Mrs. Lucy A. Barfitt, of Dorchester township, had fifteen chickens stolen from her premises while she was away from home on Feb. 24 and 25, and she did not find the slightest trace of them until yesterday, when she went onto the market. Then, she says, she located ten of them being offered for sale by Wm. Pratt, of the Gore of Woodstock. London, and she went to Squire Smyth and had a search warrant issued. It was executed by County Constables Sadlier and Barclay, who found the fowl on Pratt's stand near the market house. The officers took possession of the birds, placed Pratt under arrest on a charge of stealing them, and subsequently brought him before the magistrate, who bailed him to appear on Wednesday next. Pratt denies that he stole the chickens, and says he bought them from a man named Hill, who also lives in the country.
