Mr. Howard, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Cayuga. Rev. J. C. Symonds, of James Street Baptist Church, officiated, assisted by Rev. H. B. Ketchum, of MacNab Street Presbyterian Church, who was a classmate of Mr. Howard. Miss Georgie Stafford, city, was maid of honor, and Misses Grace Hartwell, of Madison, Ohio, and Reba Galloway, of Burlington, were bridesmaids. About seventy guests were present, all relatives of the contracting parties, or intimate friends. The Ladies' Aid Society of the Cayuga church presented Mr. Howard with a purse of gold. The staff of the Hamilton Conservatory of Music presented Miss Awrey with a beautiful china cabinet. Her music class gave her a cut glass berry bowl, with a mirror on silver pedestal, for the centre of a table. The Hamilton Reform Association, giving her a handsome silver tea service. She also received a bedroom suite and a number of handsome chairs.

The Burlington Methodist Church, of which Miss Awrey was choir leader, presented her with a handsome onyx clock, with bronze figure.

The bride and groom stood at the head of the altar, in front of the deep bay window, which was turned into a green bower with ferns and vines. The long aisle was draped with green vines, and on the walls were bouquets of daisies and pots of ferns.

In all the roomy rooms of daisy chairs were stationed from the gossamers to the edge of the ceiling, forming a daisy canopy. Instead of the orthodox ribbons to form an aisle for the bride, rows of large daisies were used. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Isaac, supported by his brother, Mr. Charles Jones. After the ceremony the guests proceeded to the bride's home, where a rich wedding repast was served.
