

VII.

JULY hath XXXI Days.

1795.

SUMMER.

SEE June confests the season's reign,
And Julius following on the plain,
While August glowing bears her train,
In one hand golden ears of corn;
Poppies, and lavender are borne,
And in her other arm is held

A plate with pamp'ring plenty fill'd.
The months o'er whom she does preside
Have crown'd her with their choicest pride:
Carnations, and sweet eglantine,
And amarints, and jessamine.
