WEDNESDAY MORNING, MARCH?

Who Should Bear the Financial Burden of the War?

They miss the mark, in our opinion. who complain that the poor give their lives while the rich give their dollars to win the war. The fact is, that rich and armies of the empire. The real criticism time like this? is that the financial burden is being shifted from the shoulders of the rich, who can afford to pay, to the poor, who cannot. The big banks and other corporations are to be commended for subscribing liberally to the government war loans. They may feel that they are fur- minister getting to England two, or posnishing the money to carry on the war, sibly three, months ahead of time. No but, after all, they are merely loaning to the government, and are getting big will arrive, or even who that premier will interest with gilt-edge security. burdon is carried by the public at large, South African nor the Australian Premier which, year after year, must thru taxation, pay the interest upon the national

Would it not be better to pay the expenses of the war as we go by taxation? This may be called "conscription of wealth."-we prefer to call it "conscription of income." We believe that at a time like this, the rich people and corporations should devote their current incomes to the service of the state. Surely the man who urges that his fellow-subject should be compelled to give up his liberty, and perhaps his life, for the state, will not argue that his income is something more sacred, and cannot likewise be conscripted.

The great mistake made by all the belligerents has been the raising of money for the war by borrowings, instead of by taxation. That mistake will not be repeated by the United States if the warning of O. M. W. Sprague, in the current number of The New Republic is heeded. Mr. Sprague admits that an initial loan will have to be launched, perhaps the five hundred million bond issue, already spoken of, but, after that, he sees no reason why our neighbors should not pay as they go for the rest of the war.

ment pays about twice as much for everything as it does in normal times. With remarkable unanimity all those who ately to soak the government in war time. They may salve their consciences by taking some war bonds or giving a cheque to the patriotic fund, but if everybody who supplied the government was satisfied with a moderate profit, the government would have less borrowing to do, and would be able itself to carry the magnificence, but the public at large suffers. Business men are charged extordonate prices for supplies, without which they cannot carry on their business, and food becomes so high that the poor people are illy nourished.

In the confusion of war, the most audacious combines go unchecked. The public only dimly know of the scheme to corner the pulp of the north American continent, and force up the price of paper more than a hundred per cent. They feel the food corners, but they do not realize the burden of the war debt, and, therefore, rather admire the spectacular rise of the munition manufacturer, who reaps every day a princely income from a beggarly investment.

These economic evils would not exist if the rich were paying their share of the war debt. Finance Minister White has tried to conscript some current incomes by his tax on war profits, and for this he is to be commended. He finds difficulties in his way, however. For years past, we have permitted corporations to water their stock with impunity, Hence we find an honest, conservative concern apitalized at five hundred thousand dolers, the worth considerably more, while , rival concern, of less intrinsic value and earning power, has a capital stock of five million dollars.

A company like International Nickel, which makes all its money out of Canadian natural resources, gels more or less away from the finance minister by taking out a charter in a foreign country. This concern probably pays Mittle more to the federal than it does to the provincial avvernment, and since the war commenced, it has paid the provincial government nothing at all. It should be compelled to disgorge ten million dollars of with the approval of some of the its profits. Similar conscription should members, and Dr. Noble stated he be applied to the Asbestos Trust, and many of the munition manufacturers, and to the combinesters who have fleeced the people and are making great fortunes out of the war. If you want further knowledge, read the article in The New Republic of February 24.

Again He Hesitates

President Wilson never seems to be quite ready. Just now he is seeking legal over. advice as to his powers as President of the United States and commander-inchief of the army and navy. He is scolding a handful of senators and worrying about the rules of the senate. He would rather not have a thing done at all than not have it done in a particular way. a state, but he called for volunteers to put down a rebellion. He could find no legal authority for emancipating slaves but as commander-in-chief of the army he confiscated them as "property" in possession of the enemy. There was nothing in the constitution about "copperheads," but when southern sympathizers in the north became troublesome they were sent to jail and the writ of habeas corpus sus pended. Who on earth is going to deal with Mr. Wilson if he acts boldly as the head of the nation in arming merchantmen, convoying vessels, or even going to war? He delivered or by mail.

If he commits high crimes by mail. and misdemeanors he may be removed from office after a public trial by twothirds of the senate, upon articles of impeachment presented by the house of representatives. But does anyone suppose that he will be impeached for again showing the American flag on the high seas and protecting American lives and property from destruction?

Mr. Wilson should wake up. Who can imagine Jackson, Lincoln, Grant or poor alike have enlisted freely in the Roosevelt waiting for a legal opinion at a

The Return of the Premier

The Ottawa correspondents all agree that no one is to blame, and least of all the British Government, for the prime one can say when the Australian Premier The be, and many suspect that neither the will come at all until they have assurances that the German colonies they have captured are not to be taken from them in any event. Sir Robert Borden might have postponed his sailing until the Australian and South African Premiers had actually arrived in England, for it is only a few days' run across from Canada. No sooner did he mention going, however, then parliament adjourned for ten-weeks! There are big problems facing this country which require the presence of the OSGOODE HALL JUDGES prime minister at the capital, and require the consideration of the Dominion Parliament. Under all the circumstances, we think Sir Robert Borden would be justified in returning to Canada, even tho the imperial conference had to be postponed for some time. At present he is by Judge Denton, who awarded Nathan rendering valuable aid to the empire in Krehm $361.50 for breach of contract assisting at the meetings of the war council, but can he not really do more for the cil, but can he not really do more for the secured evidence of conspiracy be-empire at Ottawa helping Canada to solve tween one of his witnesses and the the big problems that confront her?

It may be safely asserted that the thousands who were put to death (at the stake and otherwise) for witchcraft, were not guilty of the crime with which they were charged.

Again, there is no way of ascertaining to a certainty the guilt of anyone charged with murder. Felonious intent is the essence of the crime. The jury must determine then, in each instance, the state of mind of the accused. In many cases this is a difficult task, and in not a few the verdict is a mere guess.

As a Depository for Your Savings

we ask you to consider the strength and stability of this old-established institution. From 1855 to the present time citizens of Toronto and people in all parts of the world have found it a safe and convenient place to deposit their savings. The thritty and conservative Scottish investors have entrusted it with many millions of pounds sterling. In the history of our city and our eountry there have been many "lean years," many periods of "hard times," there have been national and international financial stringencies and crises, and several financial panics, but the has never been a moment's delay in returning any funds of our depositors when called for. Today the Corporation has of fully paid-up capital, backed up by a Reserve Fund amounting to FIVE MILLION DOILARS.

Its Assets, which are all most conservatively invested in the safest possible securities, exceed

THIRTY-TWO MILLION DOLLARS

THIRTY-TWO MILLION DOLLARS.

But, though the Corporation has grown to such dimensions, it encourages as much as ever the depositor of small sums. It has many small accounts; in fact, its invested funds are to a large extent the accumulation of many small sums. It has also some large accounts, which have grown to their present proportions from very small beginnings. For this reason it cordially welcomes the deposit of a dollar, knowing that in most cases the incentive to save and the regular addition of interest will ensure a steady increase in the balance at the depositor's credit. Interest is credited to the account at:

Weather Man's Work And How It is Done

That most of the theories in vogue during the early study of meteorology or weather astrology have been proven illusions as a result of latter day observations and experiments was the declaration of J. Paterson, M.A., in an address on "Long Range Forecasts and Other Weather Illusions" before members of the Royal Astronomical Society in the Royal Canadian Institute, 198 College street, last night. He said that meteorology came in as an exact science only fifty or sixty years ago, and that the science is now tased largely upon statistical methods and hasn't attained a high degree

Hon. G. H. Ferguson Explains His New Bill for Preventing Forest Fires.

The north country will be divided nto three districts, according to transportation facilities, said Hon. G. Each district will be under a supervisor under the provincial forester, to be appointed under this act.
Under these supervisors will be five chiefs and rangers.

The act, explained Mr. Ferguson, will give the forester's department entire charge of the system of fire ranging, assessing the cost upon the permit holders. The department will take charge also of safety appliances on railways.

Drastic power is given to the pro-vincial forester, said Mr. Ferguson. He can require limit holders to clear a fire hazard. If they fail to do so when ordered, the forester may have the work done and collect the cost from the permit holder. Similar power is given to municipalities.
