BID FOR INTERVENTION

Arbitration of Russ-Jap War Pleaded By Lord Lansdowne.

At Lord Mayor's Banquet in London, in the absence of Premier Balfour, He Speaks On Behalf of the British Government For Peace-Utilities Are Regarded As Almost A Plea For Russia and Are Received in Silence.

London, Nov. 10.—Lord Lansdowne, in the absence of Premier Balfour, at the historic Lord Mayor's banquet, held last night, made a strong plea for peace and arbitration on behalf of the British Government. Lord Lansdowne pointed out to a large and rather unsympathetic audience that arbitration was the only way in which the North Sea dispute with Russia could be met equitably settled, and almost in the same breath drew a vivid picture of the horrors of the struggle now proceeding in the Far East. Between the lines of every reference the Foreign Minister made to the Russian-Japanese war was an urgent plea, amounting almost to a demand, that it might be settled by arbitration.

It was a carefully prepared statement before what is considered the most representative gathering of leading men of Great Britain. As such it was generally interpreted as a bolder bid for intervention than has yet emanated from any neutral power. America was writ large in his speech, for which Great Britain has been waiting for many days. The Foreign Minister prefaced all his remarks by saying: "That great statesman, John Hay, recently remarked that war was the most futile and fallacious of human follies."

Then came an impassioned review of the North Sea affair. Although Lord Lansdowne was unable to announce the signing of the convention, he emphatically confirmed statements made in these despatches, namely, "that Great Britain had found it difficult in arriving at a solution in principle of the dispute, and only supplemented what is already known by the statement that Russia has guaranteed the punishment of any other officers in addition to those already detached from Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron, who might be proved to have been implicated."

By most of his hearers, Lord Lansdowne's utterances were regarded almost as a plea for Russia. A dead silence greeted him, as after pointing out that the two Governments in good faith believed in contradictory statements of facts, he asked: "Could we have done better than get full apology and compensation and leave the question of facts to an international tribunal with a guarantee of punishment of any who may be found guilty."

Lord Lansdowne, in connection with the question of contraband, seriously reminded the audience that Great Britain, as the greatest naval power, might some day be the greatest sufferer by a restriction of belligerent rights on the high seas.

War Secretary Heard.
At the Lord Mayor's banquet at the Guildhall last night, Foreign Secretary Lansdowne, in the absence of Premier Balfour, who by the advice of his physician, is still resting his injured leg, was the principal speaker. The 250 guests included the Archbishop of Canterbury, the members of the Cabinet, the foreign representatives, members of Parliament and other prominent persons. After the usual loyal toasts, War Secretary, Arnold-Forster, replying for the Imperial forces, said it was the determination of the Army Council not to rest until the British army was ready to enter the field at any time with absolute confidence of success. Lord Lansdowne, responding to His Majesty's Ministers, referred to the unfortunate absence of Mr. Balfour, who, in spite of his illness, had not ceased to actively participate in the affairs of the country.

Continuing, the Foreign Secretary said that while London was principally interested that peace should prevail everywhere, he did not think they should think of peace at any price. "At this moment," said Lord Lansdowne, "contemplating the terrible struggle between two brave and gallant nations in the Far East, can one of us contemplate without regret the legion after legion of brave men being led forth to meet their fate and the ruined homes and broken hearts? We can conceive no more terrible punishment than the removal of any Minister or body of Ministers who from a loss of temper or desire of popularity brought upon the country the scourge and calamity of needless war."

Peace Still Unbroken.
At this auspicious moment I am able to announce to you that not only the peace of the country is unbroken, but so far as I am able to foresee, there is no reason why it should not remain unbroken. Not only have we had the good fortune to avoid war, but by the strict neutrality and wise international arrangements we have done something to restrict the area of hostilities. The country, however, has not altogether escaped anxieties. For the last few days we have been face to face with an incident which moved the people of this country as few other incidents have done. The incident of October 21 in the North Sea was an affront to our citizens and an affront to the British flag which, if intentional, I would rather not contemplate the consequences. It was a deplorable and unaccountable blunder, but I am bound to add that recent evidence have satisfied the British Government that the Russian Government believed that the facts were different from what we supposed, and that each party was convinced of the justice of its own cause. Great Britain has adopted the only course in referring the matter to an independent and impartial tribunal, and we found no difficulty in arriving at the principal questions nor in deciding what the terms for their reference under The Hague Convention were such as we could accept."

After detailing what would be the procedure of the court, Lord Lansdowne referred to the smallness of the number of Russian officers left at Vigo and said: "It was not for us to assume the responsibility of the selection of the officers. That rested with Russia, and it would be a great mistake to relieve her of the responsibility."

Would Funtish All.

The Foreign Secretary added that the Government had received distinct assurance during the last day or two that the Russian officers detained were those who were directly implicated, and if the enquiry showed that others were culpable, they also would be punished. "I received a full expression of regret, a promise of ample compensation and a guarantee against a recurrence, with security for all neutral commerce and promise of the punishment of the guilty persons. Was it possible to secure more?"

Continuing, Lord Lansdowne referred to other questions which have arisen during the war, especially that of contraband, which had been largely cleared up, and since July there had been no case of seizing a British ship by Russian vessels. "I am sanguine enough to say," Lord Lansdowne remarked, "that good is likely to come from this struggle in the Far East. It is my hope and belief that this terrible war will give a stimulus to the existing desire for some less clumsy and brutal method of adjusting international differences. I myself have signed no less than five treaties of arbitration."

Do Away With Wars.

"Only yesterday the American Ambassador, Mr. Choate, asked me if we were prepared to sign a similar treaty with America. I have also lately been asked by President Roosevelt, to whom we may offer congratulations on his return to power by a vast majority to participate in a second international peace conference. While reserving the right to consider what subjects and the terms of reference, we did not hesitate to say that we were ready to participate and to tell the president that we wished him Godspeed in the useful work he has undertaken. Is not there a better way than this? Is it not better to so arrange matters that a dispute shall not arise at all?"

Lord Lansdowne then referred to the Anglo-French arbitration and said he hoped it would be adopted by a large majority of the Chamber of Deputies and that it would be effective in removing dangerous and difficult questions from international controversy. He saw something of this in the assistance Great Britain had received during the last few days from the French Government in bringing about an amicable settlement between Great Britain and Russia.

AN OBJECT LESSON IN A RESTAURANT.

A physician puts the query—Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables, men whose ages run from sixty to eighty years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile? Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something.

If you will notice what these hearty fellows are eating, you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored. The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers. There is a certain class of food, or cranks who seem to believe that meat and coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantity, any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydro-chloric acid, diastase and nux.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly and thus giving the stomach a much needed rest and an appetite for the next meal. Of people who travel, nine of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the travelling public for years have planned their faith to Stuart's Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized packages and any druggist from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

A man's idea of the future is that of a rest from toil and responsibility.

MARTIN MURDER CASE.

Testimony Taken At the Criminal Assize Court At Toronto After They Had Pleaded Not Guilty.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—The trial of Alexander Martin and his wife, Ethel, was commenced in the Criminal Assize Court yesterday, before Chief Justice Falconbridge. They are charged with having murdered their infant child on Aug. 3, last. William Proudfoot, K.C., is Crown prosecutor; T. C. Robinette, K.C., is appearing for Mrs. Martin, and A. R. Hassard for the husband. Both prisoners pleaded "not guilty."

The Court adjourned at 5 p.m., and the jurors were locked up over night. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Forbes, 208 West Richmond street, testified that the prisoners under the name of Johnson, engaged a room for a week on Aug. 2 last. They had a child with them. On Aug. 3 they went out with the child and returned the same evening without it. Mrs. Martin said she had left the child in Port Hope with its grandmother.

Mrs. Butler told of her seeing them on a King street car on Aug. 3. They got off at Munro Park and walked towards the lake. Henry Noakes, caretaker of Hicks' bathhouse, identified the prisoners as a man and woman to whom he had rented a boat on Aug. 3.

Richard Clark, who was out sailing on Aug. 3, testified that he saw a rowboat about five miles from the shore, and about a quarter of a mile distant from him. There was a man and woman in the boat. While watching the boat and its occupants the man ceased rowing, picked up something and made motions as if knocking or shaking something and then threw it into the lake. He could not distinguish the object. The man resumed rowing, heading west and then turning towards the island.

Mrs. Winnie Ward said she saw a man and woman pulling a row-boat up on the beach on Aug. 3. She could not identify the prisoners.

Mrs. Clara Ward saw a man and woman walking west on the breakwater, but could not say whether they were the prisoners. Mrs. W. Williamsen, who came over from the island on the "Kathleen," positively identified the prisoners as a man and woman she had seen on the boat. She noticed them particularly, on account of the woman's nervous and dejected appearance. She was holding the man's hand and appeared to have been crying.

This is as far as the Crown prosecutor got. The case will be resumed at 10 a.m. to-day.

CULINARY HINTS.

Potatoes will bake more rapidly if a pan of water is put into the oven with them.

Coarse salt and vinegar will clean enameled ware that has been burned or discolored.

No odor from onions will pervade the house, if it is said, if a generous piece of stale bread is cooked with them.

A nut pick kept on the kitchen table is the most convenient utensil for removing the paper cover from the milk bottles.

Never use newspapers to wrap about anything edible. It is economy to have a supply of paraffin paper always on hand.

Contracted Bad Cold. Doctor Said, Serious!

Wanted To Send Him Three Hundred Miles To The Winnipeg Hospital.

Bottle and a Half of

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup
Cured.

Read what Mrs. A. G. Wheeler, Waseca, Minn., has to say about it:—"Please let me thank you for the great good that both my husband and my children have received from Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. One night when my husband came home from work he had contracted a very bad cold. He became so bad that he had to go to bed and send for the doctor. When the doctor came he pronounced it a very serious case, and wanted me to send him to the Winnipeg Hospital. This I would not do, as it is about 600 miles to Winnipeg. I decided to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and got four bottles of it. He only took one and a half bottles before he was all right again and only lost a few days' work. I always keep it in the house for the children. Even the baby, seven months old, takes it and seems to like it, and as for myself I do not know what I would do without it. I think that every good housekeeper should keep a bottle on hand, for I know it will save many a doctor bill."

Price 25 cents. Put up in a yellow wrapper and three pine trees the trade mark. Refuse substitutes.
