sure incidental te ned that the Monti-seaworthy, there is E CAUSE her sudden founoper stowage of states that she foundered." Was ight (of cargo) in p, I submit that uch laxity in stowvoyage is likely to "Oh, we are only down the river." ard; and of course well hen the life-boats sels were brought hops, bo'sn's lockcoops, etc., in fact or everything but nent, as that would ink of. They were position as would work to launch hed would speedily denly Sam Plimsolf is name) arose in on and caused a rethods, and as a reay in England cerch compels every ssenger or freight. date life-boat, fully of emergency, and unching is reduced m Plimsoll in Can-X-SHIPMASTER.

announced at the n in Main street nday evening that g Sackville to acgewater, N. S. At a held last evening, tion was regretfully eave about the first

D. D. S., who has profession in Sackur years, left last r, B. C., where he The doctor was the younger people eir best wishes will app, another Sackalso left town, but far as Dorchester. ld to Dr. Sangste

OPERATORS.

ov. 14.-The grand dictments against Frank Wilson, the the divorce mill. ere charged with rnation of perjury. aigned before Reto the indictments re two indictments two indictments indictment against gainst each of the k and Miss Thomp-

TED.

Apply MISS Mt.

Men in every locality introduce our goods on trees fences along euous places, also dia rtising matter. Com-1.00 per month and ex-12.50 per day. Steady honest, reliable men. . Write for full par-

SIONAL.

MORRISON

HIS PRACTICE. and Throat Only.

AIN STREET.

IS BROWNE'S ODYNE

LONDON NEWS, of which single medicine which single medicine ke abroad with me, as generally useful, to the others, I should say ever travel without it, tability to the relief of cability to the relief of mple ailments forms its

owne's Chlorodyne T SPECIFIC FOR ENTERY, CHOLERA

Chlorodyne. Every all known remedy for STHMA, BRONCHITIS,

LIS BROWNE. sts at 15. 1%d., 2s. 9d.,

ENPORT St., London, W. C.

******* WORK. g to work who can spare d wages. We furnish s on several plans and with yarn free, expres-it d into socks to., and pay. Pistance to hindr parti ulais address: Toronto, Canada, *******

ISEASES AND es arising, quickly and per ad at the old reliable EDICAL INSTITUTE

(for 30 years), graduate of ass. Volunteers; Assistant s from the College of where others fail. day. Key to health.

A FRENCH VIEW.

Fatal Errors of the Leading Boer Generals.

A Passage in the Twenty-seventh Psalm that Did More for

England

Than All that Has Been Accomplished By Lyddite and General Lord Roberts-Notes of a French Officer in the Transvaal.

(From the Paris Figaro.)

If the English generals at the beginning of the South African campaigh astonished the world with their incompetence and were beaten in nearly every encounter by a numerically inferior enemy, the Boer chiefs who were opposed to them have shown that they were, perhaps, still worse; and they are in a large measure responsible for the reverses which have delivered their country to the invader. Of course they have the excuse of not being professional military men; many of them never saw war. They were called suddenly from their farms to direct the march of several thousand undisciplined men totally devoid of military instruction. Elected by the burghers, from the "corporal" to the "commandant general," these Boer officers have no other authority than that which their men chose to give them.

Unfortunately, events have proven that, in the selection of men for the higher grade offices, and especially for the office of general, errors have been committed. Even in times of peace there is nothing that can guide the burghers in their voting. They gener ally chose rich and educated farmers, or else some of the men that distinguished themselves during the war of independence of twenty years ago.

These old Boers of 1881 make war as much with the Bible as with arms. Every order is accompanied with a verse from Scripture, and in the Twenty-seventh Psalm—if I am not mistaken—there is a passage that has done more for the English than all that has been accomplished by lyddite and Gen. Roberts. This passage is to the effect that you shall not kill an enemy who is not attacking you. The English army has been saved several times by these few words of the Old

Recently the Daily Mail itself pubthe six battalions of Col. Thorney-River without getting in range of four ferent kind. At the battle of Nichol-, of the army. The positions are all elecsons Nek, Gen. White was utterly de- tive, no matter what the grade. feated, and half of his left wing, being the retreat of the enemy, when the frontier, which is soon reached. ings of the other generals he answer- the mobilization is completed.

"LAT DE KERLS LOOPEN"

(Let those fellows run). If Botha had been in command then, the English army would have been destroyed, the siege of Ladysmith would never have taken place, and, maybe, the Boers would have reached Durban before Gen. Buller's army of relief.

On the side of the Orange Free State, Gen. Piet Cronje committed errors similar to those made by Joubert in Natal. The stubbornness of this old Boer was equalled only by his fatuity. When the European officers advised him to attack Kimberley, which was defended only by a thousand volunteers, he answered, shrugging his shoulders: "I was a general when you were babes in your mothers' arms. Besides, what's the use of risking the lives of my brughers? The Lord will surely cause the fall of a town that holds within its walls the worst of all He referred to Cecil monsters." Rholes.

After having repulsed Lord Methuen at Magersfontein he would not follow up his victory nor would he attack the English camp, which was filled with discouraged soldiers, who were almost in nutiny, and who would not salute goes to war in his everyday clothes. their general. And when, two months later, Gen. French's cavalry passed at a few miles' distance from his left of a dark color, over which his carafter he was surrounded at Paardecutting a passage for him they urged him to take advantage of it, but the only answer he had for them was: "Look out for yourselves, and I'll look out for myself.' In the end, however, he earned forism of his desperate defence.

Unfortunately, as much cannot be said for another general whose incompetence did frightful damage to the army of Natal. Gen. Lucas Meyer is the only vecht general-except Col. entire families leave their farms and Villebois-Mareuil-who received his join the column. They carry all their command from the government with- goods in a huge wagon, in the back of out having been elected by the burg- which there is a compartment for the hers. Physically he is one of the handsomest men in South Africa. He is 6 on horseback, helping the Kaffirs to ongues. So he became the counsellor of several native negro kings, and contributed to a great degree to the an-nexation to the Transvaal of the New Republic in 1886 and of Swaziland in recent years,

It was these successes, so little military in their character, which caused him to be appointed general, and in the discharge of his new duties he showed himself to be equally unskilful and uncourageous. It was his fault that the 4,000 English from Dundee succeeded in reaching Ladysmith by an almost impassable road, on which a hundred men would have been able to stop them. Later it was upon his advice that, despite the pleading of Botha, the right bank of the Tugela was abandoned, and that the superb positions at Colenso, which the English had been attacking unsuccessfully for three months, fell into the hands of the latter without a struggle. Lastiy, he allowed himself to be turned by Sir Redvers Buller at Helpmakaar, like Cronje at Koffeyfontein. The day before this happened he watched the English army marching on the plain of Pomercy, and he would not stir to aid the 200 men who were barring the enemy's way. When these 200 were obliged in the presence of overwhelming forces to abandon Helpmakaar, the army retired in the best of order, without losing a cannon or even a wagon! The general alone lost his head and fled in haste toward the north. Then only the burghers refused to serve under his orders and caused the government to deprive him of his command.

THE SICKNESS AND DEATH

of Joubert and the surrender of Cronie happening at almost the same time brought to the head of the army younger chiefs who were men of other worth. If, with the handful of men left to them, they have not been able to triumph over the English invaders, at least they will have the consolation of selling their lives and their independence dearly and of doing for their country all that courageous men can

The army of the South African Republic in no way resembles the armies of Europe. Military service does not exist in the country, and it was only after Dr. Jameson's raid, four years ago, that a permanent artillery corps.

consisting of 400 men, was created. When war is declared every citizen between 16 and 60 years of age takes his Mauser rifle, his cartridge belt, and a little dried meat, mounts his horse, and goes to the capital of his canton, or wijck. There all hands assemble under the orders of the veldtkornets, the number of which is regulated according to the size of the wijck. The veldtkornet is a permanent functionary of peace he assesses the taxes and commands the farmers in time of war. lished the account of the retreat of All the detachments of the veldtkornets of one district form a commando croft, after the battle of Spion Kop; under the orders of the commandant. they could not re-pass the Tugela. The number of men in a commando varies greatly. For example, that of Boer cannon, which Gen. Joubert re- Pretoria is 2,500, while that of Swaziefused to have fired. Three months be- | land is only 140. Several commandoes fore that the commandant general had are grouped together into a little army showed a goodness of heart, which under the direction of a veldt general. had important results of a very dif- The commandant general is the chief surrounded by the commandes of de of the district they receive new sup-Vrede and of Harrismith, surrendered; plies, if necessary, and wagons drawn the other half fled. Thereupon the by oxen or mules, and loaded with rest of the army retired in the great- tents, preserved food, cartridges and est disorder. The "Long Toms" of the tools, are furnished to the commandos. Boers, an eye witness tells me, were A large number of Kaffir servants folploughing furrows through the English low their masters on reserve horses or columns, and the commandos of Lucas, in the wagons which they drive with Meyer and of Botha were coming marvellous skill. From the district down from Lombards Kop to cut off capital the commandos start for the At general-in-chief had the artillery fire the last railroad station they are joinstopped and also the offensive move- ed by the artillery and the ambulances ment of his left wing. To the plead- that have come from Pretoria. Thus,

> The Boer army marches without the slightest order, but with extraordinary rapidity. The chief of each fraction knows only the destination of the marching army, and he goes there as quickly as possible, without paying any attention to the other commandos. When he finds near a stream a favorable location still unoccupied, he takes up his position there, and the wagons are arranged in their places off the route of march, the animals are sent out to graze under the surveillance of the Kaffirs, and the fires are lighted. Coffee comes next, and after swallowing it the Boers retire to await the rise of the sun or of the moon to resume the march. The different divisions of the column pass one another constantly, and marching through camps in bivouac is of continual occurrence. The miscellaneous teams, the horsemen grouped with no regard to order, the shouts of the Kaffirs at the mules, the whistling of the long whips with bamboo handles-all give to the commando the aspect of a gypsy band rather than of an army on the march.

Except in the artillery there is no uniform in the Boer army. The Boer wing to make a dash by way of Koffy- touchieres are thrown in the form of fontein to deliver Kimberley, although a St. Andrew's cross. Any old thing he had notice of this movement of the goes for his trousers, but his boots are enemy, Cronje refused to budge, con- strong and solid, one only being fursidering it impossible that an English- nished with a spur, usually, turned man should pass where he, Conje, did out. The entire outfit is surmounted not want him to pass. Finally when, by a long beard and a felt hat with a narrow brim, that is soon knocked berg, two veldt kornets succeeded in out of shape and color by the sun and the rain. In this costume the Boer goes to war. He has three enemies, the flies, the sun and the English. Against the first his only weapon is patience. Against the second he uses his umbrella, which in fine weather is giveness for all his faults by the hero- attached to the saddle; and for the last he has his Mauser, which he carries across his bock or in the holster expressly made for it, which hangs behind his right leg. When the commandos are in retreat women and children. The men travel

HE WEARS A JACKET

NO MAN IS STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The stomach is the vital center of the body. It is the organ from which all other organs are fed. A weak stomach strong man with a weak stomach. What is called "weak stomach" is in general a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, which prevents the proper digestion of the food which is taken into the stomach, and so reduces the nutrition of the body. When all food is taken away the body. When all food is taken away the body starves. When the food eaten is only digested and assimilated in part it only nourishes the body in part, and so the body is partly starved. And this starvation is felt in every organ of the body dependent on the blood which is made from food.

The great variety of the cures per-

The great variety of the cures per-formed by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is due to its remarkable power to heal diseases of the stomach and allied organs. It cures through the stomach diseases seemingly remote, but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and the other organs of digestion and nutrition. "Weak" heart, lungs, kidneys and weakness of other organs is cured with the cure of the weak stomach.

cure of the weak stomach.

Mr. Thomas A. Swarts, Box 103, Sub-Station C., Columbus, Ohio, writes: "I was taken very sick with severe headache, then crampslin the stomach, and food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble, and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. The more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I got so thin I had given up to die, thinking that I could not be cured. Then one of my neighbors said, 'Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) lbs. in about six weeks. I have done more hard work in the past eleven months than I did in two years before, and I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

were not of much value, but he did not want to let anything fall into the hands of the hated "khakis."

When the army halts for a certain time the commandos establish their laagers near some railway station. The tents are thrown up rapidly. The trains bring along cattle and provisions of all sorts. A bakery is hastily established. Sometimes entire wagonloads of straw and cornstalks serve to better the food of the horses. The aspect of the camp is as confused and picturesque as the line of march of the commandos. Tents and wagons are scattered about in all directions. The tent of the general-in-chief is distinguished from the others simply by the little tri-color flag that surmounts elected by the burghers, and in time it. All through the day the burghers on their horses gallop back and forward in fatigue uniform-that is to say, without their Mausers and cartridge belts-to and from the railroad station, to get letters from their wives and journals from Johannesburg, which the railroad employes deliver gratis. The station is the regular place of rendezvous. Some go to the bar to get pipes and tobacco. Others the front the burghers who returned after leave of absence, or who come back from the hospitals convalescent When the burghers reach the capital and confident; and many more crowd in front of the official bulletins giving brief accounts of the military operations. In the camp, when the Boers have nothing else to do, they pass their time in sleep, at prayer and at target practice. The slow and monotonous psalms are interrupted constantly by the rattle of rifles, and the bullets fly in all directions, making the approaches to the laager often more dangerous than a line of battle. Consequently accidents are frequent. During the two months that the army of Natal remained near Glencoe, half a dozen burghers were killed by accident and only two were killed in ac-The quiet life of the camp is often interrupted by the attacks of the English. While the purghers are fighting, the Kaffirs unfurl the tents and load the wagons. This is done in an incredibly short time. At the close of the fight the march is resumed forward or backward according to the result of the day, and on the order of the general, a new laager is establish-

Such has been the life of the Boer commandos during the past year. As the war is prolonged and the towns fall into the hands of the enemy, existence becomes harder and more painful. But it requires so little to sustain the Transvaal farmer that he will be able, without too many privations, to fight till his last cartridge is gone. That is the reason why the English are bound still to meet with many deceptions and surprises before they will be able to pacify the annexed territories and finally conquer their alert and ac-J. CARNE. tive enemnes.

QUAKER REFLECTIONS.

It isn't right to pay left-handed compliments. The widow's life is not always choked with weeds.

The height of ill-breeding, according to accepted social standards, must be to listen to the music at the opera. Almost any woman can talk her husmand into buying her a $25 hat, and yet some idiot once started the rumon that talk is cheap.

THEY FEAR MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

England's legitimate and glorious imperial ism of former days has disappeared; that of today is founded on rancour. It has become peevish and aggressive, and Europe is forced to consider it as to be dreaded, because it is a continual menace to her. Mr. Chamberis a continual menace to her. Mr. Chamber-lain has been the principal agent of this de-testable transformation, and for this reason the entire continent bestows on him unceas-ing expressions of its antipathy. He counts for much in the insecurity of the present mement, and England need not be surprised that her "modern style" imperialism, which has chosen so dangerous a goufather, should be received with reserve.—Journal des De-bets, Paris.

UNIQUE.

"I think we ought to give this wedding a display here on the first page," said the city editor.
"Out of the ordinary, is it?" asked the feet tall and formed in proportion, and his long gray beard makes him look the wagon provisions are piled and also like a patriarch of sacred history. He lived a long time in the neighborhood of Vriheid, on the Zulu and Swazi frontiers, and he has the reputation of being of all the white men the one that best speaks the different native best speaks the different native of the amaging editor. "Well, I should say it was," answered the managing editor. "Well, I should say it was," answered the farm. The cattle, sheep and goats travel by the side of the moving habitation. In Natal I saw an old man tation. In Natal I saw an old man with a switch driving before him a dozen guinea nens. The fowl certainly lit's the only one of the kind."

SIR JAMES OUTRAM.

The Bayard of the Indian Army.

Among the memorials of heroic men in Westminster Abbey there is not one more worthy than that of General Sir James Outram, "The Bayard of the Indian Army." He was so-called because he resembled in character the amous Chevalier Bayard, the knight sans peur et sans reproche. This French soldier of the olden time was one of the bravest of the brave and was also one of the most gentle, modest, and pious men in the armies of Francis I. He fell in the Spanish war in 1523, and his memory was long held in honor as a pattern of true chivalry. To be called the Bayard of the Indian army was thus no slight honor to Outram. He, too, was a gallant and brave soldier; he, too, was gentle, modest and pious, the piety being of higher and purer type than that of medieval times.

A great poet has said: "The Christian is the highest type of man." Outram showed his Christianity not only in religious spirit and observances, but he carried it into his professional career and his public life, as the following anecdote proves:

When Sir Charles Napier, determined to invade Scinde and suppress the warlike and troublesome Ameers of that country, Outrain did not approve of the policy, but

AS A SOLDIER HE OBEYED,

and by his gallantry contributed largely to the swift and decisive victory and conquest. When the prize-money came to be distributed, Outram said that as he disapproved of the war he would not accept his share of the rewards. On this refusal being represented to him as a reflection on others, he gave the whole of the money that fell to his share to the establishment of Christian missions and schools. In the war with Persia, just before the Indian mutiny, he was chief of the expedition, with Havelock second in command—a man of equal gallantry and of kindred spirit. They soon became fast friends, as two Christian men were likely to be when engaged in the same perilous and patriotic ser-

They had scarcely returned from the Persian expedition when the mutiny of the Sepoy army broke out. The story of Havelock's battles and marches is well known to readers of Indian history. With a small force he had to oppose overwhelming numbers of the rebel armies, and although he

GAINED SEVERAL VICTORIES, giving the first check to the triumphant mutineers, the losses in his little army, and the outbreak of cholera in camp, compelled him to retreat his without reaching Lucknow, and he had to wait for reinforcements before resuming his advance. The reinforcements at length came, under General Outram. Being senior officer, he was entitled to take com-This Havelock expected, mand. though he could not but feel hurt by wait for the trains that bring back to the thought that he would seem to be superceded on account of the failure of his first advance. The Outram saw this, and with a generosity ever to be remembered, he waiv ed his right of seniority and placed his military services at Havelock's disposal as a volunteer. The divisional order in which he declared this purpose is such as was never before issued to an army by its commander.

THE AGE OF CHIVALRY

is not gone when Outram thus spoke and acted, and his conoduct towards Havelock will have an influence for good for all time. In the second advance on Lucknow, Havelock led the force as skilfully as before, and the troops had again to face the same difficulties, and to encounter greater resistance. But they had confidence to use the words of Outram, "that the great end for which General Havelock and his brave troops have so long and generously fought will now, under the blessing of Providence, be accomplished."

One incident more must be mentioned. When Havelock's son per formed a daring and gallant deed during the advance, his father hesitated to recommend him for the Victoria Cross, lest he might be charged with favoritism. Outram thus wrote to him, in terms honorable alike to father and son, and worthy of his own chivalrous nature: "I shall deeply regret having divested myself of the command during the advance on Lucknow, if, from what I must regard as morbidly sensitive delicacy, you with hold from Lieutenant Havelock, because he is your relative, the reward to which, as a soldier, he has so un-mistakably established a first claim.' Does not Outram well bear the title "the Bayard of the Indian army?"

REV. MR. ALMOND.

(Charlottetown Guardian.) The telegraphic information that the Rev. J. Almond, B. A., Anglican chaplain to the Royal Canadian Regiment has decided to enter the imperial ser vice is of interest to many outside of the circle in which he moved previous to his appointment a year ago. His career at the front has been unmarked by sensational incidents, but steady adherence to duty, self-sacrificing performance of work of an arduous and trying nature, and a constant and cheerful zeal have marked his connec tion with the regiment, have lifted it above commonplace compliance with regulations, and entitle him to an honorable place in the annals of the first contingent

Rev. Mr. Almond's work compelled attention in the evil days when the enteric fever was wasting the ranks of the army at Bloemfontein. Illness had separated him from the regiment when the march to Paardeberg began and he was not present on the field where the Canadians received their baptism of fire.

That was a circumstance of lasting regret to him, for he possesses an active and adventurous temperament, of the type which finds a relish in the incidents of battle. The epidemic at the Free State capital called forth all the energy of the chaplains of the army, and Mr. Almond threw himself with

OXYDONOR CURES DISEASE WITHOUT DRUGS

Trade Mark Registered in Canada June 24, 1897.

Grippe, Catarrh or Bright's Disease this winter?

Shakespeare said. "Throw Physic to the Dogs."

The better class of thinkers are do ing this every day.

The Oxygen of the Air takes the plac, of disappointing medication, and cures more ills than all the drugs and nostrums in the world.

You cannot contest this common sense fact.

OXYDONOR causes the human body to drink in the oxygen of the air, and disease to vanish uring sleep. Why not fortify yourself against disease? Oxygen is its natural enemy. Are you not liable to contract Bronchitis, Pneumonia, Rheumatism, La

It will pay you to own Oxydoner and be on the safe side.

MUSCULAR PAINS.

MR JAMES BLACK, with G H. Farrar Stoneware Pottery Co, Iberyille, P. Q., writes July 21, 1900. "Having been troubled with muscular pains for years, I decided at last to try Oxydonor. After the second application I have lelt no pain. For the pass year after my days work I wou d be so tred at night that I did no know how to rest myself. That feeling has also left me, and I feel as fresh at night has in the morning." PNEUMONIA, COLDS. MR. J. H. BARNE<sup>4</sup>, Greenwood, B. C., writes July 10, 1900; N"With Oxydonor, I broke a severe cold in one night several times; broke pheumonia twice; and it helped me greatly in a chronic case where m ny dectors failed, and one bonest one plainly told me there was no help, and my time was short. This was four years ago; now, though not a strong man, there is no one in the country able to give me second place in my line of work."

BRONCHITIS, CATARRH. MR. F. FRER, Winnipeg, Man., writes July 31, 1900: "I have used Oxydonor for two weeks for nchitis and Catarrh of the head, and I feel like a new man."

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

MRS. F. 1. COOK, Isabel Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba, writes June 5, 1900: I have suffered un-old agonies from Bright's Disease, and Oxydonor relieved me of pain, and in six weeks I was

SEVERE COLD.

MR. R. I. CRISP. Souris, Man., writes Apri? 9, 1900: "In case of severe cold, stiffness of joints and sore benes, by applyin Oxydonor over night. I got immediate relief"

On request we will send you our book containing prices and other information about Oxydonor, with end reem-nts of prominent Cauadians.

BEWARE OF INI. TIONS On June 29th, 1900, judgment was rendered in the Exchequer Court of Canada, granting the proprietors of Dr. Hercules Sauche's Oxydonor and trade marks a perpetual injunction against infringers. Suits against any other imitators will be vigorously prosecuted.

United States Offices:
261 Fifth Ave., New York.
61 Fifth St., Detroit, Mich
57 State St., Chicago, Ill.

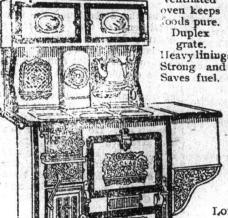

Dept. W. S.

DR. H. SANCHE & CO., 2268 St. Catherine street, Montrest, Que.

STEEL RANGES

$25.00 to $500.00

Any size, any price, for any purpose. Made of the best patented steel sheets. Asbestos lining protects steel and prevents heat escaping. The ventilated even keeps Duplex

Heavy linings that cannot crack or crumble. Strong and durable. Will last a lifetime.
Saves fuel. Just the thing for a farmer. A good baker and heater.

PAMPHLET FREE

nearest house. Made in all sizes for all purposes from our local agent or our

LONDON, TORONTO, MONTREAL, WINNIPEG AND

The McClary Manufacturing Co.

The Semi-Weekly Sun

The Co-operative Farmer ONE YEAR FOR ONLY $1,20.

This great combination offer is only open to new subscribers or to old subscribers who pay all arrearages at the regular rate, and one year in advance

THE CO-OPERATIVE FARMER is a Semi-Monthly Journal, exclusvely devoted to the interests of the farmers of the Maritime Provinces. It is the official organ of the Farmers' and Dairymen's Association of New Brunswick; the Nova Scotia Farmers' Association, and the Maritime Stock Breed

THE ST. JOHN SEMI-WEEKLY SUN is the best newspaper a Maritime farmer can take. It is published on Wednesdays and Saturdays, eight large pages every issue, containing all the provincial as well as foreign news.

THE MOST COMPLETE WAR SERVICE

of any paper in Eastern Canada, and its frequency of issue makes it of especial interest during the strife in South Africa.

EMEMBER THIS OFFER IS GOOD ONLY ON ABOVE CONDITIONS. Address, with Cash

Sun Printing Company, St. John, N. B.

called for. Sorely against his natural inclinations he remained in the hospitals when the march northward began, for the regiment left behind it a rear guard of scores of sufferers who need ed his ministrations. When circum stances permitted he left Bloemfon tein, and by an energetic bit of travel ling rejoined the regiment in time to participate in the entry nto Pretoria His services at Bloemfontein cause him to be employed to a considerable extent in executive work connected with the alleviating of the condition of the soldiers all along the line of communications, and in all circumstances he showed himself the same

A knack for executive work, zeal, practical piety and unselfishness make No an excellent equipment for labors such as those to which Mr. Almond has devoted himself, and he will be followed in his career by the good wishes of his fellow-countrymen to whom he has kindly, considerate, cheery and unaffected minister of good.

his full strength and with rare self-abnegation into the laborious and often harrowing duties which the situation license last week.—Ohio State Journal.

THE WAR CORRESPONDENT.

(Westminster Gazette.) No more for him the dust along the street, The cry of newsboys and the traffic's din, The joy of balanced prose—the work well done.

Rap at his door-another cries "come in."

Another, who will write as well as he,
Another, who perchance knows not his name, But fills the well-worn chair with boyish pride, And dreams the same old dreams of work No more for him the grind-slow- word on

His paper prints his name, and then forgets;
He showed rare promise and he laughed at "He sent his news-a truce to vain re-more for him the saddle and the spur. The maddened ride, the hardship, and the He saw great deeds, and earned his little Death jerked his bridle when the march

City and kopje! what to him is change?
Topper and helmet! what to him is dress?
The fever passed him, but the rifles saw—God rest him! and his paper goes to press.