The Suppression of Prcfanity

Our laws are very strict in pro venting people from fighting with each other either in public or in private. There are other things that ought to be prohibited with equa strictness, and two of them arepublic profanity, and public obscen ity. People are shocked when they see two men engaged in a fight or a public highway or street; and vet, there is less harm to morality in a group of men walking or stand ing on the street and uttering with obscene language. Fighting is stopped on view, and punishmet follows speedily; but public pro-fanity and indecency of language are winked at, too often laughed at. Again, there is that public nuisance. the drunken man, and that pest the half-drunk man. Father Paul carries the true Franciscan spirit, humility enhanced by frankness not in the least impaired by the consciousness of his hearers' rank and quality. A sermon of his on the duties of the hierarchy, full of warnings against pride and vailing error of belief regarding the worldliness, will long be remembered at the Vatican. In short, Father

Paul is exactly a man after Leo XIII.'s own heart. But it is rumored at the Vatican that the present course of Lenten sermons is the last that Father Paul will ever preach before the Pontifi and his Court, as Leo XIII. has decided to give the apostolic preacher's ability and piety s wider scope by promoting him to S.
