SMALL-POX AT ST. JOHN'S.—Seven new cases of small-pox were reported from St. Croix Friday morning. This makes ten cases altogether there. There has evidently been serious mismanagement. Great excitement prevails in the border town, and the inhabitants are endeavoring to get away. It is seriously proposed to quarantine the whole locality.

SUBJECT FIRE.—Mr. Michael Brannan's house on the corner of Brunswick and Regent streets was found to be on fire about 8 o'clock Tuesday morning under the shingles and a few inches above the ground. Only a small hole was burned, and the incipient blaze was easily extinguished. It is thought to be the result of accident on the part of children playing around there with matches.

GRAND LODGE, L. O. A.—The Grand Lodge, L. O. A. the annual session of which is in St. John closed Thursday, was largely attended. Grand Master Wilson, of Fredericton, presided, and the following were the other delegates from York County—William V. Higgins, George Howard, Thomas Prescott, John H. Merrill, A. G. Robinson, Edward Brown, D. K. White, and H. L. Cameron.

The ladies of the Baptist Church and congregation intend holding a vocal and instrumental concert in the City Hall on Thursday the 20th instant, in aid of the building fund of the church. Sheriff Temple is absent on another visit to Winnipeg.

BAPTIST TEA MEETING.—The Tea Meeting held in the Temperance Hall Thursday night, in aid of Baptist Church building fund, was a complete success. The Hall was crowded the whole evening by a gathering representing every church in the city. Tea was put upon the tables at 6:30, and it was half-past 9 before the last of those present had partaken of it. The bill of fare was excellent, and although the confusion incident to so great a crowd interfered somewhat with the work of those attending upon the tables, every one enjoyed themselves. A literary and musical programme had been prepared, but had to be omitted. The Rev. Mr. Crawley, however, read Longfellow's "Not bed-time yet" and the Rev. Messrs. Evans and McLeod made short addresses. The receipts were about $250.

THE RAILWAY MAN AND THE MISSIONARY.—Two young and aspiring railroad men, were placed on the retired list owing to the consolidation of Gould's Southwestern roads, expressed themselves rather emphatically, and in language that shocked the feelings of a missionary who was sitting close by listening to the remarks. He stood it as long as he could, but finally he lost his patience and walked up to the two young railroad men and reprimanded them for using such profane language.

"You ought to know," he said in conclusion, "that there are but two roads, one leading to Hell and Damnation and the other to Joy and Salvation; now which one would you rather take?"

"Well," replied one of the railroad men, after getting over his surprise in being thus addressed, "I don't think I'll take either, for it is ten to one that the two roads will fall into the hands of Gould and be consolidated before I get there."

The missionary made no further efforts to convert the heathen, and left disgusted.

Twice Married. ANOTHER BIGAMY CASE

The Troubles of John Bennett and his Two Wives.

Fredericton has now another sensation similar to that which created such a furor but a short time ago in the shape of the Oliver bigamy case, and if the present instance of a man with two wives does not raise such a sensation and cause such general and wide-spread comment in social circles in this the Celestial City as the former did, it is only because the social positions of the parties concerned in the last do not quite run in parallel lines with those of the former. About the only thing that has at all convulsed society, so to speak, to any appreciable extent since January last, has been the ex cathedra utterances of a prominent divine on the marriage laws, and the inferences that were fairly to be drawn from certain of his utterances thereon. It would seem, however, to be much more to the point if, instead of considering probable results arising out of marriages with a deceased wife's sister, or the effect of legislation to legalize the same, the churches from which emanate nearly all the influences which elevate and ennoble mankind morally, would set afloat or spread abroad among the great masses of mankind some moral force or power that would restrain men from taking unto themselves one wife more than the law of God and man allow. The frequent occurrence of cases of bigamy in provincial society cannot have, to say the least, a very beneficial effect on the minds of the masses with respect to the law of marriage, even if it does not affect them very materially for the worse; and any one glancing back at the record of the present year will see that New Brunswick has had a very large percentage of bigamists in that time.

But it is not with the past but the present we have to do, and it is a bigamy case. John Bennett is a Halifax young man. His father was a soldier, and John is a carpenter, but it would seem from after events that he was a "man with a mission," like Grosvenor in "Patience," in that the love-sick maidens sighed for him. It is not known whether there were "twenty love-sick maidens" or not, but at any rate two of them got him, (although there is no saying to what length he might have gone if he had had time and opportunity) and that's where the trouble began. In the case of this mission John came to St. John, N. B., and being "a steady, a stolid" sort of young man followed the even tenor of his trade until he met with Mary Jane Jones. Mary Jane was not an aesthetic milk-maid sort of young lady, but she was the daughter of William Jones, of Lancaster, St. John, and she inspired John with an utterly unselfish love. On the first day of July last they were united in the bonds of holy matrimony by the Rev. Geo. A. Hartley of the Free Christian Baptist Church, Carleton, St. John. They lived together until the following summer, when he got out of work, and John, utterly unconscious of the fact, he was proceeding on his mission, came to Fredericton in quest of employment. He was engaged as hostler at Gunter & Atherton's mill on Westmoreland street.

The while he was here the carrier on his mission and protested the utter unselfishness of his love for Mary Jane. To prove its utter unselfishness he also took to wife to share that love one Elizabeth Mead, of the city of Fredericton, on the 12th day of December last the twain were made one by the Rev. A. J. Mowatt, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Then it was that Nemesis pursued him. Due announcement was made in the papers of the consummation of utterly unselfish love, and it came beneath the notice of the slighted Mary Jane. It is said that the torrid zone had no fury like a woman scorned, and Mary Jane, refusing to consider the matter in the light of utterly unselfish love in which John had looked at it, put herself in communication with the authorities here about the time Oliver's bigamy case was going on, and learning that the information must be laid here, followed John like an unrelenting Nemesis. That is to say she arrived in Fredericton by this morning's train, accompanied by her mother, and proceeding to the police office, her maternal relative, Mrs. Eliza Jones, who was also, it would seem, incapable by reason of nature or early training of comprehending where the utterly unselfish love came in in this case, laid information of the fact of bigamy against the man with a mission. Meanwhile John was delightfully unconscious that the hand of Nemesis was about to stretch out and tear from him the last result of an utterly unselfish love. He had left Messrs. Gunter & Atherton's employ and has lately been working over the river in Jeffrey's factory, and he has been living there with wife No. 2. He went driving with her this morning, and in the meantime, while he was enjoying a drive with her and reveling in unconscious bliss in the enjoyment of his utterly unselfish love, two deputy nemesises in the shape of Sergeant Woodward and Policeman Christie were on his track armed with a warrant for his arrest formidable in its legal technicalities of whereas and heretofore, to-wit, etc. But John was not at home over the river when they called, having gone driving, and following his track closely they caught him in Patrick McGinn's Carriage factory on King street. His dream of utterly unselfish love was over, and he who had refused to play the long rubber of conjugal life with one unselfish wife, was dragged into the Police Court, and there confronted with the slighted Mary Jane and her indignant mamma. He was recognized by both, and became lost in his demands for witnesses to prove all kinds of nasty things, but he was locked up pending the due course of law, and his mission was ended. The Rev. Mr. Hartley arrived from St. John also, and the preliminary examination proceeded this afternoon.

The preliminary examination began at 3 o'clock, before the Police Magistrate. Bennett carried himself with a good deal of bravado, saying to the Herald representative that he was "rightly fast enough." At the examination were the Rev. Messrs. Hartley and Mowatt, who performed the first and second marriages—Mrs. Eliza Jones, the prosecutrix, was the first witness called. Being sworn, she said—"I reside in Lancaster, St. John. Am wife of William Jones. Prisoner admits—I know them both 4—well."

Witness resumed—He was married to a daughter of mine, Mary Jane Jones, July 1st, 1880, by Rev. G. A. Hartley. Mr. Hartley is a minister of the Free Christian Baptist Church. My daughter was a single woman at the time. (Mr. Bennett No. 1 then came into Court). The witness said: This is my daughter. After the marriage they lived together as man and wife at my house at first, and afterwards went to housekeeping there. I don't remember how long. They lived at Fairville. An quite positive the prisoner is the man. Elizabeth Campbell, William Best, and my husband, myself and family were present at the marriage.

The prisoner declined to cross-examine. Rev. G. A. Hartley swore: I am a minister of the Free Christian Baptist Church. I reside at Carleton, St. John. Have charge of a congregation there. I know the prisoner. I know Mary Jane Bennett, now in Court. I solemnized the ceremony between them on the first of July, 1880. I married her by the name of Jane Jones, being the name in the license, but she knew me as Mrs. Mary Jane Jones. This is the license.

The prisoner declined to cross-examine, but asked the Herald representative to say that he did not own the woman as his wife, and would not have anything to do with the marriage. I have no recollection of the case. Elizabeth Mead and her mother were present. Mrs. Mowatt was present at a young man and a young woman were present. I married the prisoner to Elizabeth Mead by license. (License produced.) If gave the usual certificate.

The prisoner being duly cautioned by the Police Magistrate, and asked if he had anything to say, said he did not wish to make any statement. The prisoner was therefore committed to goal, to await his trial at the County Court.

The Prisoner—"I will be allowed to speak there I suppose."

The Magistrate—"You will be governed there by the Judge of that Court."

Bennett is a tall young fellow, with a slight moustache. He is by no means bad looking. His father was Sergeant Bennett of the 6th Regiment, and was well known here.

Mrs. Bennett, No. 1, is medium sized, and rather inferior looking. Bennett admits his guilt, but says that he was justified in treating the marriage as void, on account of the infidelity of his wife.

WOODSTOCK NOTES.

WOODSTOCK, Mar. 16.

LYONS.—Rev. W. W. Wheeler's lecture on Monday evening on "The Sunny-side of Life," given in connection with the Odd Fellows' course was very highly appreciated. The hall was well filled and the lectures well received. He is by no means bad looking, delivered in excellent voice and lively manner.

Rev. John Read, of St. John, will lecture here for the Methodist Aid Society about the 27th.

Inspector W. G. Gattico is to give a lecture at Florenceville the 24th inst. He has chosen for his subject "Canada." His admitted talent as a lecturer is an assurance that his address will be an able one.

HEAR.—An 8-year-old son of John Donohue was seriously injured on the street Tuesday evening. He was run over by a sled so heavily laden that three horses were required to draw the load, one leg which the runner of the sled passed over was cruelly crushed. Dr. N. R. Colter rendered surgical aid.

The Presbyterian supper in the hall last evening netted $130 to help pay off the mass debt.

NEW CHURCH AT WOODSTOCK.—The plans and specifications for the new church in Woodstock, prepared by Mr. D. E. Dunham, show, it is said, that the new edifice will be one of the handsomest buildings in the town. Tenders for the construction have been asked for, and the work will begin in a few weeks and be rapidly pushed forward to completion.—Telegraph.

FOR MONTANA.—Some seventy persons have declared their intention to go to Montana this spring. One or two passenger cars will have the depot of the N. B. & Canada Railway on or about the 2nd day of May. Arrangements have been made to take the company clear through to Butte City, Montana. It will form a colony from Woodstock and vicinity.—Woodstock Cor. Telegraph.

A joker on a railroad train near Louisville kicked a young man in his sleep and made some of the passengers laugh, others indignant. Finally the joker woke him up and he caught the young man in the act. A sad expression passed over the young man's face as he said, "I've been travelling night and day from Chicago since Monday morning, to get home in season to see my mother, who is dying, and I've been so anxious for fear I sleep till just now, when I am so near home." His voice broke down in a suppressed sob. The practical joker got up, his face suffused with shame, and went into another car to hide his confusion. The sorrowing young man, stretching himself out for another nap, remarked, "I guess that damned galoot will let me alone for a few minutes."

Fire in Woodstock.

(Special to THE HERALD.)

WOODSTOCK, March 18.

A fire broke out last night in the barn of the Queen Hotel, formerly the Gibson House. A heavy northerly wind blew large fires over the buildings south and west of the city. Several roofs caught fire and but for the snow on many of them a general conflagration would have ensued. The combustible nature of the barn caused an immense blaze. The engine soon had two streams of water on the fire, but not until the stable of the Goulin House in the rear was in flames. The firemen had not played on the burning buildings long before they had the fire under control, though at one time very grave fears were entertained of its spreading.

The safety of an immense amount of property was entirely due to the energy of the firemen.

Mr. Campbell, of the Queen Hotel, lost a few coats and a hat worth $100.

In all damage to the barns is about $1,000. Insured in the Atlas, Imperial, Canada Fire, and North British and Mercantile Insurance Companies.

Last evening a splendid horse belonging to George Caldwell ran away and on going across the bridge to Graffon the animal jumped through where the flooring had been taken up in repairing the bridge, and was killed.

J. A. Thompson's horse ran away this morning and dashed into a window of R. Lynch's store, causing great excitement.

Millikens Bend and rescued stock, but many animals were so far gone by starvation that they have since died. Steamer "Belle," of Memphis, has taken to St. Louis about 250 passengers including many negroes.

Dominion Parliament.

A BUDGET OF NEWS—ELECTION PROSPECTS.

(Special to THE HERALD.)

OTTAWA, Mar. 20.

The Conservative Convention of Lennox nominated Sir John as the candidate for that County for the Commons. It is not expected that he will accept. The Convention was troubled with too many candidates and could not agree on any other. His Excellency visited St. Patrick's Orphan Asylum on St. Patrick's Day, accompanied by Lady Balfour, and before leaving presented the institution with a cheque for $100.

The Parliament Buildings were nearly deserted on Saturday. About one hundred members and Senators, with twenty newspaper men, went by special train to Kingston to visit the Military College. They returned on Sunday.

General disgust is expressed at the slow progress of public business. The estimates are not passed, and as yet only one Government measure is before the Commons and that, the civil service bill, it is understood, will not be passed. The session will no doubt last till May.

It is thought complications at Quebec, unless speedily settled, may compel the Dominion Government to reconsider its decision to hold the elections next summer. Governor Robitaille has been over Sunday endeavoring to get political help for Chapeau. The latter is sick in bed. The Postmaster of Ottawa will not be filled till the close of the session, when Currier, M. P., will be appointed.

John Livingston, of the St. John Sun, is here.

The Rival Oarsmen.

LONDON, March 20.

Great crowds greeted Hanlan on his arrival at Newcastle. He was aloft on the tower and yesterday afternoon and they shook hands most cordially.

A Protest.

(Special to THE HERALD.)

NEW YORK, March 20.

A mass meeting of Trade and Laborers Unions here yesterday adopted resolution denouncing Minister Lowell for his cowardice towards imprisoned Americans in Ireland, and requesting President Arthur to remove him.

THE FANCY STOCKINGS WHICH CAUSED A SENSATION.—On the occasion of the recent masquerade ball in Carson a lady of that place wore a very handsome pair of stockings. They were of the aesthetic order, being to all appearances embroidered with lilies, forget-me-nots and daisies. Not the least admired portion of them was the extraordinarily perfect and very neat fitting of the articles. All attempts on the part of the ladies to find out where they are purchased were met with evasive answers. The fair and shapely masquerader would not divulge the name of her loom. To a plump deacon, whose shining head in a lovely skating rink for frolicsome flies in summer time, is due the discovery of the ladies' secret. It is said the bald head spoken of was made wiser by the transfer of one of the daisies to his hand. The secret was a secret no longer. An artist had been employed to enhance Nature's beauty, and the painting—it was on a velvet surface that was neither silk, nor satin nor on any of the material found in stores where hosiery is for sale—was most excellently done.—Gold Hill (Nev.) News.

THE DIOSCOP.—By the aid of the dioscope, an ingenious instrument brought to public notice during the Parisian Electrical Congress, patrons of the drama will henceforth be able to see as well as hear their favorite operatic and histrionic artists, without moving a yard from home. The apparatus consists of a small "objective" lens, fixed in a position commanding the stage as some theatre, and connected by an electric wire with a diminutive white glass plate, which may be framed and set in the panel of a private drawing room, however distant from the playhouse in question. Total darkness having been obtained in the room furnished with a dioscope, a perfect picture of the stage, its scenery, actors, and so forth, faithful in color and absolutely reproducing the whole performance, will become visible upon the surface of the glass plate. Supplemented by a telephone communicating with the theatre, the dioscope will therefore enable its owner to spend his evenings at the opera in dressing gown and slippers, seated at home in an easy chair.

A SOCIAL QUESTION.—The social question involved between the Astors and Vanderbilts is serious as well as interesting. The St. Louis Republican thinks. The Astors got their money first by trading in furs. A hundred millions or so gained in this useful, if not elevating, traffic, the question naturally suggested itself to them whether there should not be some distinctions drawn even among tradespeople. A line must be drawn somewhere, and it was just as well to say that a ferryman's children shall not associate with a peltier's heirs. The point is well taken. Much sympathy is felt among the lower strata for the unhappy Vanderbilts.

HOW AMERICAN GIRLS KISS.

The Maine girl, tall and ruddy, kisses as though she were taking an impression in the chewing gum of her native State. The Massachusetts girl kisses in the Greek style, flavored with brown bread. The New York girl goes at it as if she were dabbling in a Wall street speculation. The Ohio girl is described as possessing the comprehensive qualities of the Ohio man—she wants all she can get and gets all she can. A Louisiana kiss is said to be like eating sugar-cane; while North Carolina girls stick like tar.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Postmaster is authorized to redeem Bill Stamps by giving parties pre-aiding them 95 cents in postage stamps for every dollar in Bill Stamps. This order holds good until June 30th.

His end was peace.
