SUGAR REFINERY CLOSES DOWN

New York Strike Holds Up Supply—No Cause for Alarm.

One sugar refinery, the St. Lawrence, has closed down because of having run out of raw materials, and if the dockers' strike in New York continues much longer other refineries may be obliged to stop shipping. The World reporter is informed by Toronto representatives of the refinery that there is no pronounced sugar shortage in Canada at present, but it would be unsafe to predict what the result of a prolongation of the New York strike would be. All the refineries have stocks of raw sugar held up at the wharfs in New York. They point out, however, that the heavy end of the season is over, and if the stocks now held up in transit arrive before Christmas there will be no need to worry about the supply. On the question of the sugar shortage, a correspondent writes as follows: Situation Not Serious. Editor World: A little real information now before the scaremongers

FIRMS CONSIDER LEAVING TORONTO

Smaller Municipalities Offer High Inducements to Locate There.

The city industrial commissioner, E. L. Cousins, has written to the mayor, complaining that three Toronto manufacturing firms are considering moving their plants to Guelph, where they are asking for loans from the municipality. "I am not at all surprised at this," writes Mr. Cousins. "Many of the smaller municipalities of the province are offering all kinds of inducements." He mentions Brantford, Barton township, Oshawa, Pickering township, Belleville and other places. Porritt & Spencer Co. of Bury,

England, felt manufacturers, chose Hamilton as against Toronto, because of the 4 1/2c per 1000 gallons difference in water rates.

Real Estate High Here. Mr. Cousins notes that real estate values are higher here than in any other city, and many industries are able to do without the facilities which Toronto affords, and go to smaller places, where, in some instances, sites are given free, or for a very nominal rental, coupled in many cases with guarantee of bonds. In many cases there is tax exemption. "Personally, I feel very strongly that it is wrong for a municipality to bonus industries," says Mr. Cousins. "We will still receive a fair share of the industries coming to Canada. If an industry is looking for financial assistance, then Toronto is not the city to locate in, but if they are looking for a place that offers maximum facilities, coupled with maximum business opportunities, then Toronto can compete successfully with the majority of cities on the continent."

TRAFALGAR DAUGHTERS MEET.

BOOK FOR PRINCE

Toronto Lawyer Presents His Royal Highness With a Copy of Canadian History Work.

At the meeting of the Canadian and Empire Clubs at Massey Hall yesterday, James Roth, K.C., of this city, presented to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales a copy of "In the Wake of the Eighteen Twelvies," which was written by C. H. J. Snider of Toronto, and tells of the many battles by land and water of those early days in Canadian history. Mr. Roth is a grandson of the late Bishop James Richardson, who took part in the war of 1812, and lost an arm in the fight at Oswego, which was then a British port. At that time Bishop Richardson was only a lad and had been sailing the lakes with his father. In later years he became a traveling Methodist missionary in the wilds of western Canada, and subsequently was appointed a bishop by that denomination. He married a daughter of James Dennis, who built the vessel St. Lawrence at Kingston, which played an important part in terminating the war.

HOME-MADE LIQUOR.

Rose Levi paid $300 and costs in the police court yesterday on the charge of selling home-made liquor.

Council to Consider Whether Higher Tax Rate Advisable

A special meeting of the city council will be held this afternoon to consider the report of the special committee on assessment reform. According to Commissioner Forman the result of certain proposals would be an exemption of $48,539 and consequently a loss in taxes. To provide for this an increase in the tax rate equivalent to 1 3/4 mills would be necessary and $4,028 houses in the city would be affected.

NUKOL COMPANY FINED.

F. H. Slater, appearing for the Nukol Fuel Company, paid a fine of $100 and costs in the police court yesterday. The charge was laid under the Ontario companies act, by virtue of which a company advertising shares for sale must state the amount of expenses. This statement was not made by the Nukol people, according to the information, and the fine followed.
