Missionary.

From the Wesleyan Missionary Notices, June 25th. India.

The following letter from the Rev Joseph Morris contains interesting particulars of Missionary labours among the dense heathen population of the city of Mysore, and its vicinity. and especially deserves attention as describing the excitement awakened upon the subject of and their convertion to the faith of Christ. Mr. Hardey and myself returned from the District-Meeting towards the end of January, and I am glad to say that we have since then been joined by Mr. Pordige, who reached this station safely a few weeks ago. He has been sent to us for this year chiefly because of the greater facilities he will have here for acquiring knowledge of the Canarese. To this work he has diligently set himself, and also takes our place on two days of the week in the English Institution, and thereby enables us to give those days to the Canarese preaching, in addition to the time we had before allotted to this part of our work.

STREET-PREACHING.

Street preaching brings us into direct contact with almost all classes of Hindu society; and while the ocmpany of the Preachers in India is so small, this must be our principle means of making known the "story of the cross" among the masses. The city of Mysore has been, in former years, tayoured with the labours of earnest and efficient Preachers of the Gospel in Canarese; but owing to the relinquishment of the station by the London Missionary Society, and its parhal abandonment by our own, even when we from this work. We are determined, therefore, ing villages and towns as far as we can. And

We have obtained these details from Sir Geo. Simpson, who is anxious that puplicity should be eiven to the admirable arrangements of the vaious lines of railroad and steamboat by which he has been enabled to perform the quickest trip

We learn also that there was nothing of special interest taking place in the Red River or other settlements of the Hudson Bay Company's territory. The condition of the people was prosperous, and the war of extermination-extermination for the red men-raging between the Americans and Indians South of the boundary line, had neither spread to, nor did it threaten to spread to, the Northern side of it. Whatever may be thought of the monopoly of the Hudson was brought in and passed, the division being 37 Bay Company in other respects, the philanthropist must certainly regard it as a most beneficial arrangement for the native tribes, once masters of the country .- Montreal Herald.
