before our era. Now there can certainly be no doubt in the can certainly be no doubt in the character of the figures at present used, and in some of the words connected with the game, an Indian, Persian, and Arabic influence is traceable. Excavations on the pyramid field of Sakkara some time ago brought to light a wall painting, on which a high official is represented as playing chess with a partner, at the time of the Government of King Teta, who belonged to the sixth dynasty. Professor Lepsius formerly assigned the reign of that monarch Teta, who belonged to the sixth dynasty. Professor Lepsius formerly assigned the reign of that monarch to about the year 2700 B.C. Professor Brugsch, correcting this chronology, puts it back to still greater antiquity, namely, to the year 3300 B.C., so that chess would have been known in the once mysterious land of hizraim something like 5,200 mears ago. years ago.

Baptism For the Dead.

One device which holds the people to the Mormon church is the curious doctrine of baptism for the dead. believed that the living may by being baptized save their relatives who have gone before. A man goes to the temple and is solemnly immersed for his grandfather, who died out of the faith. The grandfather's name is duly entered in the book of records, the grandson contributes a fee and conver the part contributes a fee and comes the next day to be baptized for his grands day to be baptized for his grandmother and so on. As the result of this faith the Morpions have delved more deeply into their genealogy perhaps than any other class of Americans. I know of several cases in which Mormons have gone to England on purpose to trace out their genealogical tree, bringing back long lists of their appears. bringing back long lists of their ances
