

Waterbury &
Rising, Ltd.

Three Stores

King St.
Union St.
Mill St.

Dressy Colonials and Pumps

This season the tendency is towards a light sole and high heel on all really dressy shoes. Patent leather, Suede and Gun Metal are strong favorites, with a big demand for White Canvas.

All our Pumps and Colonials are made on the latest patterns and lasts, and direct from the best makers in the United States.

The "Adonis" is a very pretty Patent toe, long vamp and Spanish heel.

$3.00 to $4.00
a pair

Headquarters For The Waltham Watch Co's Products

Waltham Railroad Watches lead all others in volume of sales and in fine time keeping qualities.

THE WALTHAM VANGUARD is officially recognized to be the peer of all RAILROAD WATCHES. We carry a very large stock and the buyer gets the advantage of our unexcelled time service.

Ferguson & Page - King Street
Diamond Importers and Jewelers

CLOSING EVENTS AT ROTHESAY COLLEGE

Most of the boys of the Rothesay Collegiate School left this morning for their homes to spend the vacation. After the closing exercises yesterday afternoon, a delightful dance was held in the evening, when about 200 were present. The gymnasium was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The guests were received by Mrs. Hibbard, Mrs. Daniel and Miss Howard. Music was furnished by Harrison's orchestra, assisted by the orchestra of the school. Much interest was taken in the sports and events yesterday morning and afternoon. A feature was a new record made by "Tommy" Skelton for the midge cles in the running broad jump. He made a record jump of 12 feet, 9 inches. Following is the aggregate standing of the boys in the different events:

Seniors—F. Young, 1st; Payne, 2nd; Vallette, 3rd.
Intermediates—P. Starr, 1st; Peters, 2nd; M. Campbell, 3rd.
Juniors—Flewellling, 1st; A. Diago, 2nd; L. Diago, 3rd.
Midgets—Skelton, 1st; Bartlett, 3rd; Whiteley, 3rd.

The boys made a good showing in gymnasium work and reflected credit on their instructor Sergeant Doce. A gymnastic display was given in the gymnasium yesterday afternoon and prizes for the best work in gym classes during the winter were awarded to Payne, seniors; R. Smith, intermediate and D. Carr, junior.

Social Events.

Five o'clock tea was served on the lawn in front of the school. Those who served were: Mrs. Donnell, Miss Mahel Gilbert, Mrs. Skelton, Miss Daniel, Mrs. J. Robinson, Mrs. Brock, Miss Edith Gilbert, Mrs. J. Davidson, Mrs. Fred Foster and the following young ladies assisted by the "old boys" waited on the tables: Miss Daniel, Miss Purdy, Miss Gilbert, Miss Turnbull and the Misses McKean.

TO WED TODAY
W. M. McKean manager of the Bank of Commerce at Radville, Sask., has arrived in Fredericton and will be married on Wednesday to Miss Muriel Massey. Owing to a recent bereavement in the family of Miss Massey the wedding will be a very quiet one.

Donald Bird, son of Samuel Bird, of Mayville, is to be married Wednesday evening, to Miss Gertrude Frances Wood, daughter of Joshua Wood, in the Episcopal church at Stanley.

Take Vacation Pictures

WITH A NO. 3
FOLDING POCKET KODAK
which is especially good when simply, light, compact, strong handily handled.

Takes 1-4 x 4-4 Pictures
Price $17.50

Corner Mill Street and Paradise Row
S. H. HAWKER'S DRUG STORE

USE THE WANT
AD. WAY

Forrest's Flies!

The Celebrated Trout and Salmon Flies represent the highest art in fly tying, being tied by experienced workmen from the finest natural feathers and other materials.

We have all the leading patterns in a variety of sizes.

FISHERMEN'S SUPPLIES OF ALL KINDS.

W. H. THORNE & CO. LTD.
MARKET SQUARE & KING ST.

Where Jaded City Man Finds Rest and Memories of Olden Days Come From Beach Fire

The little cares that fretted me. I lost them yesterday. Among the fields above the sea, among the waves at play; Among the lowing of the herds, the rustling of the trees, Among the singing of the birds, the humming of the bees.

The foolish fears of what may happen, I sent them all away. Among the clover-scented grass, among the new-mown hay; Among the husking of the corn, where drowsy poppies nod, Where ill thoughts die and good are born—in the fields with God.

—E. B. Browning.

The city was drenched with rain. The Saturday afternoon groups who were going up the river on the Champlain accepted the situation with cheerfulness, never doubting that beyond the Narrows and Grand Bay and Woodman's Point the sun was smiling down on the landscape and the river. Nor were they disappointed.

The hollows in the hills around Grand Bay were pockets of vapor, and the air was misty, with one driving shower near Sand Point. But the sky was clearing as the crowded steamer entered the Reach, and at Public Landing there was bright sunshine. The warm air, the odor of the flowers and foliage after the rain, and the joyous song of a bird in a roadside tree welcomed the jaded spirit to its comradeship. "Throw your burdens off," they said, "till Monday morning."

Changes of a Week
Gone are the apple blossoms, but yonder bit of meadow is golden with buttercups, and here and there a daisy

FEET AREN'T ACHING OR TIRED NOW—"TIZ"

It's Grand For Sore, Swollen
Sweaty, Calloused Feet and Corns

"How 'TIZ' does help sore feet."

Good-bye sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smarting feet, tired feet.
Good-bye corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face with misery. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. "TIZ" draws out the smaller spots. Use "TIZ" and forget your foot misery. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now at any drugstore or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.

RECENT DEATHS

The death of Mrs. Asa Perry occurred at her home in Havelock, King's Co., on June 10th. The deceased lady was about sixty-two years of age and before marriage was Miss Heustis, of Jernigan, Queens County. She is survived by her husband and two children, William Perry residing at home and Mrs. V. D. Fox, of Winnipeg, who reached home a few days before her mother's death.

The death of Mrs. Ellen Barnes Grace occurred at the residence of her son Clarence Grace, in Moncton, on Tuesday evening. She was in the 74th year of her age, and was formerly Miss Ellen Barnes of Sackville. She is survived by three sons, Clifford and Clarence of Moncton and William of Somerville, Mass., and William E. Barnes of Sackville West is a brother.

John Barberie died at his home in Dalhousie on Sunday at the age of seventy-eight. He was registrar for the County of Restigouche for more than thirty years and was president of the Dalhousie Agricultural Society for a long time. He leaves his wife, who is a daughter of the late Captain A. G. Allan, also three sons and four daughters. Mrs. W. K. McKean of St. John is a daughter.

Ernest Carpenter, formerly of Wickham, Queens County, died recently in Boston. The body will be brought home for burial.

Samuel Edward Nichols, a native of Kings County, died yesterday at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. H. R. Bartlett, Lewin avenue. Mr. Nichols was a native of Kings county, but had lived in Carleton almost all his life. He was very well known in the district. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 8 o'clock.

A White Paper contains statistics relating to emigration from Ireland during 1913. The total number of emigrants during the year was 81,839. Of the males 16,432 and of the females 14,515 were natives of Ireland, equivalent to a rate of 7.1 per 1,000 of the population. The total was an increase of 1,628 as compared with 1912.

The output of coal in the United Kingdom from mines under the coal mines act in 1913 was 287,411,869 tons, the highest on record, and an increase of 27,018,291 tons over the output of 1912.

shows its white fringe and golden heart. Here a wild rose and there a tiny blue blossom amid the grasses tells the story of the week. The children ran to their garden bed. Tiny leaves were now visible where the seed had been sown two weeks before. It is a very late garden bed, and there is a dark suspicion that the head of the culinary department sowed some lettuce among the flower seeds, but another week will tell the story. There will be weeds, whatever else, but there will be nothing to tear them up and give the flower stalks a chance for life. If men and women in St. John were as eager to keep down the weeds in child nature, and give the seed that blossoms into goodness a better fighting chance, there would be more interest in playgrounds and recreation centres, and less business in the juvenile court.

Mrs. Allen at Public Landing has in her garden a great English brier rose bush that now is a mass of bloom, surpassingly lovely to the eye, and filling the air with fragrance. It blooms early, and is a joy to all beholders. In another week the wild roses will be in bloom along the wayside. Each week brings its wealth of bloom, and on every hand a greater profusion of foliage, and a larger variety of wild-flowers greet the eye.

The grass in the meadows is longer now, and when the wind sweeps over it the billowy effect once attracts and holds attention. On the broad river below the same breeze sends tiny squalls along the surface, which is troubled and darkened as we gaze, only to gleam in brightness a moment later. Ripe native strawberries were found today by the children in the sunny pasture-land, and the blossoms are out on the blackberry and the bush-cranberry, telling of fruits to come.

One of the boys made a saddening discovery today. It was his bird's nest with five tiny nestlings lying dead within. Had some boy killed the mother, or had she fallen a victim to some marauder in the animal world? The story of the woodland tragedy took something out of the sunshine of our day.

Young Hearts Rejoice
The young people gathered at the pretty pavilion among the evergreens by the shore of the river on Saturday evening and danced for more than two hours. The pavilion is open on all four sides, and the air is always fresh and sweet. Young girls and young men whose days are spent for the most part indoors in the city find their recreation by the riverside very delightful by contrast, and good-fellowship rules the hour. Last evening a great bonfire was lighted on the shore, made of the driftwood of which great quantities were strewn there by the freshets of the spring, and which were now dry and ready for the flames. Overhead the stars shone in a clear sky, in front of the surface of the river lay dark, and the white sails of a yacht that was beating down stream, and sailing in the shadows. Behind was a fringe of trees and shrubbery, dark, and for the children the night was a mystery. It was as if the streets of the city that they would wake the echoes at five o'clock in the morning, as a reminder that the Ocean would take some forty of the city-folk back to another week of labor.

Memories
More than forty years ago, two small boys, Samuel Kilburn and an American Civil War veteran, who has resided at the Riverside Hotel on Duke street for the last twelve months, committed suicide by shooting himself with a Ross rifle, the bullet penetrating his body.

The body was found this afternoon about three o'clock, the indications being that he had committed suicide yesterday. A message was left on the table which read: "Good-bye all."

Captain Kilburn was about seventy-two years of age. From those who were acquainted with him it is learned that he had enjoyed very good health at all times and the only reason which can possibly be given for the rash deed is that he was in financial difficulties.

He received a pension from the American government of $25 per month, which is scarcely enough for a man to eat and sleep on, let alone clothe himself. He told the proprietor of the hotel about a month ago, when he received his quarterly allowance that his board bill very nearly ate up the entire receipts.

Captain Kilburn entered the American army at the time of the civil war in August 29, 1861, at Poultney, Vermont. He was honorably discharged on December 15, 1863, but he re-enlisted again the following day and was mustered out as captain of the regiment then manning the fort at Burlington. At the end of the war in 1865.

His was a tragic fate. To survive four years of the bitterest warfare in the history of modern times, to follow the Union arms through defeat and victory from the opening gun of Sumpter to the surrender at Appomattox, to rise from the ranks to the command of a company, only to come to an untimely end in Moncton, hard luck without a parallel in local history at least.

When found Kilburn's right hand was grasping a long pointed stick, with which he had pushed the trigger of the rifle. He had evidently been in a sitting position on the floor and had placed a cushion back of him and laid on it and had pushed the trigger by means of the stick.

He left a letter addressed to Fred Tuttle, directing how his body was to be prepared for burial. The coroner's jury decided not to hold an inquest.

In the cloisters of Westminster Abbey is a tombstone which has been polished every morning and decorated with a bunch of flowers for nearly five years. It is over the grave of the late Mrs. Wilberforce, wife of the present Archdeacon of Westminster, who died May 15, 1909. Never a morning has passed but a fresh floral tribute has been laid on it.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

Through Civil War to Die by His Own Hand in Moncton

(Moncton Transcript, Monday.)
Captain Samuel Kilburn, an American Civil War veteran, who has resided at the Riverside Hotel on Duke street for the last twelve months, committed suicide by shooting himself with a Ross rifle, the bullet penetrating his body.

The body was found this afternoon about three o'clock, the indications being that he had committed suicide yesterday. A message was left on the table which read: "Good-bye all."

Captain Kilburn was about seventy-two years of age. From those who were acquainted with him it is learned that he had enjoyed very good health at all times and the only reason which can possibly be given for the rash deed is that he was in financial difficulties.

He received a pension from the American government of $25 per month, which is scarcely enough for a man to eat and sleep on, let alone clothe himself.

He told the proprietor of the hotel about a month ago, when he received his quarterly allowance that his board bill very nearly ate up the entire receipts.

Captain Kilburn entered the American army at the time of the civil war in August 29, 1861, at Poultney, Vermont. He was honorably discharged on December 15, 1863, but he re-enlisted again the following day and was mustered out as captain of the regiment then manning the fort at Burlington. At the end of the war in 1865.

His was a tragic fate. To survive four years of the bitterest warfare in the history of modern times, to follow the Union arms through defeat and victory from the opening gun of Sumpter to the surrender at Appomattox, to rise from the ranks to the command of a company, only to come to an untimely end in Moncton, hard luck without a parallel in local history at least.

When found Kilburn's right hand was grasping a long pointed stick, with which he had pushed the trigger of the rifle. He had evidently been in a sitting position on the floor and had placed a cushion back of him and laid on it and had pushed the trigger by means of the stick.

He left a letter addressed to Fred Tuttle, directing how his body was to be prepared for burial. The coroner's jury decided not to hold an inquest.

In the cloisters of Westminster Abbey is a tombstone which has been polished every morning and decorated with a bunch of flowers for nearly five years. It is over the grave of the late Mrs. Wilberforce, wife of the present Archdeacon of Westminster, who died May 15, 1909. Never a morning has passed but a fresh floral tribute has been laid on it.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

Mid-Summer Clearance Sale of Whitewear

Oddments and Manufacturers' Samples in Choice
Undergarments For Ladies, Misses and Children at Greatly Reduced Prices

So well known are these whitewear sales for extraordinary values that the usual great demand for the bargains is certain to be made.

Many of the garments offered have been used as samples, and may be slightly mused. There is also an accumulation representing odd and broken lines, all to be disposed of at the customary low figures.

To avoid disappointment, intending purchasers should come early.

Commencing Thursday Morning

NIGHT DRESSES—In Nainsook and Cambrie, a variety of styles in high, square and V-necks; short, three-quarter and long sleeves, lace, ribbon and embroidery trimmed; lengths 56, 58 and 60. Sale prices.....40c., 50c., 65c., 75c., 95c., $1.10

SKIRTS—Nainsook and Cambrie, in several lengths, dainty trimmings of embroidery and lace. Sale prices.....35c., 45c., 60c., 75c., $1.00

DRAWERS—Cambrie, self-frills, hemstitched tucks; also lace and embroidery frills, ribbon effects; a variety of styles. Sale prices.....20c., 25c., 35c., 50c.

CORSET COVERS—In almost every style and trimming effect; round and low necks, laces, embroideries and ribbons. Immense range of choice, from plain to elaborate kinds. Sale prices.....19c., 25c., 35c., 45c., 75c.

CHEMISES AND PRINCESS SLIPS—In Nainsook and Cambrie, assorted styles, in lace, embroidery and ribbon effects. Sale prices.....50c., 65c., $1.10, $1.25

MAIDS' APRONS—White Muslin, with and without bibs. Sale prices 15c., 25c., 35c., 45c.

Misses' and Children's Whitewear

NIGHT DRESSES—Sale prices.....35c., 50c., 60c.

DRAWERS—Sale prices.....10c., 20c., 35c., 40c.

SKIRTS—Sale prices.....35c., 50c.

INFANTS' ROBES AND CHILDREN'S DRESSES—In White Lawn. A limited quantity. Sale prices.....35c., 50c., 75c., $1.00, $1.50

SALE WILL START PROMPTLY AT 8 O'CLOCK IN WHITEWEAR DEPT. — 2ND FLOOR.

Manchester Robertson Allison, Limited

THROUGH CIVIL WAR TO DIE BY HIS OWN HAND IN MONCTON

(Moncton Transcript, Monday.)

Captain Samuel Kilburn, an American Civil War veteran, who has resided at the Riverside Hotel on Duke street for the last twelve months, committed suicide by shooting himself with a Ross rifle, the bullet penetrating his body.

The body was found this afternoon about three o'clock, the indications being that he had committed suicide yesterday. A message was left on the table which read: "Good-bye all."

Captain Kilburn was about seventy-two years of age. From those who were acquainted with him it is learned that he had enjoyed very good health at all times and the only reason which can possibly be given for the rash deed is that he was in financial difficulties.

He received a pension from the American government of $25 per month, which is scarcely enough for a man to eat and sleep on, let alone clothe himself.

He told the proprietor of the hotel about a month ago, when he received his quarterly allowance that his board bill very nearly ate up the entire receipts.

Captain Kilburn entered the American army at the time of the civil war in August 29, 1861, at Poultney, Vermont. He was honorably discharged on December 15, 1863, but he re-enlisted again the following day and was mustered out as captain of the regiment then manning the fort at Burlington. At the end of the war in 1865.

His was a tragic fate. To survive four years of the bitterest warfare in the history of modern times, to follow the Union arms through defeat and victory from the opening gun of Sumpter to the surrender at Appomattox, to rise from the ranks to the command of a company, only to come to an untimely end in Moncton, hard luck without a parallel in local history at least.

When found Kilburn's right hand was grasping a long pointed stick, with which he had pushed the trigger of the rifle. He had evidently been in a sitting position on the floor and had placed a cushion back of him and laid on it and had pushed the trigger by means of the stick.

He left a letter addressed to Fred Tuttle, directing how his body was to be prepared for burial. The coroner's jury decided not to hold an inquest.

In the cloisters of Westminster Abbey is a tombstone which has been polished every morning and decorated with a bunch of flowers for nearly five years. It is over the grave of the late Mrs. Wilberforce, wife of the present Archdeacon of Westminster, who died May 15, 1909. Never a morning has passed but a fresh floral tribute has been laid on it.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

Hidden Flavors Brought out by Windsor Table Salt

(Moncton Transcript, Monday.)

Captain Samuel Kilburn, an American Civil War veteran, who has resided at the Riverside Hotel on Duke street for the last twelve months, committed suicide by shooting himself with a Ross rifle, the bullet penetrating his body.

The body was found this afternoon about three o'clock, the indications being that he had committed suicide yesterday. A message was left on the table which read: "Good-bye all."

Captain Kilburn was about seventy-two years of age. From those who were acquainted with him it is learned that he had enjoyed very good health at all times and the only reason which can possibly be given for the rash deed is that he was in financial difficulties.

He received a pension from the American government of $25 per month, which is scarcely enough for a man to eat and sleep on, let alone clothe himself.

He told the proprietor of the hotel about a month ago, when he received his quarterly allowance that his board bill very nearly ate up the entire receipts.

Captain Kilburn entered the American army at the time of the civil war in August 29, 1861, at Poultney, Vermont. He was honorably discharged on December 15, 1863, but he re-enlisted again the following day and was mustered out as captain of the regiment then manning the fort at Burlington. At the end of the war in 1865.

His was a tragic fate. To survive four years of the bitterest warfare in the history of modern times, to follow the Union arms through defeat and victory from the opening gun of Sumpter to the surrender at Appomattox, to rise from the ranks to the command of a company, only to come to an untimely end in Moncton, hard luck without a parallel in local history at least.

When found Kilburn's right hand was grasping a long pointed stick, with which he had pushed the trigger of the rifle. He had evidently been in a sitting position on the floor and had placed a cushion back of him and laid on it and had pushed the trigger by means of the stick.

He left a letter addressed to Fred Tuttle, directing how his body was to be prepared for burial. The coroner's jury decided not to hold an inquest.

In the cloisters of Westminster Abbey is a tombstone which has been polished every morning and decorated with a bunch of flowers for nearly five years. It is over the grave of the late Mrs. Wilberforce, wife of the present Archdeacon of Westminster, who died May 15, 1909. Never a morning has passed but a fresh floral tribute has been laid on it.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

When a Chinese lady approaches a muddy place, she beckons a boy. The boy drops on his hands and knees in the mud, and the lady uses him as a stepping stone, for which service she gives him a small coin.

THE HUMAN MIND IN SUMMER

(Moncton Transcript, Monday.)

Captain Samuel Kilburn, an American Civil War veteran, who has resided at the Riverside Hotel on Duke street for the last twelve months, committed suicide by shooting himself with a Ross rifle, the bullet penetrating his body.

The body was found this afternoon about three o'clock, the indications being that he had committed suicide yesterday. A message was left on the table which read: "Good-bye all."

Captain Kilburn was about seventy-two years of age. From those who were acquainted with him it is learned that he had enjoyed very good health at all times and the only reason which can possibly be given for the rash deed is that he was in financial difficulties.

He received a pension from the American government of $25 per month, which is scarcely enough for a man to eat and sleep on, let alone clothe himself.

He told the proprietor of the hotel about a month ago, when he received