Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't Die in the House, 15c and 25c at Drug and Country Stores.

HOW TO HELP A TOWN.

The man who has the welfare of his town at heart should remember that level-headed practical business men comply in a code of words which are called to mind by the following crumbs dropped by Horace Greely in an address delivered in an ambitious western town.

Order your boots from New York.

Buy of peddlers as often as possible.

Go to some other place to get your job printing done.

Contribute what news you have to any but home papers.

Glory in the downfall of a man who has done much to build up the town.

Patronize out of town papers to the exclusion of your own and denounce them for not being as large and as cheap as city papers.

Attend the services of some minister who lives in a bigger town and has a bigger salary, and let the home preacher live on sawdust and needles. It's fashionable you know.

THE BUSINESS TRANSACTED BY COUNCIL

by M. J. Comiskey: "That the Mayor be authorized to consent to the agreement of sale between the executors of the Dr. Carroll estate and S. C. Norsworthy dated June 16th, 1915, provided that the $925 to be derived from the sale be invested in securities satisfactory to this council and that it is understood that Mrs. Carroll only receive the revenue from said investment as per the will of the late Dr. Carroll."

Heard Deputation.

The council heard a deputation from the Ingersoll, North and West Oxford Agricultural Society in regard to the proposed erection of a modern cattle barn on the fair grounds. Mr. Wm. Colyer, the opening speaker, called attention to the desire of the Society to erect a cattle building 28x98 feet. The Society he mentioned desired the co-operation of the council so far as permission was concerned to erect the building on the east side of the roadway running through the park and also in the matter of a grant of $100. Mr. Colyer emphasized the action that had been taken at Woodstock and other places in co-operating with agricultural societies and added that it was the aim of the Ingersoll Society to keep abreast of the times. Improved conditions at the Fair, he said, would prove beneficial to the town as well as to the Society. It was advisable to keep up the interest in the town and he concluded by saying that the Society would be very grateful for any assistance given. He also mentioned that a large grant was made by the Woodstock City Council to the Woodstock Fair. Other speakers on behalf of the Society were President Mayberry and J. B. Thompson. Mr. Mayberry emphasized the importance of co-operation in making the Fair a greater success than in the past. He also stated that to induce the breeders of the best cattle in the County to show it was necessary to have first-class stabling accommodation.

The Mayor wanted to know if provision was made for the making of grants to Agricultural Societies. The question to be considered, from his viewpoint was "would it be legal?"

Mr. Thompson, in speaking, called the attention of the council to the fact that the property belonged to the town, and that they would be improving their own property in making a grant to the Society.

Mr. McDougall said the council should make an effort to improve the park as well as any other town property. He emphasized that it was necessary to co-operate with the farming community. "I would be in favor of giving the Society a contribution towards erecting a building," said Mr. McDougall.

Mr. Douglass also expressed the opinion that, something should be done to help the Society and keep up the interest in the town.

The following motion carried: Moved by Elliott, seconded by Comiskey: "That the request of the Ingersoll, North and West Oxford Agricultural Society to build a building on Victoria Park be granted, and further, that the request for a grant of $100 be referred to the Finance Committee for their report at the next regular or special meeting of this council."

The Council adjourned at 9.05 to meet again Wednesday night.

BORN

MURRAY.—In Ingersoll on Friday, July 2nd, 1915, to Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Murray, a daughter.

DIED.

HOYT.—At Northport, U.S., suddenly on Friday, June 25th, 1915, Charles Bradley Hoyt, only son of the late J. J. Hoyt, M.D., of Ingersoll, Ont. Funeral, June 28th, at Spokane, Washington, U.S.

Perhaps He's Right.

That Harvard professor who said that women would make just as good warriors as men may be right, after all. He has probably been reading up the history of Boadicea, Joan of Arc, Catherine of Russia, Carrie Nation, and Mrs. Pankhurst, and with these worthy women he has contrasted the portly and peace-at-any-price person of Col. William Jennings Bryan.

The London Daily Mail renewed its attacks on the British Government.

DIED AT BELLEVILLE

Passing of Mr. N. A. Bonesteel, Father of Dr. D. A. Bonesteel, Ingersoll.

The following is from the Belleville Weekly Ontario:

Norval Aaron Bonesteel passed away last evening at seven o'clock, at his residence, Commercial street, after an illness of six months' duration. He was born in Sidney in the year 1844, the son of the late Gilbert Bonesteel, and spent all his life in that township until seven years ago, when he came to Belleville to reside. He was a Methodist in religion, and a member of Bridge Street church.

He was a past district deputy grand master of the Masonic Order, and was a member of The Belleville Lodge No. 123 A. F. and A. M., having affiliated from Frank Lodge. He was a former member of the I. O. F.

Mourning his loss are three sons, George, Belleville; D. A. of Ingersoll; and Earl of Sidney, and two daughters, Mrs. W. J. Sharpe, Sidney, and Mrs. F. Hawkins of Girvin, Sask.

The late Mr. Bonesteel was well and favorably known, and his death is deeply regretted.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon from his late residence, Commercial street, to White's Cemetery, Front of Sidney. It was under Masonic auspices and was largely attended by members of the Craft and citizens. An impressive service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Osborne, of Bridge Street Methodist church, assisted by the Rev. Amos Campbell, who officiated at the marriage of the deceased forty-five years ago. Many floral tokens were indicative of esteem and sympathy. The pallbearers were three Past District Deputy Grand Masters of Prince Edward District, and three Past Masters of Frank Lodge, with which deceased was formerly affiliated.

The Substitution.

It is a well known fact that both Sir Arthur Sullivan and Sir W. S. Gilbert had a horror of the titles of their operas becoming known until the very night of their performance. This fear that they might be forestalled created considerable confusion at the initial production of "Iolanthe; or, The Peer and the Peri." The opera was rehearsed for weeks under the title of "Perola." It was only at the dress rehearsal that the company was instructed to substitute the name Iolanthe for that of Perola whenever it occurred in the text or lyrics. It was no easy task to replace vocally, and in the dialogue a name of three syllables for one of four. Sullivan, however, said (maybe aside) to one of the actors who were nervous: "Go ahead and sing the music. Gilbert won't be in front." (Gilbert never attended the first night, "no use any name that you think of first if you are rattled. No one in the audience will be any wiser.")

Death Dealing Kisses.

The most famous example of kisses that have caused death is furnished by the story of the sprightly young Duchess of Gordon, who raised so many recruits for the famous Gordon highlanders. In the early days of the regiment recruiting was very slow, but the duchess attired herself in the regimental colors and made a tour of the various markets and fairs, offering to recruit a guinea and a kiss.

Most of the recruits paid for the kiss with their lives. No sooner was the regiment raised than it was sent to fight the French; and in the first engagement in which the duchess' recruits participated there was a loss of 300 killed and wounded. All the right flanking company was hit save one, and he, curiously enough, did not happen to be a recipient of the young duchess' kiss. He was a canny Aberdeenshire man, and for an extra guinea he sold his right to another person to a kiss from the duchess' ruby lips.—London Graphic.

The Fire Worshipers.

Azerbaijan, a province in northwestern Persia, is the home of the descendants of the Ghebers, the ancient fire worshipers of Persia. The whole country is admirably adapted to the propagation of a fire worshiping creed, for earthquakes and caverns vomiting fumes from subterranean conflagrations abound in the neighborhood of Tabriz. One of the most remarkable caverns in the world is that of Secunderabad, whose character resembles the Grotto del Cane of Naples. It gives off noxious fumes, which at certain times are certain death to man and beast. But the most astonishing place in Azerbaijan is the ruined city of Tahb-e-Soleiman, or Solomon's temple. The city stands on a hill 350 feet high, with a wall of thirty feet embracing the crumbling remains of temple and shrine. In the midst is a "lake of deepest azure." Although most of the buildings are of the Mohammedan period, there is one striking mass which has been identified as the temple of the fire worshipers.

A Bit Tired.

A somewhat weather beaten tramp, being asked what was the matter with his coat, replied: "Tasmania. It hasn't had a nap in ten years."—Christian Science.

SERVING UNDER "RAWLEY."

Canadians in Europe Brigaded in Rawlinson's Division.

The name of Lieut.-Gen. Sir Henry Seymour Rawlinson, Bart., C.B., C.V.O., has figured in the despatches relating to the fighting of the Canadians at the front. Gen. Alderson is in command of our boys, but Lieut.-Gen. Rawlinson is in charge of the division to which the Canadians are attached.

His first service was in Burma, with the 60th Rifles, where two years were spent in a tedious campaign against dacoit bands. Lord Roberts next made him one of his aides, a fact which undoubtedly had much to do with his subsequent success. Regarding this post he attended the Staff College, from which he eventually passed out extremely creditably. By this time he was quite the scientific soldier, and, what is more, exceedingly ambitious and capable. Thus it was that, in 1898, he became D.A.A.G. to Lord Kitchener, and was present in that capacity at the battles of Atbara and Khartoum. K. of R. endorsed Lord Roberts' opinion of his brains by mentioning him twice in despatches and in taking this comparatively young officer very much into his confidence, indeed, treating him as one of his right-hand men.

By this time he was no longer a rifleman, having exchanged from the 60th into the Coldstream Guards, and on war breaking out in South Africa, Sir George White, who was very much one of "Bobs" men, and an admirer of "Bobs" discoveries, asked to have him on his staff in Natal. The consequence of this request was that, as A.A.G., Rawlinson was with Sir George during the defence of Ladysmith. Though nowadays the siege of that place seems almost a small episode, yet it must not be forgotten that the defending force suffered tremendous privations and showed the utmost skill and gallantry in defending Ladysmith until its relief. Rawlinson did so well with Sir George's command that he was promoted to headquarters in South Africa, serving under both of his former chiefs, "Bobs," and "Lord K." He also found time to command a mobile column, get mentioned three times in despatches, and get both the King's and Queen's medals with eight clasps. By this time he had convinced everyone that he had brains, so his appointment as commandant of the Staff College was considered eminently suitable, and so it proved. After this he got command of a brigade at Aldershot, and later of a division on Salisbury Plain. He is essentially a soldier of the modern school of thought, and believes that brains are better than beauty, initiative more useful than pipeclay. Most men with the money he has would have retired long ago. Only the love of his work and a desire to distinguish himself kept him in the army. He is only fifty years of age.

Gen. Rawlinson has told us much that he has done in France, and all that he has told us is to "Rawley's" credit. Amongst other things we learn that upon one occasion he was brave enough to take the responsibility of questioning Sir John's orders and refusing to sacrifice his men on what he recognized as a hopeless enterprise, and Sir John French in his despatches agreed, when the circumstances came to light that Sir Henry had been correct in his judgment. In doing this he undoubtedly did a far more gallant act than in refusing responsibility by scrupulously obeying instructions and throwing away his men's lives. He has brains, he has energy, and the power to command; with a combination there is little doubt but that the men under him have full confidence in him and will follow him to the end. He is a product of Eton, and Eton may well be proud of him.

One on Leacock.

Stephen Leacock, who has been on the public platform recently reading from his own works for the benefit of the Belgians, tells a sad story about one of his recent chummen at a similar function in another city, says Beck's Weekly (Montreal). This chairman was one of the solid type of thinkers who are apt to get lost in the mazes of their own oratory; and when he rose after the readings to express the gratitude of the audience he alluded to the generous outburst of applause that had followed the conclusion of the performance and went on: "But I may say, Mr. Leacock, that we should have been even more generous in our applause had you sat down sooner." Somewhat alarmed, the eminent professor gripped the seat of his chair and waited for the criticism of his remarks which he supposed was to follow this remarkable utterance; but none came. And the mystery was not cleared up until half-past two the following morning, when the professor was awakened from profound slumber in his bedroom at the hotel by sounds of uproar in the hall, and his late chairman burst into the bedroom, in a state of wild agitation, and shouting: "I must see him! I must see him!" to the night clerk and three bell-boys, who were vainly endeavoring to find him back. And having achieved an entrance to the bedroom, the chairman proceeded to explain that what he had meant to say was that if Prof. Leacock had broken his entertainment into sections, and sat down, or left the platform, like a concert artist, after each number, he would have been as loudly applauded at these various points as he was at the end of the lecture.

Raising Indian Corps.

Mr. F. O. Loft, who is engaged in raising an Indian unit for service at the front, is meeting with considerable success. Col. Merritt has promised to equip the corps.

Mr. Loft, at a recent meeting, reviewed during a period of centuries the fidelity and patriotism of his race, and particularly the Mohawks, and urged his auditors to enlist, and to be prepared, if required, to go forth to duty in the present crisis.
