Maddolena's Story AND The Cameo Bracelet.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Madam de Caspares had, in her customary abrupt manner, informed Sir Charles that she proposed leaving the villa on the morrow; and when he urged her to remain, at all events, till his mother arrived, had positively refused.

"I shall most probably meet her on the road, and all we have to say to each can be said in five minutes. The truth is, nephew mine, I do not choose to speak ill of one who proposes to be real to me; and to avoid being tempted to do so, I intend taking myself out of the way."

"I do not understand you, ma tante." "Hum! and yet you know that Lady Camilla has decidedly rejected her romantic marriage, and intends to return to England with your party in the new character of your betrothed wife."

"I am not answerable for Lady Camilla's arrangements," he returned, coolly; "and I want you, ma tante, to never know till I am fit what a large-hearted, good creature you are!"

"My matins require a change. They have worn themselves out in your service. Bessie is thin and hollow-eyed, and Trixie fades like a withering flower. It is time I devoted myself to them instead of you. If you should continue to crave my companionship—be it mine, by and by—when you are quite recovered, you will find me at Richmond, where I have given my agent orders to have a house ready for me."

She would not be detained to say more; and Sir Charles had been alone for nearly an hour—a bouquet and an unopened note from Lady Camilla on the table beside his couch—when Trixie noiselessly entered.

He extended his wasted hand; but without seeming to see it, or approaching him, she quietly told her errand.

"We leave here so early to-morrow, that madam advised Bessie and I to see you and say our adieux at once."

"Come here, and say them, little Trixie," he murmured, coaxingly.

But she retreated instead of advancing, her eyes falling significantly on the bouquet and note.

She had seen Lady Camilla give them to one of the servants, and therefore knew from whence they came.

"MRS. BUDGE SO WEAK COULD HARDLY STAND
Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

River Desert, Que.—"I used to have a severe pain in my side. I would be unable to walk fast and could not stand for any length of time to do my ironing or washing, but I would have to lie down to get relief from the pain. I had this for about two years, then a friend told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as she had had good results. I certainly got good results from it, too, as the last time I had a sore side was last May and I have not had it since. I am also glad of having good nursing for my baby, and I think it is your medicine that helped me in this way."—Mrs. L. V. BUDGE, River Desert, Quebec.

If you are suffering from the tortures of a displacement, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness, or a pain in the side, you should lose no time in trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"If you will not come to me," said Sir Charles, "I must go to you." And he made an effort to rise, which brought Trixie to his side in alarm, to gently force him back on his pillows, and remind him how seriously the physicians had cautioned him against any exertion.

"Do you leave me willingly, my tricky sprite? Whether you do or do not, you might soften the blow by breathing a wish that we may meet again."

"Why should I do so? The humble dependent of the Baroness Caspares will soon pass from your memory; or, if you sometimes cast a thought toward her, it will be in connection with hours of captivity and suffering that you will be eager to forget."

"I am not so sure of that," he answered, gravely. "There was a time when I gladly put aside all thoughts that tended to sadden me; but I begin to understand that passing through the furnace is good for one, and that it elevates and strengthens the mind to dwell upon the hours in which we were most severely tried and tested."

Trixie smiled a little, though her eyes filled with tears.

"I am glad—very glad—to hear you say this! Bessie is a true prophetess. She has always declared that you will rise from your illness wiser and better."

"Will she continue to think so if I repudiate my unknown bride to wed the Lady Camilla Severn?"

The glow faded from Trixie's cheek, and she grew serious again.

"I do not know. It is a subject we never discuss."

"Well, then, if you will not, or cannot, give me Bessie's opinion, let me have yours."

"By no means, I came, Sir Charles, to wish you farewell, and express my hopes that your convalescence will not be tedious—but not to speak of other topics."

"And yet you are my friend, Trixie. You never spared yourself when I was in pain. How often have I not awakened from a feverish dose to find you leaning over me, patient, however irritable I proved; un murmuring, however much I fatigued you! And yet you refuse to testify any interest in me now you have snatched me from the jaws of the grave, and instilled a hope that I may live to see many years of life. Why is this?"

"I am not indifferent to your happiness, Sir Charles," she murmured, agitatedly. "Let you wed whom you may, my prayers will be put up nightly that you may never repent it; and now I have stayed long enough. Pray let me go."

But Sir Charles grasped her dress as she would have arisen.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the heavy, throat tickle, soothes the raw, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really refreshing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and laryngitis, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations in treating various coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

we should reduce the number of colds to a tenth what it is.

In the first place, the people who were coming down with the colds wouldn't have them; in the second place, those to whom they would have given their colds if they went around their regular duties sneezing and sniffing, wouldn't have them; in the third place, those to whom the people who caught the original cold would have given their colds wouldn't have them. And in the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh place, . . . well, you know the rest of that sentence, so I am not going to struggle to manage my "theys" and "thems."

Ten Times As Possible As We Think. Of course it isn't always possible to go to bed the minute you feel a cold come on. But I believe it is possible ten times as often as we think it is.

Some weeks ago I heard a doctor advise a woman who was coming down with a cold in the afternoon to go straight to bed, eat, take medicine and laxatives. "If you do, you will probably be all right in the morning," he said.

"But I can't go to bed this afternoon," she protested.

"What do you mean 'can't'?" inquired the doctor.

"I have come friends coming here this evening to play bridge."

"Can't you call them up and put it off?"

SOME THOUGHTS ON COLDS.

If it were possible for every-one who felt a cold coming on to go straight to bed for a half a day, or a day, or a couple of days, until he had thrown off the cold, I believe we should reduce the number of colds to a tenth what it is.

In the first place, the people who were coming down with the colds wouldn't have them; in the second place, those to whom they would have given their colds if they went around their regular duties sneezing and sniffing, wouldn't have them; in the third place, those to whom the people who caught the original cold would have given their colds wouldn't have them. And in the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh place, . . . well, you know the rest of that sentence, so I am not going to struggle to manage my "theys" and "thems."

Ten Times As Possible As We Think. Of course it isn't always possible to go to bed the minute you feel a cold come on. But I believe it is possible ten times as often as we think it is.

Some weeks ago I heard a doctor advise a woman who was coming down with a cold in the afternoon to go straight to bed, eat, take medicine and laxatives. "If you do, you will probably be all right in the morning," he said.

"But I can't go to bed this afternoon," she protested.

"What do you mean 'can't'?" inquired the doctor.

"I have come friends coming here this evening to play bridge."

"Can't you call them up and put it off?"

"Just because I feel as if I might have a cold coming on? They would think I was awfully silly and unprofitable."

FEARFUL SYMPTOMS. It was an evil day for me when I sat down to read the almanac for '23 sent out by old Doc Speed. When I sat down I felt as fine as ever in my life; "I wish such buoyant health were mine," declared my jealous wife.

Then I enjoyed unblemished health, no ache or pain I knew; but Old Doc Speed, he came by stealth, and knocked the works askew. Before I'd finished Chapter Three of his yule almanac, I felt fierce tortures in my knee and anguish in my back. "If you behold black specks," I read, "as floating in the air, it indicates you'll soon be dead, and should your house prepare; you harbor divers deadly ills, and soon their kick you'll feel, unless you take my concrete pills—fourteen before each meal."

"If you are prone to dizzy spells," the Old Doc made his wall, "the undertaker, wearing bells, will soon be on your trail. Is there a coating on your tongue, and does your mouth taste green? It indicates a spavined lung, and abscess of the spleen. As there is a ringing in your ears, are you annoyed by chills? You soon will go to other spheres unless you take my pills." Now I no longer dance and sing or chirp the joyous whoopee; if symptoms come for anything I've every known disease.

Household Notes. A little of the grated rind and juice of both a lemon and orange give a delightful flavor to raisin pie. A worn-out powder-puff, thoroughly washed, can be carried in the hand bag to dust off one's shoes.

In the way of "special desserts" vanilla ice cream served with butter-scotch sauce is a universal favorite. Chopped green pepper, tart apples, walnut meats, pimento and celery make an excellent winter salad. Chipped beef is unusually delicious when our cream is used in creaming it, and it is served on toast.

A quite attractive apron for laundry work can be made from an old rain-coat. Edge it with colored braid. Between two buttered layers of shortcake place sweetened thickened cranberry sauce and serve with cream. Dry coconut to be used in cake frosting is better when it is placed in a table napkin and steamed before using.

Place strained honey in a bowl over a steaming tea kettle, add to it finely chopped dates and serve with waffles.

If you find it hard to get real graham flour, put graham crackers thru the food chopper and use in its place.

On slices of light-colored ice cream place a small chocolate mint in center and arrange around it, almond petals.

Dr. Levermore's $100,000.00

New York, Feb. 19, 1924. I have just received from Philadelphia, Pa., a check in the amount of $100,000.00. Dr. Levermore's money was much more than I expected, but I was very soon after the check was sent to him for the purpose of spreading her wealth in the apartment. Dr. Levermore's money was a donation of $100,000.00 to the section of Brooklyn, N.Y., to be used as a clearing house for stocks, and to be used in the third year of the war. At his small office where the emerald and the diamond spreads her wealth in the apartment.
