PRESIDENT WILSON'S RIGHT-HAND MAN

(By Elsie Hanson in Cartoons Magazine)

One of the greatest handicaps under which President Wilson labors is a lack of capable advisers. His friends have compared him to Abraham Lincoln. But Lincoln had a Seward where Wilson has a Lansing; a Chase where Wilson has a McAdoo. Lincoln, when he chose his cabinet, selected the greatest figures in American public life. Wilson has selected only mediocre men; so, with due regard to their limitations, he consults them but little.

Lincoln during the civil war was always accessible to his advisers and to congress, and for that matter, to the general public. Wilson is growing more and more inaccessible every day, whom he depends heavily for advice or

However, he has a few friends upon whom he is always turning to them. One is Edward N. Hurley, who in the space of less than two months has occupied three of the most important war posts at the chief executive's disposal.

When Mr. Wilson reorganized the Red Cross he called Hurley to Washington to take charge of the army relief work. Later, when the export-license board was created, he put Hurley on that, allowing him to name his own successor in the Red Cross. And a few days later when the president finally ended the Goethals-Denman controversy, he placed the shipbuilding programme in the hands of the Chicagoan. Hurley is one of those geniuses, rare in public life, who believes in accomplishing things and actually do accomplish them, but for two months he was hopping around Washington like a jumping jack.

ASHAMED OF THE PIMPLES

PIMPLES and skin eruptions always seem to come where they are the most noticeable, and consequently most embarrassing to the person so unfortunate as to have them.

The most satisfactory treatment for pimples and skin eruptions is Dr. Chase's Ointment, applied at night after bathing the skin in warm water. Instead of clogging the pores, as do powders, Dr. Chase's Ointment cleanses them and promotes the healthy action of the pores of the skin.

By its antiseptic action this ointment destroys poisonous germs, and thereby prevents the development of eczema. There are scores of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home.

PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS.

Miss Carrie Altwater, Bitter Lake, Alta., writes—"I was entirely cured of pimples and blackheads some months ago by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. As I have also found this ointment a splendid treatment for sunburn and chapped hands, I would not be without it in the house. It is the best I ever used."

Canadian National News Service Begins

DAY AND NIGHT BY LEASED WIRES

From Atlantic to Pacific News of Canadian Happenings Will Flow in Uninterrupted Stream—An Undertaking of National Importance

Yesterday marked the formal opening of the Canadian National News Service operating under the name and charter of the Canadian Press, Limited. It was fitting that it should be made the occasion of the interchange of congratulatory messages by the premiers of the provinces of the dominion furthest east and west, for hitherto these have been severed, in a news sense, thus limiting the reaction one on the other, to their mutual advantage, of their respective public opinion. Between the maritime provinces and British Columbia nature has set formidable barriers, preventing the free interchange of news by leased wire. Even between Ontario and Quebec, on the one hand, and the Pacific provinces on the other, no free flow of news, day and night, has been possible, because of the thousands of miles of wilderness along the north shore. The "three great gaps," as they have been termed, comprise the belts of unproductive territory between St. John and Montreal, between Ottawa and Winnipeg, and between Calgary and Vancouver.

The united effort of the Canadian daily press to establish a truly Canadian National News Service will come to naught when confronted by the grave financial problem of carrying day and night leased wire over these wide stretches of mileage.

Parliament provided a sum to assist the Canadian publishers in achieving this great step in national unification. The prime minister has honored the new service by a message over his own signature. Other messages of congratulations, including one for E. F. Slack, of the Montreal Gazette, president of the Canadian Press, Limited, and one from Premier Murray, of Nova Scotia, to Premier Brewster, of British Columbia, which are printed below, were exchanged over a great stretch of wire, nearly five thousand miles, physically uniting Sydney with Vancouver and including in the one circuit Halifax, Moncton, St. John, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London, the head of the Great Lakes, Winnipeg, the cities of the Pacific, Nelson, in the Kootenays, and Vancouver.

Including both day and night wires, the new association will operate nearly twelve thousand miles of leased wire mileage and employ between eighty and ninety expert telegraphers in the interchange of news between all parts of the dominion.

Messages Exchanged.

The messages exchanged were as follows:

Ottawa, September 2.
To E. F. Slack, president Canadian Press, Limited.
The inauguration today of a national press service by the Canadian Press, Limited, marks a notable epoch in Canadian newspaper achievement, and the service itself cannot fail to have a vital influence on the national life of the dominion. It should be the means of bringing into closer touch widely separated communities, like the people more familiar with the ideals and aims of other provinces or districts; assist in bringing mutual understanding to all, and thus aid in the growth of a national consciousness and a truly national spirit. The press of Canada could have no higher purpose and could engage in no nobler work.

I extend my congratulations to the men who made possible the Canadian Press, Limited. They have my sincerest good wishes for the success and extension of the National Press Service.

R. L. BORDEN.

A Great Work.

Ottawa, September 2.
E. F. Slack, president Canadian Press, Limited.
Great national good should arise from the operation of the dominion-wide news service which the Canadian Press, Limited, is opening today. Not only will the papers throughout Canada be in a position to give their readers a more complete budget of news, by the publication in their columns, in reports of happenings in the maritime provinces, in Ontario and Quebec, in the great prairie provinces and British Columbia, but in so doing they will be performing the great work of familiarizing the citizens of provinces widely separated, with currents of opinion peculiar to each section, thus leading to better understanding and united effort. The beginning of the gulf which now separates the east and west should be rendered easier, by the dissemination of Canadian news throughout the land. The west will know the east better, and the east will understand the hopes and ambitions of the great provinces west of the lakes.

I consider the Canadian Press, Limited, has undertaken a work of the greatest national importance, and a work from which the greatest benefits should accrue, and in which they have my best wishes for the success to which such a national effort is entitled.

J. A. LOUGHEED.

To Premier Brewster.

Halifax, September 2.
Hon. H. C. Brewster, premier of British Columbia, Victoria.
On behalf of the people of Nova Scotia I gladly avail myself of the courtesy of the Canadian Press, on the occasion of the inauguration of its own national coast to coast telegraphic service, to send our warmest greetings to you and the people of British Columbia.

The Canadian Press is to be congratulated upon establishing this great national news service. I believe that it promises far-reaching benefits to all of Canada. This national wire will be a new link between east and west, and a potent agency in bringing into closer touch and warmer sympathy all sections of our vast dominion. I am sure that it will be largely influential in stimulating national co-operation, creating a better understanding of each other's problems, and fostering that spirit of unity which was never so essential to the progress and welfare of our common country as at the present moment.

the fearless New Brunswicker announced his intention at Saturday's sitting of parliament. He proposed to deal with the record of Mr. Rogers as disclosed in the sworn testimony of recent investigations. He had, he told the house, just completed a study of the complete evidence, and he proposed to "show honorable gentlemen in this house, and show the public, that there was absolutely no justification for the recent McLeod-Tellier review, and that no honest man could make a finding other than that of Mr. Justice Gauthier."

Mr. Carvell's declaration was made while the house was in committee of supply on supplementary estimates. Hon. Arthur Meighen had presented a vote for $5,500 to cover the expenses of the McLeod-Tellier commission. Of this amount there had been already expended, according to the solicitor-general, the sum of $4,500, apportioned as follows: Expenses of one commissioner $405. Official reporter, $696. Council, $2,156. Secretary, $800. Rent of offices, $215. Incidentals, $100.

There yet remains, said Mr. Meighen, the expenses of the other commissioners, and some incidentals.

The opposition challenged the authority under which parliament was asked to pass the vote.

Mr. Meighen claimed the commission had been appointed under authority of parliament.

"Under the authority of this government," amended Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

"By the government acting under authority conferred upon it by parliament," amended Mr. Meighen.

Messrs. A. K. Maclean and F. B. Carvell moved that the item be struck from the estimates, and a long and somewhat bitter debate ensued. Finally, upon the assurance of Mr. Meighen that an opportunity would be given Mr. Carvell to review the whole case, the motion was defeated and the item carried.

The local firemen were given unnecessary runs on Sunday evening when two false alarms were rung in. The first was rung in from box 124 at the corner of Adelaide and Newman streets at 9.55 o'clock. The second alarm was rung in at 10.30 o'clock from box 321 at the corner of Somerset and Barker streets. It is said that the person who rang the second alarm is known.

WOMAN LETTER CARRIERS

Ten thousand women have been taken into the postal service of London since August, 1914, when the war began. They are taking the places of men who have gone into the army. It is probable that the women are taking the places of fewer than 10,000 men, as it has been found that in some respects a woman is not of as much service as a man. A writer in the London Chronicle says that the average man can carry a weight of thirty-five pounds in his postal rounds, while the average woman can carry a weight of only twenty pounds. In this respect alone, he says, are the new women employees inferior to the men whom they have replaced.—Hartford Courant.
