DARED OPEN SEA IN A HOUSEBOAT

Remarkable New Craft That Is Propelled by Gasoline and Sails.

Baltimore, May 27 .- A Fiorida power houseboat of the most modern school reached this city yesterday and tied up at the wharf of the Nilson Yachtbuilding Company, Ferry Bar, to have work completed. She is the Everglades, and is owned by Col. R. M. Thompson, of New York, and hails from Bayonne, N. J. Colonel Thompson is one of the board of visitors at the Naval Academy, Annapolis. Monday morning Colonel Thompson i to reach this city to join the houseboat for a trip to Annapolis, where he will remain during the commence ment exercises. From there he plans trip in the houseboat to the St. Louis Exposition. The Everglades is commanded by A D. Hoke, a man remarkable in many ways. He is now navigating officer and commander of the Everglades, and is her builder and designer. She is one of the most remarkable boats ever seen here. One hundred and eighteen fee long, 28 feet beam, she registers 217 tons, and yet draws but 30 inches o vater. She is propelled by two 35horsepower gasoline engines, that give motion to twin shafts that propel four screws-two screws to a shaft. On each shaft is a 24-inch propeller that works in a recess built in the bottom of the works on the outboard end, as usual, The Evergiades was built by Captain Hoke on the Indian River, about 250 miles south of Jacksonville. She is built entirely of yellow pine for her structural parts and of cypress for her interior fittings. The panels of the interior are of black cypress, a wood as has no intention of leaving.
