The Committee have adopted the following Letter, which ill he sent by their Chairman to the Towns in Cauada and the United States: --

London, 2d May, 1845. Sig, - At a public meeting of the Inhabitants of the Town of London, held on the 29th day of April last, a Committee was appointed for the purpose of devising and procuring means to relieve the sufferers in the late fire; and James Hamilton, Ssq., Cashier of the Office of the Bank of Upper Canada in this town, was appointed Treasurer for receiving subscriptions.

> THE PETRIFICATION AT BERTHIER. To the Editor of the Quebec Mercury.

SIR,-It is singular that the discovery of the petrified corpse in the Church yard of this village, although made I believe in September last, did not until lately attract public attention.— It does not appear that even now it has roused the curiosity of the scientific, although it is perhaps the greatest natural wonder of its kind.

Passing through Berthier, on the 21st March, I paid a visit to the gentleman in whose house it was deposited; and received from him every civility and explanation that time would allow. The petrification, for such I must term it, is kept in a large chest made for the purpose, in a lower room of the house, under lock and key. On removing a fair linen cloth, one of the most extraordinary sights presents itself, that probably ever came under notice. By a rare process of nature, a body committed to earth in the ordinary way some twenty years since, instead of crumbling to its original dust has become the petrified image of a human form, which once had being, life, and motion The body, which in life was composed of both solid and empty parts, is now entirely solid, hard, and seems to be as completely stone as if quarried by mortal hand. It has the appearance of one of those ancient statutes, abraded by time and exposure which are seen in niches on the outsides of Cathedrals in Europe. In colour it is dark gray, or nearly black. The nose and mouth are destroyed, and one of the feet I think was gone. and mouth are destroyed, and mouth are destroy

All these have entirely disappeared: a fact which shows that the influence of the petrifying spring, or lapidific fluid, did not extend beyond a narrow vein, of the breadth or space occupied by the body which had seffered so extraordinary a change: Ossa lupis fiunt: intra queue viscera saxum est. I perceive a New York Editor is the best taken from the ruins of other buildings and carried to rather incredulous of this being a petrification, and suggests that it may be adipocere. To its being the latter, the description given above, if correct will establish the negative. The body was exhumed in September last, and is still as solid as when discovered; and was in fact described to be also stone .-The opening of the navigation will soon make Berthier casy of access; and it is to be hoped for the sake of science, that some one skilled to decide on the composition of this supposed petrifaction will proceed to a close examination and test, giving his report to the world. Perhaps the stream will be found impregnated with salt or iron. One object, however, in my writing you this letter, Sir, is to enquire if you ever heard, or have any means of ascertaining it from that venerable gentleman "the oldest inhabitant," that when the foundations of the old fortifications of Quebec were dug up, a petrified savage was found amongst the last beds which the workmen proceeded to excavate. His quiver and arrows were still well preserved; but where the story is to be found in detail, I have no means of discovering.

I am Sir. Your very obedient servant.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 11. "THE BABES IN THE WOODS."-A touching incident occurred among the mountains in the upper end of this county, while the fire was raging in the vicinity. A vs. Lupold has been somewhat deranged occasionally, for some time past, but was not considered much out of the way, until, one day last week, in the absence of her husband, she left her infant in cradle, and taking with her two other children, one about five years of age, the other only three, fled to the mountains, and nothing could be discovered of them until Saturday last, when she was found almost famishing and nearly naked; but the been out four days and four nights-cold nights, too, barefooted and half naked otherwise, their clothes being nearly torn off them by the under-brush, and their little legs blackened by the ashes of the conflagration through which they had wandered, and their flesh a good deal lacerated. They had cried themselves sick, and one of them had taken off its dress to make a oed of; and there they lay, at the root of a tree locked in each other's arms, unable to speak, having eaten nothing, it is sup-posed, since they left home. The poor little sufferers were taken up to the nearest house and confortably provided for, and are said to be doing well. They were found ten miles distant from the place at which their mother was first discovered and that they did not perish is altogether providential, and almost miraculous.—Philadelphia Chronicle.
