The Ideal City.

What makes the city great and strong?
Not architecture's graceful strength,
Not factories extended length,
But men who see the civil wrong.
And give their lives to make it right,
And turns its darkness into light.

What makes a city full of power?
Not wealth's display nor titled fame,
Not fashion's loudly boasted claim,
But women, rich in virtue's dower,
Whose homes, though humble, still are great
Because of service to the State.

What makes a city men can love?
Not things that charm the outward sense,
Not gross display of opulence,
But right, that wrong can not remove,
And truth that faces civic fraud,
And smites it in the name of God.

This is the city that shall stand,
A light upon a nation's hill,
A voice that evil cannot still,
A source of blessing to the land;
Its strength not brick, nor stone nor wood,
But Justice, Love and Brotherhood.

British Public Men.

It seems to be settled that when the South African business is over Lord Salisbury will retire. He is worn, broken and weary, as well he may be, considering what a burden he has borne, and of late without domestic solace. A prime minister ought not to hold a department; he ought to be free to overlook and control all the departments without being weighed with the details of any one of them. Had Lord Salisbury been free to overlook and control the conduct of the Colonial office we should never have had the South African war. He will retire with the reputation of an honorable, wise, and highly-instructed statesman, wanting only a little more strength and firmness to place him in the highest ranks. He is still an aristocrat, and probably he adheres to the belief that hereditary aristocracy is the providential antidote to democratic vulgarity and excess. He still ranks as a High Churchman. But his High Churchmanship is supposed to have been modified by his scientific pursuits, while his toryism has of late been so far blended with something like socialism as to cause hardshell Tories serious qualms.

There can be little doubt that his successor will be the Duke of Devonshire, a man generally respected and worthy of special admiration as having, at the call of the country, given up the life of pleasure to which in his youth he was addicted, and to which high rank and ample fortune tempted him, for one of hard work in the public service. Mr Chamberlain is the Duke's superior, as he is the superior of most men in ability, especially in ability as a speaker; but Conservatives have not forgotten that he once flew the kite of socialistic Radicalism and warned property that it must pay a ransom for its existence. In face of such antecedents, confidence is a plant of slow growth, in the Tory, as it has been said to be in the aged, bosom. If you ask a Conservative why Mr Balfour, the leader of the House of Commons, should not succeed to the Premiership, he will have some difficulty in giving you his reasons; but they seem to amount to this, that Mr Balfour, though extremely clever, is rather too light a weight. The report that Lord Rosebery will be foreign minister in the reconstructed government is likely enough, so far as his tastes and aptitudes are concerned. Nor is there anything in his opinions to stand in the way, unless it be that he fails to appreciate the liveliness of the House of Lords. Even in this direction he has shown no serious tendency toward revolution. The leap from the leadership of one party to office with another is rather wide, but these are sensational days.—Toronto Weekly Sun.

A Little Too Hot.

Little Janet, aged 4, noticed the other day at dinner the rest of the family helping themselves liberally to the mustard. Nobody offering her any, she waited until somebody drew away the attention of the others, when she lifted the mustard spoon, literally daubed a piece of bread with it and took a great bite. Her hand immediately went up to her burned mouth; but bravely suppressing an outcry, she put the bread away from her, remarking, "I think I'll wait till that jelly gets cold."

Have You Thought of it?

For four thousand years or more the world groaned, suffered, and fumed about its corns, for there was no positive relief—no certain and painless cure until Dr. Scott Putnam gave to the world his great Corn Extractor. If there is suffering now it is a result of carelessness, for the remedy is at hand Try Putnam's Corn Extractor. It is sure, painless and prompt. Beware of substitutes. N. C. Polson & Co., proprietors, Kingston.

A short time ago an old lady went on board Nelson's flagship, the Victory. The different objects of interest were duly shown to her, and on reaching the spot where the great naval hero was wounded (which is marked by a raised brass plate) the officer remarked:

"Here Nelson fell!"

"And no wonder!" exclaimed the old lady. "I nearly fell there myself."

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc

It was on the street car. "Ouch! You clumsy!" And the pretty young lady glowered at the big man with a tin pail who had trod upon her pet corn.

"Pardon me, miss. If your foot had been large enough to see in a poor light, I would have avoided it." Then she smiled and crowded along to make room for him, he looked so tired.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia.

"Jack," said his old college chum, "your wife seems to be one of those women who are bound to have the last word."

"I wouldn't mind that so much, for it seems due the weaker sex, but what riles me so is that she's equally bound to have 95 per cent. of the conversation that precedes."

He loved her for her wondrous hair,
So marvelously rich,
But when he saw it on a chair,
Love's train of thought, just then and there,
Was wrecked by a misplaced switch.

About Writing Letters.

A correspondent should keep in mind the following rules:

Business letters must be concise and clear, because business people are supposed to be busy.

No letter is complete without the date.

In writing to solicit employment of any kind on no account should personal perplexities or needs be mentioned. The world is full of unfortunate persons, and to a stranger the troubles of one are no more than those of a host of others.

Letters of introduction are left open when written.

Elaborately ornamented note paper and highly perfumed notes are vulgar.

When answering letters, remember:

That written words stand as everlasting witnesses.

That an ambiguous sentence is likely to be misinterpreted.

That friendly words never harm.

That a written word of sympathy can sometimes do much good.

That a letter written in a kindly spirit should be answered in the same way, even though the message is disliked.

That business letters and invitations must be answered at once.

That one should acknowledge any friendly offer of hopitality, even if it be not by acceptance.

The Crowning Production Of a Great Physician.

Paine's Celery Compound

The Great Life Renewer and Health Giver.

A Noted Physician's Opinion.

Paine's Celery Compound was the crowning production of America's most eminent physician—Professor E. E Phelps, M. D.

Such a physician could only give what was worthy of his great and elevated character to suffering humanity. His best hours were devoted to the perfecting of what is now known in millions of homes in Britain, Europe and on this continent as Paine's Celery Compound, nature's food medicine for the nerves, brain and blood.

After our long winter and late spring a host of people of every age have been left in a weak, languid and depressed condition of health. The nerves are unstrung, the body is emaciated, the blood is stagnant and impure, digestion is faulty and constipation is doing its deadly work.

Your safety, health and future physical happiness demand the immediate use of Paine's Celery Compound, whose marvellous virtues are recognized by our ablest physicians, many of whom make personal use of it in their homes. Dr A. W. K. Newton, writing to the proprietors of Paine's Celery Compound, says:

"The formula of Paine's Celery Compound led me to give it a personal trial and I was much pleased with the result. I prescribe it for men and women who have no appetite, cannot sleep, and for the weak and rundown. For this condition, and for disorders of the blood and nerves, it has no equal. It is the best possible remedy to keep one's strength and energy during the spring and summer months."

"I'm going to get married," he said, as he placed a hand as large as a Dutch cheese upon the counter, "and I want a wedding cake."

"It is customary, now," said the confectioner's pretty assistant, "to have the materials of the cake harmonize with the calling of the bridegroom. For a musician, now, we have an oatcake; for a man who has no calling, and lives upon his friends, the sponge cake; for a newspaper paragrapher, spice cake, and so on. What is your calling, please?"

"I'm a pugilist."

"Then you'll want a pound cake."

Two hundred literary women were assembled at dinner the other day in London, and the following was overheard by a correspondent of the 'Outlook':—As the extremely well dressed crowd surged and swayed round the platform, a young woman ventured to remark to one of the 'old hands' upon the exceedingly prosperous appearance of some of the literary women. 'Bless you,' was the quick response "that is not literature—it is husband."

Dear Sirs,—MINARD'S LINIMENT is my remedy for colds, etc. It is the best liniment I have ever used.

MRS JOSIAH HART.

A newly placed minister was at dinner with one of his parishioners, who had none of the polish of society about him, and spoke his mind bluntly. The minister came from the city, and was telling some of his experiences. 'But," he observed, "if I were to tell you some of my most remarkable adventures I'm afraid you would doubt my word."

"Nae fear o' that, sir," replied the farmer heartily, "we dinna ken ye weel enench yet."

Johnny (who is jealous of mamma)—Mamma likes me better than she does you.

Evelyn (who enjoys teasing)—Why, no, Johnny; of course she loves Betty and me best! Just think, she was our mother long before she was yours.

Johnny (scornfully)—Huh! What of that! You are nothing but a sample copy, anyhow! and Betty's only a trial subscription! But I'm the real thing!

Almost without exception all great London physicians and all great surgeons are in favor of total abstinence. Some surgeons will not undertake to perform operations upon persons who have been addicted to drink; they value their reputation too highly to risk failure.

A remarkable paper was presented at the International Temperance Conference in Paris, by General Gallieni, the Governor of Madagascar, whose name has been so prominently before the public since France took possession of Madagascar. General Gallieni has seen service in many parts of the world—in the Soudan, Tonquin, and Senegal, as well as in Madagascar. He gives most emphatic testimony to the evils resulting from the use of alcohol in the tropics. It is a personal testimony he gives, beginning in the midst of a very difficult campaign in the Soudan where he was seriously ill, when he gave up completely the use of wine, beer, spirits, etc, and took nothing but water. Since that time, during twelve years in the midst of trying campaigns, he has been in the best of health. He says: "I have never drunk anything but water, and not filtered water or boiled water; no, but the water found within reach—in the Soudan, water often proceeding from a marshy stream and having an unpleasant odour,—at Tonquin, water from the rice swamps, from the marshes encountered in the course of our operations,—at Madagascar, the water from Tananarive and other localities, which, moreover, are considered bad I do not mean by this that I would recommend bad water; but what I would say is simply this, far better bad water than any sort of alcoholic liquor." The testimony General Gallieni reinforces by many facts which he adduces from several countries, especially from Madagascar.

Notes from the Great Conference.

The work of women in the extension of the blessings of civilization and Christianity was well shown forth at various great gatherings by accomplished women who have given their lives to the cause. The clearness and force with which these women spoke were wonderful. They know their purposes, they know their plans, and heart and intellect are in the service. India, China, Siam, Turkey, and other fields were represented. Of the earnestness, the sagacity, the devotion of the women missionaries there can be no doubt. "Woman's Work for Woman" in the foreign field has really doubled the force of the great Christian invasion of heathendom.

These women understand the principles of education and of Christian training; and these principles they are carefully carrying into effect. What a blank there would have been in our own mission- had not our missionaries been blessed with good wives, and had not other devoted ladies gone into the field as teachers and as physicians and zenana workers.

It is stated as the result of careful inquiry that the bulk of money for the support of missions comes from the middle and poorer classes. A large amount of wealth refuses to yield directly anything to advance the kingdom of God.

One of the most events I heard from a Hindu lady was to this effect: The lady is herself principal of a college in Lucknow. She was reading with a pupil a chapter of Dr. George Smith's Life of Dr. Duff. The pupil was a daughter of one of Dr Duff's converts. In the chapter read Dr. Smith explains how Duff, one of the foremost graduates of a Scotch University, devoted himself to teaching Hindu boys in Calcutta their letters. The girl's feelings were deeply moved by the self sacrifice of the great man. She sobbed aloud and confessed that her own aim in desiring an education had been to gain selfish ends. She felt the sinful lowness of her aim, and then and there devoted herself to Christ and Christ's work to be and to do what ever He should indicate. This pupil is now a devoted medical missionary doing excellent service. Thus Dr. Duff's influence continues in how many ways, who can tell?—P. Witness.

The Girls that are Wanted.

The girls that are wanted are good girls—
Good from the heart to the lips;
Pure as the lily is white and pure
From its heart to its sweet leaf-tips.
Girls that are fair on the hearthstone,
Ready and anxious to please,
Kind and sweet to their own folks,
And pleasant when nobody sees.

Bad Reading.

A little fellow sat reading a book when he saw his father coming. He put the book out of sight and stood up in great confusion, waiting for his father to pass by. Now, I didn't like that; and I herewith advise that boy, and all other boys, never to read anything they are ashamed of. Open every page you read, full and free, in God's light and presence, as you must; and if it is not fit to be opened so, do not read it at all. Bad reading is a deadly poison. It is far worse to kill the soul than to kill the body. In my opinion, parents are not half watchful enough in this matter.—Union Signal.

Cigarettes.

By an Imperial edict Louis Napoleon put out thirty thousand pipes in Paris in one day. Professor Willis Moore by a recent scratch of his pen has prohibited cigarette smoking among all members of the weather bureau throughout the country. After thorough study and observation he has decided that the use of cigarettes seriously incapacitates the victims of the habit from performing their best work for the government. Prof. Moore acts in this matter merely as an employer of men, but the physician or the moralist could not go straighter to the mark than he has gone.—The Youth's Companion

HOW RELIEF CAME.

A WELLAND COUNTY MAN'S INTERESTING EXPERIFNCE.

He Had Suffered for Years from Kidney Trouble—Many Medicines Were Tried, but Failed—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Saved Him.

Mr James Upper, of Allenburg, is a gentleman well known in Welland county. Mr Upper was proprietor of the village hotel for over thirty years, and no better landlord ever catered to a traveller's wants. Mr Upper's acquaintance also extends over Ontario as a sequel to his prominence in Orange and Masonic circles. His present vocation is farming and in this calling he has been very successful. Mr Upper has been a sufferer for years from kidney trouble and began to think that good health had altogether passed him by; but the time came when he found a complete cure and is again strong, happy and vigorous. In regard to Mr Upper's sickness and cure he says: "In December of 1897 I was prostrated with a severe form of kidney trouble. Previous to this I was slightly afflicted in the same way, but at this time matters came to a climax as the result of exposure and over-exertion. To say that I suffered does not express it; the pains in my back were terrible I gradually grew worse and was compelled to keep my bed and for months I existed as though in a hideous dream. I had considerable nausea and loathing for food, was greatly reduced in flesh. The pain daily grew more intolerable, I got little sleep; was left weak and exhausted, and despaired of getting well. Different remedies were tried without benefit. Finally I was persuaded to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and procured six boxes. This was about March 1st, 1898. I took the pills faithfully and at the end of two months I felt well again and able to attend to my work. The following autumn I experienced a slight recurrence of the trouble and again used a few boxes of the pills and now consider my cure complete, as a year has since passed and I have not experienced a pain or ache. I am now able to follow farming pursuits with perfect ease. My wife also speaks as warmly in favor of Dr. Williams Pink Pills as I do, having used them for headache, dizziness and loss of appetite. the pills always give comfort and relief. Since my illness I have learned that a good remedy is none the less good because its cost was so much less than I expected."

The Lawn.

There is nothing so attractive around a place as a good lawn. In order to have such a lawn the ground must be thoroughly worked up and enriched. It is impossible to form a good lawn by simply ploughing up a piece of worn-out land and seeding it down to grass. Plough deeply and thoroughly work in a good dressing of well-rotted stable manure, then harrow and grade off the land so as to make it as even as possible for seeding. A mixture has been tried of 5 pounds of Kentucky Blue Grass to 1 pound of White Clover, sown at the rate of 5 bushels per acre, which has made a good lawn. Another mixture for lawn seeding that has given good results is 2 pounds of White Clover to a bushel of half and half Red Top and Blue Grass at the rate of 5 bushels per acre. The Red Top stands drought better than the Blue Grass, but if the land is inclined to be wet or shaded, the first-named mixture would probably give the best satisfaction. If not sown thickly, the Red Top is liable to grow bunchy and make an uneven lawn. The seed should be sown carefully so that a good even growth will be obtained. The best way to cover the seed is to scatter with a sieve fine, rich earth over it; should it be raked in the greatest care is necessary to get it covered evenly, after which roll the lawn thoroughly. The best time to prepare a lawn is in the spring and it will require little attention again that season to keep down any weeds that may grow.

Old Materials Profitably Used.

DIAMOND DYES

Are the Favorites of all Mat and Rug Makers.

Mrs P. L Stanhope, of Victoria B. C., writes thus:

"I recently discovered that I had sufficient old materials such as flannel, cloth, yarns and discarded underwear stowed away from which I could make a couple of fair sized rugs for the floor. I sent to Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal, for two of their handsome rug designs. After they were received, I washed my old materials and colored them with Diamond Dyes to match the shades in the rug patterns. I hooked the two rugs, and they are so handsome that all my friends admire them. The Diamond Dyes are, I think, the best and most reliable for home dyeing. I certainly recommend them to all who make mats and rugs."

"Your honor," said the attorney, "this man's insanity takes the form of a belief that every one wants to rob him. He won't even let me, his counsel, approach him."

"Maybe he's not so crazy, after all," murmured the court, in a judicial whisper.
