Notes on the Patriotic Tour.

The Meeting at Channel.

CHAPTER VII.

The next halt was Channel where one of the best meetings of the entire tour was held in the Parish Hall, and presided over by Magistrate Squarrey. On our arrival at Channel we found that there was not much keenness towards the movement, and many people seemed quite contented to assume a neutral position. From all that we could learn of the public feeling of Channel we came to the conclusion that the community was divided into three classes—those who were for us, and those who were directly against us, and those who were neutral. At first it seemed that a meeting would be in vain as to any direct results in the matter of volunteers; but there was one assurance given us by the Magistrate, and it was this, that if we would hold the meeting we would surely have a packed audience.

Our duty of course was to hold the meeting. The Magistrate having procured the hall, and with others having done his whole duty, the meeting was called for 8 p.m., and not only was the hall filled, but the large platform also had its share. Representatives of Church, State and Commerce supported the delegation, and whatever prejudices there may have been amongst some of the people before the meeting, it was very certain that they had come to listen, and that they were open to conviction. When the meeting opened one volunteer, in the person of Robert Kenmore, came to the platform, and we gave him a seat near the pipers. He was loudly applauded for his action. As the meeting continued interest became deeper and deeper, and conviction seemed stronger upon the people, and enthusiasm ran at its highest; and the final result was that at the close of the meeting the one volunteer of the opening had a dozen companions by his side, and the final total of it all was that sixteen names had been passed into Magistrate Squarrey.

We have said that on our arrival we found a certain amount of carelessness and indifference, but there are various causes in our outport life which contribute to these conditions. A good deal of it is misunderstanding; thus it was that when the meeting closed there was a better feeling, and England's attitude was more clearly understood, and some people who had been cold felt that the Nation's demands were just and worthy.

In speaking of the indifference which we noticed at several places, we wish it to be fully understood that it is not done in any spirit of fault-finding; but rather to show the public that there is in the minds of many people very grave misconceptions as to England's part in this war, and what it may mean to the Empire, and what it may mean to Newfoundland.

Whether it is that there has been a lack of patriotic training, or whether it be that we have so long enjoyed peace and protection that we think war cannot affect us; or whether it be that we have become superficial in our reading, and have permitted the trashy novel to supplant the page of history, may be somewhat difficult to decide; but we are certain, that we need to develop a better public spirit, and to bear in mind that the liberties and protection which Newfoundland has always enjoyed is due to English ships, and to the brave men who composed their crews. We feel somewhat strongly of this point, and we are inclined to think that the adoption of a daily lesson of five or ten minutes in our day schools, and even in our Sunday schools along these lines, would not be out of place. There has been serious neglect in this aspect of our public life, and it should be the duty of those in authority to give the matter some little consideration, and thereby create a deeper feeling of respect and loyalty to the common blessings which we all enjoy "neath the folds of the Union Jack."

REWARDED FOR KILLING BRITISH OFFICERS.

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Henry McKinnon, at a dinner in Manchester recently, related a story told to him by a relative whose company in the trenches was much troubled by a sniper. He was shot finally, and when his body was reached an order was found on him deputing him to snipe British officers. He had on his body particulars showing he had killed no fewer than 50 officers, and it was apparently a rule of the German War Office to reward him for each officer killed when the claim had been scrutinized and allowed. The sniper was required to state the exact position where the officer was killed, give particulars about his regiment, and so on, and no claim was allowed until it was tested by reference to casualty lists in the British newspapers. In the case of this particular sniper only 25 claims were allowed, for each of which he had received a reward of fifty marks ($12.50).

Feildians Champions

Put up a stiff fight with St. Bon's last evening and won by five goals to four.

In last evening's hockey match with St. Bon's the Feildians came off victorious, advancing them two points in the League and entitling them to the championship.

The exhibition was the fastest and undoubtedly the most exciting for the season. As the score indicated, the game was about evenly contested, because although the Feildians were the superior hockeyists as a team, Higgins and Callahan easily made up for what the St. Bon's lacked by their individual rushes.

The Players.
St. Bon's goal: Feildians
Pewer goal: Strang
Crawford goal: Randall
Higgins cover: Jerrett
Callahan cover: White
Munn right: Munn
Barnes left: Jerrett
McKay centre: Payne
Referee—Mr. G. Herder.
Timekeepers—Messrs. Carmichael and Long.

THE GAME.

Both sides settled down to hard work at the very outset. Higgins made several fine runs but failed to beat Strang. The Feildians' forward line made a lively attack on the St. Bon's in whose territory play was confined for several minutes. Power proved a marvel in goal and saved many difficult shots. Callahan got away by himself and with a well directed shot stowed away the puck in the net of the Feildians goal.

Play then became very fast and exciting. The Feildians put forward all that was in them and soon equalized through White.

Just before the first period closed White repeated the trick for his side.

Second Period.
On resuming the St. Bon's appeared to show up better and had matters in their favour though their forward line did not show up well, nevertheless by a clever bit of stick handling Callahan again succeeded in beating Strang. The Feildians then combined but off-side frequently interrupted good play. White again took control and scored, followed by Callahan landing another. Payne then scored twice for the Feildians which put them two goals in the lead. Higgins swept the ice and notched up the fourth goal for St. Bon's. The tangles were now equal but Callahan got penalized and during his absence the Feildians scored the winning goal.

Summary of Goals.

First Half.
1. Callahan (S.B.) 25 mins.; 2. White (F.), 28 mins.; 3. White (F.), 29 mins.
Second Half.
4. Callahan (S.B.), 3 minutes; 5. White (F.), 7 mins.; 6. Callahan (S.B.), 10 mins.; 7. Payne (F.), 15 mins.; 8. Payne (F.), 20 mins.; 9. Higgins (S.B.), 22 mins.

PENALTIES.
First Half.
Higgins (S.B.) 2 mins.
Second Half.
Crawford (S.B.) 3 mins.
Callahan (S.B.) 3 mins.

NOTES.
The Feildians played a splendid game. They are a tidy bunch and deserve their success. Their win last evening gives them the League Cup for 1915 and we congratulate them. Although they have to face the Terra Novas on Monday night, but the result will not affect the championship.

Higgins, Callahan and Power were a great help to the losers, whilst White, Jerrett (2) and Payne played well for the winners.

MUSKRAT FARMING.

The muskrat farming industry which has proven so successful abroad might well be developed in Canada, says Conservation. The country possesses great areas of marsh land, at present of little direct value, which might be made to produce considerable revenues. Muskrat fur is steadily growing in favor. The aggregate offering on the London market in March, 1914, exclusive of the Hudson Bay Co.'s sales, was 4,846,500 skins. While this figure probably shows an accumulation from the previous year, still the price quoted for April was 50 cents a skin. The demand for muskrat meat would be confined almost solely to the Indians unless it was found possible to utilize it as a flesh diet for other fur-bearers that are being farmed. Such an undertaking should prove of special value to the Indian and other trappers who carry on their work in the more remote portions of the country. At the same time, many areas of marsh land in the settled sections which now are of little or no use might easily be made to yield considerable financial returns.

CANADIAN NICKEL AND THE WAR

It is generally known that Canada is far and away the greatest nickel ore producer in the world. It is not so generally known that not a pound of nickel is made in Canada, the whole output being sent to the United States for treatment and exported from thence over the world. It is also well known that nickel-steel is the very best sort of steel for warships and other instruments of destruction. In peace times Germany has been a steadily growing customer, and now in war time she is feverish for it, and there seems good reason to believe that it is still being sneaked into that country to be forged into weapons for killing perhaps even some of the Canadian miners who mined it. This is being altogether too kind to the enemy, and must needs be carefully considered. We can of course exercise no sort of control over the American smelter's product, but the Government can pass an act absolutely prohibiting the export of Canadian ore and thus force into existence a smelting plant in Canada, the product of which can be carefully guarded in the smelting thereof. The double purpose will thus be served of stimulating our own industrial advance and making certain that British ships will not be sunk by the agents of Canadian nickel "manipulated by the foe."—Canadian Ex.
