CARLYLE BLACKWELL
Plays the Hero Part

It is a vivid story of capital and labor. For the people Hal Surtain (Mr. Blackwell), takes up the cudgel. A mad surging mob, made beasts by the anger of numbers, rushes through narrow streets, tramples police and onlookers beneath avenging heels. Stones are hurled—a bomb wrecks the place, Hal's fiancée rests under a stigma, his father a criminal—and the end. See it tonight.

BOWLING.
Y. M. C. I. Bowling.

In the second game of the Y. M. C. I. bowling league last night, the Autos took all four points from the Canaries in a rather interesting game despite the one-sided score. The results in detail were:

Autos	Canaries
Cromwell 84 86 87 257 85-2-3	Ryan 82 84 86 252 87-1-3
Gorman 83 85 86 234 78	McShane 81 78 82 241 80-1-3
McKean 104 90 82 276 92

444 403 428 1270

Total Avg.
Duke 84 90 67 241 80-1-3
Kennedy 86 80 65 231 77
O'Leary 72 70 87 229 76-1-3
Baxter 83 68 70 197 66-2-3
McGivern 97 74 76 247 82-2-3

403 377 365 1145

Yesterday the junior class of the institute met for the purpose of arranging a junior bowling league. The captains of the various teams were elected and a schedule was drawn up. The first game will be rolled next week. In the meantime the captains will be busy securing prospective bowlers and an interesting junior league is looked forward to.

RING
Tributes to Fitzsimmons

Services were held in the Campbell Funeral Church, at Sixty-sixth street and Broadway, New York, on Sunday in memory of "Bob" Fitzsimmons. Pugilist of the past and present, sporting folk who had known him as one of America's greatest ring fighters, and intimate friends of the man himself, participated in a final tribute to his memory. Jim Corbett, whom Fitzsimmons vanquished in the ring, delivered a tribute to his former adversary which stirred many of the men present to tears. He spoke of "Bob's" gallantry as a fighter, and of his capacity for friendship as a man.

"I consider it one of the greatest privileges of my life to be able to pay my respect to the memory of one of the greatest gladiators the world has ever known," said Mr. Corbett. "Lanky Bob" was a fighting man, a pluckier one never put on the boxing gloves. Master of himself, he was master of his opponent. It was an honor to have been defeated by such a great fighter.

"But he was not only a great fighter. He was a great friend, who made and held friends all over the world. Loyal, helpful and true to the highest principles of friendship, he was a man who always deserved and won the implicit trust of all who had the good fortune to know him. 'Bob' Fitzsimmons will be missed."

The services were conducted by the Rev. Nathan A. Seagle of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal church. The personal side of the prizefighter's life was presented in an address by Dr. John Hendrick of Dunellen, N. J., where Fitzsimmons lived.

Some of those at the services were Joe Humphries, Kid McParland, Peter Golden, Vic Schell, K. F. Jacoby, Jim Daly, who was a former sparring partner of Fitzsimmons; A. J. Redfern, Frank Carter and John N. Lawrence.

BILLIARDS
De Oro to Play Jackson

Alfredo De Oro having for the time being disposed of the championship aspirations of John Daly in the three-cushion billiard game, will next be called upon to defend his title against Clarence Jackson of Detroit. The match will be played early in December. Other challengers in line are George Moore of New York, August Kieckhefer of Chicago, Pierre Maupome of Cleveland, and Robert Canefax of St. Louis.

YANKS ARE AFTER WALTER JOHNSON
Also Anxious to Get Ainsmith, His Battery Mate; Also After Pratt

New York, Oct. 29.—Walter Johnson is again the chief topic of conversation in the American League and it leads to the same old conclusion—that Walter is getting somewhere pretty soon—some where where they win more ball games in a season than has been the habit in Washington.

The Yankees are angling for the speedball demon. They're after him strong and they want his battery mate—Ainsmith, to go along and make his party a good one. Miller Huggins has set his sails for a bright spot and Walter is going to wear a New York uniform next year if he fears and Clarke any effect on Ben Minor and Clarke Griffiths.

Col. Jacob Ruppert, who now is alone in directing the Yankee endeavor, has just written the paper. He was after Johnson once before, but the deal fell through. Now, it appears that more persuasion will be flung into the affair. Ruppert also is expected to transfer his battling ability from St. Louis to the Yankees. When the latter club was trying to buy the second-baseman from the Browns during the summer, Phil Ball mentioned something that sounded precisely like United States treasury to Col. Ruppert and he immediately did a John McGraw. Now, however, Ruppert and Phil have had words or something to that effect and the Yankees believe Ball can be persuaded to part with the player for something less than the New York franchise.

The same plan of reckless money-spending, with a good purpose in view, has a firm hold on the Yankee management, but with a tried and proved manager waiting to take up direction of the team.

May Oust Tener
As President Of National League

Magnates of Older League Say Ban Johnson Has Done Governor's Thinking

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Again the National League is in form. Its members are beginning to discuss candidates for the presidency of the organization, and the perennial boom for Bob Brown of Louisville, who has been mentioned every time an election has been held since the last decade, and who has never had a vote when the magnates got down to business, has been launched. Also, they are talking of John Heydler, who is secretary of the league at the present time, who is one of the most competent baseball men in the country, and who acted as head of the league between the time that Harry Foulton died and the election of a successor. Heydler is the logical candidate, and for that reason, probably will not be chosen. You can always bank on the National magnates to pull a boner if given a chance.

President Tener is concluding his four years term of office. He has said that he will refuse a re-election, and it is understood that some of the magnates are opposed to giving him one, anyway. They hold that he is not sufficiently aggressive, and that he lets Ban Johnson, who usually decides what the National commission will do, though the other two members are National Leaguers, have too much to say. Mr. Tener is not so sweet on his job as he thought he would be, when he took it, and as he does not need the salary that goes with the position, probably will be glad to retire if the club owners desire to choose some one else.

THE FIRST SHOT
(New York Times Editorial.)

That red-haired gunner who, amid the cheers of his officers, fired the first American shot at a German target may or may not have hit it. He was not in a battle. The great storm of fire in which the men of Petain and Haig are forcing their bloody way through the German line was far off. He and the gunners who followed him, and the infantrymen who came up to the trenches that night, were only undergoing training. And yet that shot of his was a great event.

He and the other Americans in that detachment will give way in their turn to others, and they to others, and the Americans will come on to the trenches in ever-growing numbers. What the red-haired gunner began will not lessen, it will increase. In him the Germans confronted for the first time the United States in arms for freedom. Perhaps they did not know it; but they will know it. He was the forerunner of millions. That first shot in "a quiet sector" was the first sound of a voice that will grow in volume till its tones are of thunder, the voice of the United

OUIMET OUTPLAYS EVANS IN MATCH

Boston, Oct. 29.—Private Francis Ouimet of the 301st Infantry met Civilian Charles (Chick) Evans in a thirty-six hole golf match on the Brae Burn Country Club's course Saturday and, as it might properly be expressed in military language, bayoneted the 1916 national and open amateur champion.

Private Ouimet and his partner, Jesse P. Guilford, outmaneuvered and outfought Chick and his Chicago partner, D. E. Sawyer, the Boston pair winning the four ball match by 6 up and 4 to play.

The four ball really was a camouflage, disguising the main purpose for which 1,000 or more spectators gathered on the course, which naturally was the individual play between Ouimet and Evans. They saw Evans outline the Boston golfing idol in length of drives and in placing approaches nearer the pin, but when it came to the final object of the game—that is, to get the ball into the cup in the fewest strokes—it was Private Ouimet who was in the ascendancy by 4 up at the end of the morning round and by 8 and 2, as nearly as individual scoring could be approximated, in the thirty-six hole match.

It must be taken into account, moreover, that after the Boston pair won by 6 and 4 the quartette played to a perfunctory sort of finish, which made it doubly difficult to get a true line upon individual playing merits. The morning round was the real test from the individual standpoint, because Evans had a minimum of assistance from his partner, while Ouimet was the brilliant player for the Boston combination.

It was the same old story with Evans. Leading all four players in length of drives and in placing approaches nearer the pin, but when it came to the final object of the game—that is, to get the ball into the putting greens as near the hole as possible, he failed miserably on the putting greens. It was Private Ouimet who was in the national amateur championship at Brookline in 1910, after being 2 up with 3 to play.
