What Shall Be Done With Leisure?

Yes, the word rest is delicious; the thought of rest is sweet : the vision of rest is enchanting; the hope of rest al leviates and consoles. It is not idleness for idleness is ignoble. It is not alterna tion of work, for alternation of work i only variety of unrest. Rest is perfec reaction from energy; is a state of com-plete, happy reception. Such a blissfucondition is felt rarely, and is of brie duration. To the most it is so unknow and so hopeless, that they associate i with heaven, and dream of it only when life is done. They who can rest are th happiest; for rest is the perfect recrea tor. It is inaction, and it is joy-a con plete experience of both. But rest ca not be commanded, and, in default of it what is there but amusement, that di verts without misleading, dissipate without corrupting, entertains withou exhausting; that is pleasure without wish to become members. nervous waste, and delight without delirium : a cup that cheers, but does not inebriate? Its office is to recreate by indirection, to fill leisure with innocent gayety. That is the best amusement that most thoroughly amuses; not that instructs, elevatess, purifies, but enter tains, making, while it does so, the least possible draught on the mind, feelings or will. It has no philosophy; it has no spread a genial happiness over the sys- saloon, whose grimy walls are so covered tem. It is not in its nature to hurt any with cobwebs as to give them the appearliving creature; it is against its being to be savage, cruel, or harsh towards a livery. The buds had swollen to cup-like forms, but the greenedge of the leaf had not appeared. I used a brass pump. The application was sufficient to deeply darken the bark, remaining for several weeks. My object was to destroy the germinal quality of insect eggs, cleanse the bark, and possibly destroy fungous spores incidental to the trees, which may have just lodged. I know the immediate value of potash applied in a soluble form, and the annual need. The ashes of a plum showed 75 per cent, of potash. This season, by accurate observation, my plums and apples where the potash was so used on the buc, are pronounced one—eighth larger than previous years. I am perplexed as to the cause of this larger fruit. Each cup-like bud was capable of holding one or more drops of the showered pe tash, and the hundreds of thousands of buds would hold an appreciable quantity, and timely developed larger leaves and the rest of them, was awak and tool to take and tool to take a hand as he was always lucky. W. C. ARCHIBALD, Earnscliffe Gardens, Wolfville, N. S. direct the attention of our experiment straight up to where she sat sewing by a stations to the excellent results which he potash in this way. The only use we have made of it has been in a weaker solution applied to the trunks and branches of trees to destroy the oyster shell bark louse. Most experimenters have been endeavoring to destroy, the option of the opt being recommended for scab and mildew, applied before the foliage appears, and the Bordeaux mixture after. Possibly a strong solution of caustic potash will be as serviceable, for we can only account for the clean, large fruit resulting, except by the destruction of minute fungi and insects which weaken the growth of the trees, and bring about the production of small sized fruit.

The Montreal Witness.

The Montreal Witness, which is to move into its own building next spring, will be by far the best equipped news-paper in a mechanical point of view in Canada. Its immense Hoe quadruple machine will be capable of turning out 60,000 eight-page or 30,000 twelve or sixteen-page papers an hour, printed complete on both sides, cut, pasted, and counted in piles of fifty. This will be one third faster than any other press in Canada. In addition, its matter will be set on the Mergenthaler Linotype, which gives a new, clean face of type every issue, and its form will be compact and beautiful. The Witness, though old and reliable, is up to the front in respect of will be sent free to any of our readers.
