

Embroidered Lawn Bedspreads

Shown in single and three-quarter bed sizes. Extra fine quality lawn and hand embroidered in variety of beautiful designs. These are now being cleared out, regular prices of $10.00, $12.00, $14.00, $16.00 and $18.00 each.

Printed Cotton Bedspreads

Handsome designs in big range of colors. Printed in variety of beautiful designs. These are now being cleared out, regular prices of $10.00, $12.00, $14.00, $16.00 and $18.00 each.

Bargains in Fancy Linen Pieces

We have gathered together a lot of broken lines in fine embroidered and fancy lace-trimmed pieces. These are now being cleared out, regular prices of $10.00, $12.00, $14.00, $16.00 and $18.00 each.

Ladies' Linen Handkerchiefs

Ladies' Hemstitched Linen Handkerchiefs. These are now being cleared out, regular prices of $10.00, $12.00, $14.00, $16.00 and $18.00 each.

Men's Linen Handkerchiefs

Men's Hemstitched Linen Handkerchiefs. These are now being cleared out, regular prices of $10.00, $12.00, $14.00, $16.00 and $18.00 each.

Mail Orders Promptly Filled.

JOHN CATTO & SON

55 TO 61 KING STREET EAST, TORONTO

Ladies' and Gentlemen's HATS

Work excellent. Prices reasonable. NEW YORK HAT WORKS, 226 Yonge St. Phone N. 5165.

PLAYS, PICTURES AND MUSIC

"HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER"

Robert Porter, the author of "His Brother's Keeper," the new attraction in which Robert Edson will be starred this season, and which comes to the Alexandra Theatre next week, the unknown to the theatre, is a well-known man of letters and successful magazine writer. The story of his life is a drama that is constructed along new lines. Should it meet with the approval of the public, he will come out of his shell and disclose his real identity. The regular matinee will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

"HOBSON'S CHOICE," COMING.

All last season B. Iden Payne, director of the production of "Hobson's Choice," which the Messrs. Shubert are sending as for one week, November 5th, at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, was in quiet search of a player who combined histrionic ability with a mop of red hair, following the year's triumph at the Eltinge and Harris Theatres with the New York company, headed by Madge Kennedy as the featured player. "Fair and Warmer" made one of those successes along Broadway that run up the standard for all later attractions.

RICHARD BENNETT IN "ZACK."

The sale of seats for the Lancashire new play, which Richard Bennett and his famous company are presenting this season is open at the box office at the Grand Opera House.

AT THE GAYETY.

Peter C. Clark, who next Monday will bring his "New York Girl" to the Gayety Theatre for a week's engagement, is not one of those producers who think that the beauty of a chorus can make up for lack of vocal attainments. Critics have spoken of this company as one of the best singing organizations in burlesque, and it is true that music lovers are those who go into the greatest raptures over the show.

AT THE STAR.

The "Follies of 1917" will be the newest burlesque attraction on the road this season, and the first to appear at the Star Theatre next week. The first part, "It Happened in Paris," and the burlesque, "A Ragtime Hamlet," are sure fire comedy getters. Al Burton and Perry, in a novelty juggling act, Al Raycock and Jim Hazelton, rapid fire talkers, and Fred La Reine & Co., assisted by Miss Mabel Sobell, "The Human Dynamo," are also attractions.

FINE DRAMA AT STRAND.

The dramatization of Conan Doyle's world-famous novel, the film of "Girdlestone," with Charles Rock and Edna Flugrath in the two leading roles, is one of the strongest and most gripping photo-dramas that have been presented in Toronto for a very long while. Charles Rock takes the part of the hypocritical guardian, John Girdlestone.

REGENT THEATRE.

The great Toronto favorite, Fannie Ward, is the attraction at the Regent Theatre. In heading the cast in the photoplay, "Which Cast," Miss Ward is probably seen at her best. This play took first prize in photo-dramas at the contest held this season at the Columbia University. Miss Rita Haynes will also be seen in classical dances.

CAPT. INOPEN PROMOTED.

Special to The Toronto World. Kingston, Oct. 26.—In consideration of his good work as an artillery instructor at Fatawa camp, Capt. W. E. Inopen of the Royal Military College staff, has been promoted to the rank of major.

THE WEATHER

Meteorological Office, Toronto, Oct. 26. Showers have occurred today in the Maritime Provinces and Manitoba and in Muskoka elsewhere the weather has been fair. The temperature has been highest in Nova Scotia and lowest near Lake Superior.

Maximum temperatures: Dawson, 14-24; Victoria, 50-52; Vancouver, 43-50; Kamloops, 36-40; Calgary, 34-42; Edmonton, 36-44; Medicine Hat, 44-52; Moose Jaw, 36-45; Regina, 32-48; Saskatoon, 34-44; Winnipeg, 28-38; Port Arthur, 26-36; London, 35-45; Toronto, 42-47; Kingston, 44-50; Ottawa, 40-50; Montreal, 44-52; Quebec, 40-50; Halifax, 42-50; St. John, 46-54.

Probabilities: Lower Lakes and Georgian Bay and Upper St. Lawrence and Ottawa Valley—Moderate to fresh and southwest winds; milder and mostly fair, some showers at night.

Over St. Lawrence and Gulf and North Shore and Maritime—Moderate fresh westerly winds; fair and mild.

Superior—Moderate to fresh southerly, shifting to northwesterly winds; showery and cool.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan—Northerly winds; fair and cooler.

Alberta—Fair and mild.

THE BAROMETER.

Time. Bar. Ther. Wind. A.m. 30.1 29.51 23 W. Noon 30.1 30.1 23 W. 4 p.m. 30.1 30.1 23 W. Mean day 30.1 30.1 23 W. Mean night 30.1 30.1 23 W. Range 2 above; highest, 47; lowest, 40.

STEAMER ARRIVALS.

Oct. 26. At Regina d'Italia. Genoa. From New York.

STREET CAR DELAYS

Thursday, October 26, 1916. Bloor Street cars delayed 3 minutes at C.P.R. crossing at 6.25 a.m. by train.

Bathurst cars delayed 3 minutes at 6.45 a.m. at C.P.R. crossing by train.

King cars delayed 5 minutes at 6.40 a.m. at G.T.R. crossing by train.

Both Line and King cars, both ways, delayed 6 minutes at 5.52 p.m. at Princess Theatre on King, by steel girder on track.

MARRIAGES.

BROWN—HOWSE. On October 26th, 1916, in Trinity Methodist Church, by Rev. W. H. Hines, D.D., Alice Byrrell Irene, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Howse, to Wilfred Arthur Brown, both of Toronto.

DEATHS.

SMITH—On Wednesday, 26th October, Hannah Amanda, dearly beloved wife of J. M. Smith, aged 78 years.

Funeral from the residence, 23 Edgar avenue, on Friday, 27th inst., at 2.30 p.m. to Mt. Pleasant Cemetery.

FRENCH-CANADIAN DEAD HONORED IN MONTREAL

Special to The Toronto World. Montreal, Oct. 26.—There has perhaps never been such an imposing demonstration in the old parish church of Notre Dame as that which took place this morning.

The ceremony was presided over by Sir Sam Hughes, the Canadian soldier who had fallen in battle. The catafalque which his grace called a symbol, was covered by the British flag. The church was filled with units from the regiments here in preparation for the race.

After the ceremony Sir Sam Hughes had a long interview with his grace, whose sermon was very eloquent and patriotic in tone. He said that the memory of those who had fallen in battle is not to be forgotten. It will, in all probability, last yet a long time. It is not easy to find a fight with the enemy who has been preparing himself over forty years with the one and only object in view—the launching of the greatest and most cruel war in the history of the world.

Our enemies had prepared; they had us at a disadvantage at first. But now we are confident that such an enemy cannot stand a trial of arms. They regarded their pledged word of honor as a mere scrap of paper to be torn and thrown to the winds, must not triumph; they who overran, devastated and ravaged poor, defenceless Belgium, which they were sworn to protect, who strewed mourning over the whole face of Europe—whose reduced smiling cities, towns and hamlets to ruins, who bombed cathedrals, left the earthly home of the Almighty in ruins, who destroyed the homes of those who made of this war a carnage and a butchery unprecedented in the annals; they, I say, cannot, they will not, they must not triumph. They have too great faith in the God of Justice and Right to have any doubts on that point. Possibly the world, with its materialism, its irreligion, its sins, its blasphemies did stand in need of an expiation. But when the expiation has been made, when the tears of the mothers and fathers have been dried, when a sufficient mead of sorrow has filled the hearts of the sufferers, this war will cease, and we will then sing a hymn of thanksgiving to the God who has saved the world from the clutches of a devil who had no other end than to destroy it.

Indigestion Resulted From an Inactive Liver

The Bowels Became Constipated and the Whole Digestive System Upset.

With many people constipation becomes a habit. And it is a dangerous habit which is certain sooner or later to cause serious distress of the bowels. The "Daily movement of the bowels" is the first and most important rule of health. When the liver becomes torpid the flow of bile into the intestine is stopped and the bowels become constipated. But you can readily overcome this condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no transference of the bowels to the stomach, but the activity of the liver and bowels and thereby corrects derangements of the digestive system.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty of Beaver Brook, Ontario, N. B., writes: "I can truthfully say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a great medicine for constipation. I have suffered from constipation ever since I can remember, but got to using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was so benefited that I began to study this medicine. I found that the indigestion resulted from a bad case of inactive liver, and as soon as I got the liver working right I didn't have any stomach trouble or indigestion. I cannot praise this medicine too highly, and would advise anyone suffering from indigestion or constipation to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. My husband also claims that these pills have done him more good than any medicine he ever used. You are at liberty to use this letter."

SOCIETY

Conducted by Mrs. Edmund Phillips.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will present colors to the 19th Battalion, C.I.B. (The Buffs), on Wednesday in the University Stadium, the colors being given by friends of the battalion.

Lady White has returned from Montreal to her home in the Queen's Park.

The Hon. Sir James Loughheed has arrived in town and is at the Queen's Hotel.

Lady Mackenzie returned from New York yesterday morning. Miss Mackenzie is shortly leaving her sister in Paris and going to England to visit the Countess of Clarendon at the Grove, Watford, Herts.

Col. Sir Henry Pellett was in Ottawa this week.

Miss Grace Merritt, the well known actress, is now touring Canada in a new play called "Scheherazade." A large party of friends and relations went to Hamilton last week to see it and bring back glowing accounts of the play, which not only turns over a percentage of each performance to the Red Cross, but is a fine example of the actress's personality, earnestness and eloquence inducing many young men who have held back to see their duty in the right light.

Mrs. Frederick Winnett is in Chicago. Mean day, 41; difference from average, 2 above; highest, 47; lowest, 40.

Mr. H. G. Barber, Mrs. Barber and Miss Margaret Barber have returned to Ottawa, having spent a fortnight with Mrs. Frank Barber, Bismarck road.

The engagement is announced in Montreal of Mrs. Josephine, widow of the late Mr. James Joseph, to Henry Stuart Hamilton, Chicago, Ill., formerly of Londonderry, Ireland.

Captain Arthur W. M. Ellis, son of Prof. W. H. Ellis, dean of the faculty of applied science, Toronto University, has been appointed to succeed Col. G. G. V. Smith, C.M.G., as commanding officer of the Canadian overseas camps. He will be assisted by Captain George Campbell, Toronto.

Mr. Wallace Nesbitt is giving the prizes for the golf match today at the Hunt Club, and has asked the players to luncheon with her.

Mrs. Harold Gzowski has arrived safely in England, where she will meet Captain Gzowski, on leave from the front. Miss Hope Morgan is taking care of her sister's children during the absence of their mother.

Mrs. Gwyn Francis is sailing by the Nordland for England.

Mr. Laing and Miss Constance Laing have taken a flat in Spadina Gardens.

Mrs. George Smith, St. John, N.B., is in Montreal visiting her daughter, Mrs. Allan Macge.

Mrs. C. J. R. Stirling, Salmon Arm, B.C., who was in Toronto, has sailed for England to visit her daughter, Mrs. Bell-Bivart, whose husband, Captain Bell-Bivart, is recovering from serious wounds received at Gallipoli.

Mrs. Bruce Macdonald is in Kingston.

Miss Laura Smith, Ottawa, accompanied by Miss Marquitta Davidson, Montreal, has left to spend a month at Hot Springs, Hot Springs, Virginia.

Miss Strath is paying a visit in Hamilton.

Mrs. Edward Houston gave a small tea in Ottawa on Wednesday.

Special Train Service Via Canadian Pacific Railway will be operated between Toronto and Whitby on Nov. 1st, 2nd and 3rd, leaving Toronto each day at 8.30 a.m. Don 8.40 a.m. Agincourt 9.05 a.m. arriving Whitby at 9.45 a.m. Returning, leave Whitby at 5.30 p.m., arriving Agincourt 6.05 p.m. Don 6.25 p.m. Toronto 6.35 p.m. This service permits patrons to spend the whole day in Whitby and return home for supper. For further particulars apply to Canadian Pacific ticket agents or W. B. Howard, district passenger agent, Toronto.

Harper, customs broker, 39 West Wellington v. corner Bay St.

Another Increase in Price Of Bread is Predicted

That another increase in the price of bread to nine cents for a small loaf and 18 cents for a large one, is imminent, is the purport of a rumor which has been circulated, and about which bakers profess ignorance. The increase in the price of flour is assigned as the cause. Bread is now selling at eight cents for a small loaf and 16 cents for a large one, an increase of 25-1-3 per cent.

Flour is selling at $7.70 per barrel, while on Aug. 3, 1914, it was selling at $5.80 a barrel. Mark Bredin of the Canada Bread Co. said that if the price of bread was based on the price of flour, the cost would be nine cents for a small loaf and 18 cents for a large loaf respectively.

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

ARCHBISHOP'S TRIBUTE TO MONTREAL HEROES

"They Immortalized Themselves and Canada," He Says at Requiem Mass.

Montreal, Oct. 26.—"Our fallen ones enrolled themselves valiantly to fight for a great cause, that of civilization, of right and humanity. They immortalized themselves and Canada. In this fight Quebec has done and is doing its share. I have too great a belief in the God of justice and right to permit me to believe for a moment that our enemies shall triumph," said Archbishop Bruchet, addressing about 1000 officers and more of the local battalions and civilians in Notre Dame Church this morning, at a requiem mass for the Montreal soldiers who have fallen, especially those of the 22nd Battalion. The church was draped in mourning, and a large catafalque, used only on state occasions, was draped with the Union Jack.

NEUTRALS FIND U. S. NEGLIGENCE

(Continued From Page 1.)

of the British steamer Stephano and the others had been received, and whether the circumstances were in accordance with the German pledge to the U. S. He referred to "the activities of the U. S. under the very eyes of the American navy" and to the declaration of President Wilson which had resulted in the German pledge. Lord Sydenham declared: "Even before the exploits of the U. S. that pledge was made to shreds. Yet the government of the U. S. has made no sign, whatever, and the sinking of neutral ships goes on almost every day. The Norwegians have lost 13 vessels in this one month, and what must small neutrals think of their powerful representative?"

No life, he said, was lost because of the presence of American warships. Lord Sydenham took the position that the presence of American warships actually enabled Germany to defy what he said President Wilson had described as a sacred and indisputable rule of international law.

Seek Quarrel With U. S. Baron Beraud expressed the opinion that Germany intended to bring America into the war so as to be able to say she could not fight the whole world, and also because the U. S. would be a valuable asset to her at the peace conference. He continued: "The U. S. is really rather aiding and abetting this rather serious case of affairs. If the U. S. had not sent their ships, which for some extraordinary reason happened to be on the spot to save life, the Germans would not have broken the pledge, which their attention had been called to, which would not appear to be quite within the bounds of neutrality as far as the U. S. is concerned."

No Understanding. Foreign Secretary Grey said: "We have no understanding with the U. S. government as to what information they are going to get or what they will do with the information when they have obtained it. All we can do is to obtain information for ourselves from such sources as are open to us, and these sources in this case I imagine are in the charge of the merchant vessels sunk or passengers, in one case, at any rate aboard the merchant vessels, all of whom have survived and to whom we can have access and from whom we can get their individual statements of what happened."

That is what is being done on the other side, I understand. I repeat, I trust, will reach the admiralty in due course as to the statements of survivors, and when these reports are received I cannot imagine any reason why they should not be made public in this country, or that there will be any reluctance on the part of the admiralty, among the departments concerned in making public the fact, which we shall have got for ourselves as to how the vessels were sunk and treated on the ocean submarine."

Lord Sydenham, continued Viscount Grey, "quoted statements made by the German Government in August, 1914, in which they pledged to the United States Government in May of last year, up to the middle of August, in circumstances which were apparently not in accordance with that pledge, which included firing torpedoes at ships without warning and insufficiently providing for the safety of the crews or passengers when the ships were sunk. I am sure the public will be able to judge for themselves (indeed, I think it has been made public) can multiply instances which have occurred since the middle of August, and are occurring every week, of allied or neutral merchant vessels having torpedoes fired at them without warning, and in some cases lost, which included firing torpedoes at ships without warning and insufficiently providing for the safety of the crews or passengers when the ships were sunk. I am sure the public will be able to judge for themselves (indeed, I think it has been made public) can multiply instances which have occurred since the middle of August, and are occurring every week, of allied or neutral merchant vessels having torpedoes fired at them without warning, and in some cases lost, which included firing torpedoes at ships without warning and insufficiently providing for the safety of the crews or passengers when the ships were sunk."

These instances are occurring in different parts of the world. If he asked whether they occurred off the United States coast, the admiral said that is a matter on which I cannot pronounce any opinion until we get the facts; but if he wishes to know whether they are occurring elsewhere, it is undoubtedly a fact and we have published instances quite lately of its occurring in the Mediterranean and elsewhere.

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."

Between Wilson and Kaiser. "I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was given by the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of the United States are served by serving by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government, and which is a matter of course, and which it is for the United States, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States should take."