Woman's World...

Devoted Specially to the Interests of our Women Readers.

Conducted by Katherine Leslie.

Lady Habberton's foolish action in bringing the landlady into court because she would not treat her as she would other women was probably not so much due to animosity against the landlady as a wish to advertise the cause of rational dress, of which she has constituted herself the apostle and advocate. A woman at all sensitive would feel the publicity and humiliation keenly, and after such a snubbing retire from public gaze. But we are afraid Lady Habberton is a very determined person, as well as a misguided one. She is evidently laboring under the delusion that she has a great following at her back, and that women are longing to discard their skirt and adopt the bifurcated garment. As a matter of fact, women are conservative, almost to a man, if we may be permitted to use that conclusive expression, on the subject of skirts, and it will have to be something much prettier and more becoming than a bloomer costume that will tempt them to change their ideas and their skirts.

* * *

It is true that there are a few veterans, and a few aggressive young persons across the line, and perhaps in our own country, where ideas about rational dress are as pronounced as their ideas of their own superiority; but as a rule, thank heaven, the conservatism of English and Canadian women on the question of dress is unassailable. Fashion may play any pranks she likes, the fickle jade; she may give us long skirts this season, short the next, trimmed and befrilled one season and straight and bare another; but so long as it be a skirt we are satisfied. It has yet to be demonstrated that it is a nuisance; a well-cut skirt clearing the ground is quite as easy to walk in as a hideous pair of heavily folded, bunchy bloomers, and we have yet to find the woman who would care to walk abroad without it. Anything more hideous than the bloomer costume of women was never invented. A slim, straight young girl may look very pretty and piquant in such a costume on the stage; indeed, we all recall actresses who in men's attire were bewitching. But consider our mothers, our sisters, whom we reverence and love, prancing into town in such a garb! Think of the white-haired old ladies we know and of the fine motherly women of our acquaintance, and what would be our horror and disgust to meet them in so-called rational dress!

"Why," cried Tithonus in his despair; "Why should a man desire in any way To vary from the kindly race of man?"

And why, why should women desire to vary from their own charming sex? Why should a woman go out of her way to be original and unique in the eyes of a grinning, mocking world? If any vital interest of women were at stake, or if it were a question of reform of some glaring abuse, we could understand Lady Habberton's attitude, and disregard of notoriety. But a mere question of bloomer versus skirt, brought into grave and dignified courts of law! We have to go back to the famous Pickwickian breach of promise trial to find as absurd and senseless a case. Besides, women do not want the imaginary reform. They do not find their health impaired by wearing skirts, nor their progress in walking impeded; they do not wish to rush about any faster than they are doing, and they do not find that the modern skirt trammels their movements. It is a most graceful and becoming garment, in comparison with which the bloomer costume is an unqualified horror; so why should Lady Habberton or any other so-called reformer martyrize herself in a cause that is as universally unwelcome as it is absurd? We do not at all object to Lady Habberton wearing her bloomers; if she does not object to being a fright, why should we care? We only wish not to have such a garb forced upon us. If the skirt is a nuisance we prefer to sacrifice comfort to appearance, and will choose every time to wear our skirt rather than to be at ease and a fright.

The sunset fades, the world grows grey,
On field and tree the color dies;
Dim seas moan up to moonless skies;
The light hath fled—the life of day,
Good-night! Good-night!
Yet, through the hours of dark and sleep
This whirling world rolls on to dawn;
Fresh breezes from far oceans blown,
Up o'er the waking land shall sweep.
Good-night! Good-night!
But ah! what dawn shall break the grey
That fell and deepened e'en as this;
What wandering wind of love shall kiss
To life one dear dead yesterday?
Good-night! Good-night!
—J. K. Lawson.

The Art Loan Exhibition attracted quite a large crowd on Saturday evening, when the Conservatory of Music furnished a very attractive program. Those taking part were: Mrs. W. A. Chisholm Miss Nettie McTaggart, Miss Maud Schooley, Miss Louie Fulton, Master Fred. Alderson, Miss Elsie Adamson, Mr. E. T. Reburn, Miss Mabel O'Brien, Miss Carrie Davidson, Miss May Kirkpatrick, Miss Lena M. Hayes, Mr. Oscar Wenbourne, Miss Mabel de Geer, Mrs. H. W. Parker, Mr. Rechab Tandy, Mr. Napier Durand, Mrs. Dreschler Adamson, Mr. Paul Hahn, Mr. Donald Herald, Miss Maud Gordon.

The following were the hostesses: Mrs. G. A. Arthurs, Mrs. Charles Godfrey, Miss L. G. Hector, the Misses Denison, Baldwin, Dalton, Jarvis, Gordon, Delamere, Hutchins, Jones, L. Denison, Parker, F. Jones, E. Ross, R. Campbell, A. Johnston, E. Ellis, Covert, Arthurs, Smith and Baker. Tonight will be military night, with Mrs. Forester, Mrs. Delamere, Mrs. Alfred Cameron, Mrs. Campbell Macdonald as hostesses. These will be assisted by Mrs. Gibson, the Misses Merritt, Thompson, H. Thompson, Crombie, Falconbridge, Cassels, Elmsley, Scott, Seymour, James, Helen Armstrong, E. M. Clark, Annie Michie, L. M. Howard, Walker, Mackay, Eva Delamere, Marion Barber, Wornum. This will probably be one of the most popular nights of the Loan Exhibition.

"Good housekeeping is easy housekeeping, and if a woman wears herself into shreds and tatters keeping house the case is proven against her," writes Helen Watterson Moody in the April Ladies' Home Journal. "It is precisely in her ability to guard against this contingency that the housewife shows herself not only a good executive officer, but as well a woman with ideals and a sense of proportion—one who does not forget that housekeeping is a means to home-making, not an end in itself—that the most perfect administration of domestic matters will not make a family happy in whom the love and spirit of home do not dwell. Home—not only a place to eat and sleep and work in, but a place to be happy in, a place to rest in and to be soothed, a place in which to love and be loved, a place for confidences, and counsel, and strengthening words, and hope, and heartening. It is a good thing, and a noble thing, and a satisfying thing to be a good housekeeper; there is no profession of which and in which a woman can be so proud, and so blessed in head and heart and hand as to be able to make and keep one of those real homes which is a 'little sunny spot of green in the great desert of the world'—if there is anything better than this in life I have not yet found it."

Something altogether novel in combination is a white pique chemisette vest in a foulard gown, which is trimmed on the bodice with a fine batiste embroidery. Floral boas are one of the novelties for summer neckwear. They are made of rose leaves and leaves of gathered gauze. New artificial flowers are made of velvet and gauze.

A new variation in color is duck-egg blue, which is both grey and blue.

It is said that the finest lace handkerchief in the world belongs to Queen Margharita of Italy. The value of it is placed at $30,000, a not exorbitant sum when one considers that three artists worked at it for nearly twenty years. It is so delicate that it can be folded up and placed in a gold sheath of the size of a white bean.

HE FAINTED IN HIS PULPIT.

Sensational Occurrence at the Central Methodist Church in Woodstock.

REV. MR. SELLERY WAS PREACHING

And Suddenly Fell Forward Over the Pulpit—Soon Recovered From the Spasm.

Woodstock, Ont., April 9.—(Special.)—The large congregation at the Central Methodist Church was thrown into a state of the wildest consternation to-night, occasioned by the pastor, Rev. S. Sellery, falling in a faint in the pulpit. Mr. Sellery was preaching as usual, when he suddenly stopped speaking and put his hand to his forehead. His face became very pale. "My friends," said he in a halting tone, as he held on to the pulpit, "a strange fainting spell has come over me, something that only happened to me once before in my life. I must sit down."

He immediately fell forward over the pulpit. His eyes rolled and he grasped convulsively with his hands, as a person trying to save himself from drowning. Immediately half a dozen men dashed up the pulpit stairs and caught Mr. Sellery just as he was falling backwards. Dr. Odlum was among them, he being in the congregation. The stricken pastor was laid on the pulpit sofa, while women screamed and the greatest confusion prevailed.

After the doctor had worked over him for a minute or two, Mr. Sellery opened his eyes. Immediately he remembered what had happened and asked them to tell the congregation not to go away. He soon sat up and wanted to go on with his sermon, but the doctor would not allow it. To cover the confusion, one of the men in the choir sang a solo. Mrs. Sellery was in the congregation and assisted those who were attending to her husband. Dr. Odlum told The World reporter there was no danger in such cases except in the event of weak heart. To-night nothing else is talked of around town but the unusual occurrence.

DANGER TO LIFE FROM FIRE

Here is What Chief Bonner of New York Says to Do to Lessen the Chances.

SHUT ALL DOORS IN YOUR HOUSE

Before Going to Bed—This Will Prevent a Rapid Spread of Flames in Case of Fire.

Hugh Bonner, chief of the Fire Department of New York, after the recent disastrous and fatal conflagrations in that city, has aroused much interest by giving his ideas to the public regarding what ought to be done by people to lessen the chances of loss of human life by fire What is good in New York in this respect is equally good for Toronto, where there are firetraps perhaps just as fatal as in that big city. For the benefit of our readers The World appends Chief Bonner's latest printed rules which ought to be read by all and pondered over:

Prevention.

Shut all doors in your house every night before going to bed. This prevents a draught from carrying fire rapidly through the house. Throw away all the extra draperies which now cover the windows. They feed the flames.

Our homes are over-furnished. All extra furniture carries the fire from one part of a house to another. Portable fire-escapes should be provided on all upper storeys. They would in many cases be useless, however, unless all doors in your house were closed so as to shut the fire in and allow it to smother for lack of oxygen to feed it.

If the doors of each apartment, especially in the lower part of the house, were closed every night before the occupants retired there would not be such a rapid spread of flames.

Familiarize yourself with the location of hall windows and natural escapes. Learn the location of exits to roofs of adjoining buildings.

Learn the position of all stairways, particularly the top landing and scuttle to the roof.

In Cases of Fire.

Should you hear cry of "fire," and columns of smoke fill the rooms, above all KEEP COOL.

Keep the doors of rooms shut.

Open windows from the top.

Wet a towel, stuff it in the mouth, breathe through it instead of nose, so as not to inhale smoke.

Stand at window and get benefit of outside air.

If room fills with smoke keep close to floor and crawl along by the wall to the window.

Do not jump unless the blaze behind is scorching you. Do not even then if the firemen with scaling ladders are coming up the building or are near.

Never go to the roof, unless as a last resort and you know there is escape from it to adjoining buildings. In big buildings fire always goes to the top.

Do not jump through flame within a building without first covering the head with a blanket or heavy clothing and gauging the distance.

Don't get excited; try to recall the means of exit, and if any firemen are in sight, I repeat, DON'T JUMP.

M. LOUBET'S GALLANTRY.

French President Did Not Pass His Mother by on His Official Tour.

Paris, April 9.—One episode in President Loubet's journey throws all else into the shade, and that is the meeting between the mother and her son. In the midst of the official procession the President suddenly espied his mother seated in the little terrace garden overlooking the street. The President, who was in full evening dress, ordered his carriage to stop. He sprung to the ground, exclaiming: "For the moment I cease to be President!" He ran up the steps and was through the side gate leading to the garden before his mother was aware of his presence. He clasped her in his arms, kissing her over and over again, while tears filled not only their eyes but the eyes of the hundreds of witnesses of the tender, simple scene. The Paris correspondents accompanying the President on his tour all refer to the incident in their telegrams, pronouncing it the most notable occurrence of the journey.

Last a Lifetime.

Durability and comfort do not always go together, strength sometimes means coarseness.

But not so with the celebrated Ostermoor elastic felt mattress, which is the most comfortable mattress made and the most durable.

This mattress needs nothing in way of renewal for any ordinary lifetime. A cleanly turning and airing (as all mattresses should have) and a generous sun bath occasionally will keep it indefinitely as good as new.

We are manufacturer's exclusive agents for this mattress, which has stood the test of 25 years. In two sizes, 13.50 and 15.00. Superior to any 50.00 hair mattress.

The Sweep of Success!

Announcement has already been made of a new and important addition for this store. Architects are at work on the plans, and the builders will soon give evidence of a new pace, even in building. It won't be long before we'll have more room, which means a new and greater career for this business.

But, aside from additions and improvements, you can tell by your instinct that things are better here. Changes have followed in quick succession until we have the store more as we want it—bigger every way, better every way, and completely ready for all the business there is.

Unbounded faith in the future of Canada and absolute confidence in the possibilities of this business account in part for the important addition made last year and the still greater enlargement planned for this spring.
