Something of Which Boston is Justly Proud and Does Not Hesitate to Let the World Know It.

(Special to the Sun.) BOSTON, July 10.-Thousands of spectators attended the launching the first seven masted schooner, and the largest sailing ship the world has ever seen, at the yard of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., near Boston, this afternoon. The big schoone was launched stern on into the Wey mouth River, one of the arms of Bo ton harbor, and was named the Thomas W. Lawson for the well known She was christened by Miss Helen Watson the daughter of Thos. A. Watson, president of the Fore River Co., who is now a sophomore at Wellesley College. The launching was accomplished successfully and aroused great interest in the vicinity becau it marked the revival of shipbuilding

The Lawson is the biggest sailing vessel that was ever launched, and is er. More than that, she is the first seven-masted vessel of any kind ever constructed. Her launching, therefore necessitated some unusual preparations, the conditions being somewhat complicated by the fact that her seven steel lower masts were put in place while she was, still on the stocks.

The groundways were two feet wide and one foot thick, extending about 300 feet astern of the schooner as she lay in her cradle; the slidingways were somewhat narrower and gave her a bearing surface of 805 feet. As the hooner's weight at her launching was 2,500 tons, the pressure on the ways was a little more than three tons to the square foot. A ton and a half of tallow, spread over with soft soap and linseed oil, was smeared on the indways as "launching grease," and the great hull was held in position bolting one end of the slidingways which had been cut partly through t the groundways, the cradle being released by severing the remaining planks. It took a force of 200 men to knock out the shores and keel blocks and set her moving. When she get into the water the ship was brought to a standstill by means of one of her

During the launching the Lawson was in charge of Captain Arthur L. Crowley, who is to be her comm and who has been the captain of the six-masted schooper George W. Wells, which, when she was put overboard a year or so ago, was the largest foreand-after ever attempted. The syndicate for which the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. built the seven-master is headed by Captain Crowley's brother, Captain John G. Crowley, as managing owner, and includes the Boston "copper king." Thomas W.

aftermost point the Thomas W. Law-son measures nearly 500 feet, her overall length being 403 feet, her water line length 368 feet, her beam 50 feet and her depth 34 feet five inches. She will draw 26 and a half feet of water when fully loaded. Inside of this enormous hull, which has a displacement of 11,000 tons, there is room for 8,100 tons of cargo.

The Lawson's masts are unusual, no only for their number but for their size and construction. Each is 155 feet high, with an Oregon pine topmast 58 feet long, the lower masts being steel cylinders 32 inches in diameter. The masts alone weigh about 17 tons a piece and their rigging adds almost three tons to each. The 85-foot spike bowsprit is also of steel. Forty-three nd square feet of canvas will be stretched from these great poles.

To handle such heavy rigging as the seven-master's is practically beyond the power of human muscle, and five engines of 25 horse-power each will hoist and lower sails. Besides this, they will do stevedore work when they are not on crew duty. They have been placed near the six big hatchways with that in view. A sixth engine, of 40 horse-power, is to work the capstan, adian ministers are giving a dinner at to which are attached two 10,000 pound Hotel Cecil, July 15th, in acknowledgestockless anchors. The foremost and aftermost engines are in deck-houses with the bollers that supply steam, while the others stand in the open. The steam steering gear is connected with the after boller, while the forward beller to the middle of August, Sydney from Vancouver. boiler furnishes power for the electri-cal plant that will light the vessel. The Lawson's houses are constructed of steel plates. One is fitted up as the and had lived in this city for about galley, a second is an engine room, another is the main cabin, while the wheel house is the fourth. The crew's quarters are in the forecastle. Her steam equipment makes it possible for the seven-master to get along with a crew of 16 men all told, which is about half of what would otherwise have

More than 2,000 tons of steel have gone into the construction of this big vessel. Her hull is "joggle plated," like a steamship's, and she has a cellular double bottom four feet deep, which is not only a protection but can be used in carrying something like a thousand tons of water ballast. The double bottom has four companyments. double bottom has four compartments, and the schooner would it is expected, maintain floatation if two of them were broken into.

The Lawson's keel was laid the first of last December, and she will be ready for sea just about nine months from then. Her finished cost will be $250,000. When in commission she will be used in the coal carrying trade between northern and southern ports and may "round the Hern" to the Philippine Islands after she is well broken in.

No! Washed thin! That's so when common soap is used.

Ask for the Octagon Bar. She will be taken at once to the Fore River dock for fitting out and will six weeks. Her first trip will be out of Boston, and is likely to take her to Philadelphia on her way south.

County Master H. F. McLeod presided and on behalf of the York count Orangemen welcomed the visitors. Mr. McLeod referred to the mistaken idea that there was friction between the Orangemen and other religious bodies, and said he would take the responsibility of saying that it was false. The Orange order was based on unity, charity and equality. That being so, it was as well to retain the old traditions in order that the Orangemen of today would be stimulated to lofty attainments. There was no bigotry. That wherever the Anglo-Saxon penetrates there will be found a branch of Grand Master Thomas was the next speaker. It was a pleasure to see such ibly, and one he thoroughly appreciated. Row Over Right to Sweep the Church -Thirty-four Greks Sentenced from One Week to Nine Months.

JERUSALEM, July 10 .- A sensational trial here, the result of the clash between the Greek and Latin monks in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, surmounting Christ's tomb, in November last, has resulted in the sentence ing of 34 Greeks, including 12 priests, to terms of imprisonment ranging from a week to nine months. The most interesting point which developed after the disturbance was the fact now generally known that Germany and Italy, in supporting the claims of their wounded monks, obtained an irade from the sultan recognizing their right to protect their respective sub-jects, and that thus France's claim should cure any one, and those who to an exclusive protectorate over all the Catholic clergy in the east is no longer admitted.

The dispute between the Francisand Greeks arose on the questions as to which community had the right to sweep the church. Troops had been posted in the vicinity for several days previous to the outbreak in order to prevent the anticipated collision, but they were suddenly outnumbered and overpowered by the contending parties. There were several casualties on both sides.

AN INTERESTING CASE. J. R. Currie, principal of the Currie Business College, has begun an action against the Street Railway for $3,000. This is a claim for services rendered in connection with the suit of the late Dr. J. H. Morrison against the company. It is understood that Mr. Curre rie presented a bill for 31,500, but that the company refused to pay it, although they admitted that Mr. Curre had rendered services of value, it was had rendered services of value, it was had rendered services of value, it was any liability. Mr. Currie then, through his solicitor, W. B. Wallace, began legal proceed. ings, serving a writ for $3,000. The action will, it is said, be tried at the next circuit court.—Globe.
