FIGHTING FOR A NAME

"Yes, he bullies all the boys—all the small ones—within an inch of their lives. Well, this morning, when I was going to the store, just as I was passing that empty lot that has a high-board fence in front of it, I heard voices and a low growl behind it. Then someone said, 'Shut up, you blasted cur!' and I heard a blow, followed by a yell, as if a dog had been hurt. I stopped and peeped through a crack between the boards and saw Bill Bunting and another boy. Bill had in his hand a string that was tied around the neck of the dearest little fall-blonded pug in the world; he looked ever so much like the one that pretty girl held that Sunday—you remember, her father gave me the quarter."

"Yes, I remember," said Mrs. Wallingford.

"Well, I heard Bill say to the other boy, 'You just keep your mouth shut and I'll go halves with you on this swag.'"

"That is 'swag,' Ned?" questioned his mother.

name and place of residence. Anyone giving reliable information regarding the dog will be the most successful. Apply at No. — Summer street.

"That is the very dog I told you about, mother," Ned exclaimed in great excitement; "it belongs to that pretty girl who gave me the rose. Bill Bunting has stolen it and means to sell it; I'll block his little game tomorrow morning, you see if I don't."

CHAPTER VI.

"It certainly does seem as if you are right in your suspicions, Ned—that dog must belong to the little girl you mention," Mrs. Wallingford remarked, thoughtfully.

"I'm sure of it," Ned responded confidently; "at any rate, I know how I can find out," he concluded with a bright look.

"The little girl called him 'My nice, clever old Budge,'" said the boy, trying to imitate the child's peculiar inflection on the adjective, "and the dog was just tickled enough to jump out of his skin to have her praise him. I'm just going down to that lot after it gets dark, and see if I can't make him answer me when I say it."

"But, Ned, you know I do not like to have you on the street after dark," objected his mother.

"I will go straight there, and come straight back. I only want to just try the name; then, if it is Budge, I can go to Summer street and tell the gentleman early tomorrow morning. Please, mother, nothing can harm me, and I do so want to see that nice little girl who was so pleasant to me."

Mrs. Wallingford could not withstand this plea, so she reluctantly consented, but charged him not to loiter on the street and not to talk with people whom he might meet.

Ned promised that he would not, and about eight o'clock started forth on his errand. It was a warm night, and it seemed as if every house had been emptied of its occupants, and Ned congregated upon the steps and sidewalk to get the benefit of what late air there was stirring.

Ned avoided the various groups as much as possible, his eyes were cast as quickly as possible to that vacant lot which had the high-board fence built across the front of it.

He found hardly a soul there, for it was rather a dark locality, and most people preferred to take the opposite and more cheerful sidewalk. Ned stopped at the corner where he had heard the conversation regarding the dog that morning, and he waited for opportunity when no one was near, he put his lips close to a crack in the fence and called in low tones:

"Budge! Budge!"

There was no answer or sound of any kind from the other side of the fence, and Ned began to fear that the dog had been removed from the box in the corner to some other quarters.

"Budge! Budge!" he called again, and then there came to his eager ears a low plaintive whine.

The boy's heart gave a sudden bound of joy.

"I've found him! I've found him!" he murmured in a suppressed tone of exultation.

But he resolved to make another test, and again putting his lips close to the crack, while he tried to imitate the voice of the dog's mistress, he said:

"My nice, clever old Budge!"

In response to this there came two sharp, joyous barks, then a succession of plaintive whines, accompanied by a wild commotion, as if the dog was making frantic efforts to get out of his place of confinement.

Ned was sure now that his suspicions were correct, and he longed to climb over the fence and release the unhappy little captive; but this he could not do, while even if he had been able to scale it, he might have been arrested by a patrolman, and he would have been a prisoner, who would, doubtless, spirit the dog away to a safer hiding-place. He knew that it would be better to wait until morning, and allow the owner and the proper authorities to do the work in hand.

He thought it would not be best to say anything more to Budge, lest he should make a commotion, and attract attention, so turning about he hurriedly retraced his steps, and a few minutes later entered his mother's presence, flushed and triumphant.

"I was right, Marmee," he cried in clear, cheery tones, the dog is Budge, the neighbor I called to me, and I told him I shall ask the superintendent to let me off for a little while tomorrow morning, while I go to Summer street to tell the gentleman that Budge is his little girl he is glad to get her doggie back."

"I'm sure she will, dear,"

"It seems as if our luck has turned, doesn't it, mother?—so many good things are coming to us," Ned remarked thoughtfully after a moment of silence.

"What do you mean by luck, Ned?" Mrs. Wallingford asked in a gentle tone while she bent an earnest, questioning look upon him.

"Well, I know what you mean, mother; you don't believe in luck or chance at all."

"No, dear, I believe that there is a kind of governing Power which renews the life of everyone," she reverently replied.

Ned flushed and after a moment of hesitation asked:

"Do you believe it was a kind power that kept us poor so long, and let us go hungry and cold sometimes?"

"WALLY" FESSENDEN MAKES A BIG KILLING AT THE AQUEDUCT TRACK

Cleats From $25,000 to $30,000
With Passbook—Fessenden's
Second Feat of This Kind.

"Wally" Fessenden, made famous by his coup of last year with The Fiddler, accomplished the killing of the year at the Aqueduct yesterday. His horse, Passbook, won the first race of seven furlongs at odds of 15 to 1, after having been backed down from 40 to 1. It is fairly estimated that he won between $25,000 and $30,000. Hildebrand, who rode Passbook, kept his horse in second place until the stretch was reached, when he won in a driving finish. Passbook was the same horse that won Fessenden's $60,000 last fall. Fessenden is undoubtedly one of the most successful plunkers on the turf today. It is claimed that at one time he lived in London. A man named Wally Fessenden at one time managed a ball team here, and it is thought that he is the same person.

RAINLAND WON DERBY.

Nashville, Tenn., April 21.—Rainland, son of Rainbow and Fable, just arrived from St. Louis and an added starter, won the Cumberland Derby at Nashville, Tenn., today, by a wide margin. The stake was worth $14,000 to the first horse. Mrs. M. Goldblatt owns the horse and her representative stated that it was only last night that it was decided to ship the colt to Nashville. Jockey C. Gray piloted the winner, and he was favored by many of the unsuited horse jockeys, but finished third. The time was 1:59 1/2 and the distance one mile and an eighth.

YESTERDAY'S TURF RESULTS.

At Aqueduct: Passbook (Hildebrand), 15 to 1; Blandy (O'Neil), 8 to 1; Lord Badge (Hildebrand), 8 to 1; Peggy (Cormack), 12 to 1; Julia M. (Cormack); Mamie Worth (Burns), even.

At St. Louis—Fay Templeton, 5 to 2; Princess Mc, 15 to 1; Emigree, 7 to 2; Harnack, 8 to 1; Clares, 50 to 1; Broodier, 10 to 1.

St. Louis, Mo., April 22.—"Kid" Goodman, of Boston, secured the decision last night at the end of the 20th round of his fight with Aurelio Hernandez, of San Juan, P. R. The men fought cleverly, but there were no knock-downs.

NEW GROUNDS TO BE SECURED

Forest City Club Likely to Get
Land in Rear of C. P. R.
Depot—Trophy Still Here.

The Forest City Quilting Club will in all probability have new grounds this season. The old headquarters of the club on York street, immediately in rear of the Grand Trunk depot, are unsuitable in some respects for the purposes of the organization, although they are very central, and there is every prospect of a change being made. Officials of the C. P. R. were recently waited upon with a view of securing a lease of the low land in rear of the Richmond street depot, and one of the employees of the engineering department who was in the city a few days ago had plans prepared, which, if complied with, would mean the leasing of the property, as desired.

The club is still in possession of the large Dominion championship trophy won at the last tournament by Callander, of Toronto. Callander refuses to comply with the demands of the club for $100 bond to guarantee the return of the prize when next it is to be competed for.

The secretary of the club is in receipt of a letter from one of the C. P. R. players who participated in the tournament here last fall, asking what to do about his share in the quilting line. The writer states that the Chicago contingent would like very well to pay another visit to London this season.

PACER WITH GOLD TOOTH HAS LEFT THE STAGE

"The pacer with the gold tooth" is through with the stage. In other words, Moth Miller, 2:07, the pacer horse owned for some time by George H. Huber, is now in Philadelphia in training and owned by E. J. Johnson. This horse, one of the fastest pacers that ever went on the track, was raced successfully by Willie Trout and Rue Clark, and then Mr. Huber secured

FIELDER JONES AGAIN IN FOLD

White Sox Star Outfielder
Comes to Terms With Chas.
Comiskey.

Fielder Jones, formerly of the International League, is once more within the fold. The man, recognized as the star fielder in both leagues, Tuesday came to terms with Charles Comiskey, and the player will join the White Sox at Cleveland Friday. Final negotiations came to a close last night, when Jones wired Comiskey that the terms offered were satisfactory and that he would report at once.

There has practically been no disagreement as to salary between Jones and Comiskey from the start. It has been a principle with Jones to hold out, as he claimed that as he made a contract to play with New York during war times he should be permitted to make his word good.

It is understood that Comiskey offered Jones practically the same salary as he would have received from the New York National League Club. It was said that Jones signed with New York for $12,000 a year.

"I am mighty glad that the thing is settled," said Comiskey, who believed all along that Jones would do the right thing. There is no question as to the fact that Jones was a better player than Jones, and he welcomed him back with Jones back the team is rounded out to its full strength, and I think the rest will have to hustle some to keep up with us. I think now we will have as good a batting and baserunning team as there is, and if the pitchers make good I don't see how they can beat us."

It seems probable now that there will be some crowding on the White Sox bench. One utility infielder will be kept, and the race will be between Huelman and C. Jones. Dandon will be kept as a utility infielder. Label may be traded. The time for wheeling out the pitchers will come later.

"JUIJITSU" FOR ARMY AND NAVY

Japanese Method of Wrestling
To Be Taught Uncle Sam's
Soldiers and Sailors.

At the suggestion of the President, "jujitsu," as the Japanese system of self-defense is called, will probably be adopted as a part of the regular athletic training of officers and enlisted men in the American army, navy and marine corps. Steps have been already taken to introduce the art into the Naval Academy.

In accordance with instructions issued by Rear-Admiral Taylor, the superintendent of the Naval Academy, it was arranged to secure the services of certain competent Japanese instructors now in Washington to give the midshipmen the desired instruction.

A short description of the Japanese method of wrestling is contained in a report recently made to the war department by Major Oliver E. Wood, of the Artillery Corps, a copy of which was furnished to the President and formed the basis of his suggestion of the desirability of its adoption as part of the athletic training of future officers of the army and navy.

Major Wood, the art of "jujitsu," although it resembles wrestling, differs materially from that exercise as practiced in England and in America, its main principle being not to match strength with strength, but rather to gain victory by yielding to strength.

"There are various ways of gaining victory," says Major Wood, "such as throwing heavily on the ground, choking the throat, holding down on the ground or pushing to a wall in such a way that an opponent cannot rise or move freely, twisting or bending arms, legs or fingers in such a way that an opponent cannot bear pain, etc. There are various schools, and some of them practice all these methods, others only a few."

The most important principle of throwing, as practiced, was to disturb the center of gravity of an opponent, and then pull or push in such a way that the opponent cannot stand, exerting skill rather than strength, so that he will lose his equilibrium, and fall heavily to the ground. A series of rules was taught respecting the different methods of feet, legs, arms, hands, thighs and back in order to accomplish this object.

"Choking of opponent's throat was done by the hand forearm or twisting the collar of opponent's dress round the throat. For holding down and pushing any part of body was used. For twisting and bending the parts generally employed were the arms, hands and fingers and sometimes the legs."

HEAVY BETTING HURTS PITTSBURG BASEBALL

The heavy betting which prevails on baseball in Pittsburgh is a serious menace to the reputation of the national sport. For several years baseball has in reality been practically free from betting evils, but it has not got over the effects of the injury it sustained in that respect 20 or more years ago, and it is a common thing to hear people denounce the game on account of the betting, although such people are misinformed and think the sport is what it was decades ago. Why the betting craze has taken such a hold of Pittsburgh is not easy to explain, unless it is on the theory that the Pennsylvania city has no other form of amusement which better can exercise their fad. Pittsburgh has no home racing, either running or racing, and the few residents of which baseball suffers at the hands of the betting are because of the fact that the same position that the race-tracks in Chicago are because of the denunciation of racing at the tracks, although the tracks themselves would like to see the handbooks wiped out.

MINISTERS UP IN ARMS

The advocates of Sunday baseball in Cleveland are to go ahead in the matter regardless of the success or failure of the Reich bill, and the ministers are up in arms. Said Rev. Alexander Jackson:

"Mr. Springborn told me he did not understand that there would be any baseball in the big parks—Gordon, Rockefeller, Wade and Edgewater. In the case of the latter, the residents of Lake View Parks, it is difficult to tell where the park begins and private common end, and as no complaints are made by the residents of being disturbed by the games on private property, there was no apparent reason for interfering with the games in the parks themselves."

"Will the teams which form the new baseball organization be allowed to play on Sundays?"

"I cannot say what the city authorities will do other than as stated by Mr. Springborn. As for the better class of citizens, they will either have the authorities observe the law or elect officials who will see that it is executed. I cannot, however, believe that the city will allow the law to be trampled on. The lesson of Springfield is too significant of the ultimate result of allowing laws to be trampled with."

"What action will the Ministers' Union take? That I cannot say. The ministers will doubtless be a unit in condemning any such action as is contemplated."

The next meeting of the Ministers' Union will be held today, and it is probable that action will be taken in regard to the intentions of the Cleveland City League.
