Because of You.

Sweet have I known the blossom of the morning
Tenderly tilted to their hearts of dew; But now my flowers have faded a fainter fragrance.
Because of you.
Long have I worshipped in my soul's exulting high visions of the subtle and the true—Now all my aims and all my prayers are pure.
Because of you.
Woe have I seen the smile of life's labor;
To all his passions found some answering chance.
But now my life has learned a subtle meaning.
Because of you.
In the past I have indulged in vain and selfish ambitions at pleasure as the children of the world.

Their Step-Sister's
Surprise.

Ruth sat alone on the veranda, stranded by the merry withdrawing tide of young folk who were going out at the gate with cushions,shawls and cars.
There were six of them—each of her tall, gorgeously colored young step-sisters had her beau. They were bound for the river, where boats were waiting. Ruth with a long sigh, could think of nothing sadder than to be able to spend an hour on the river in the light of the rising moon, accompanied by somebody who was sufficiently happy just in the privilege of making love to her.
The young folks' gay laughter came back to her from the still street. She leaned against the pillar, holding her hands and trying to imagine what she had never experienced. Behind her was the cheerful disorder of a hasty exodus, chairs out of their places, newspapers scattered, the rugs kicked up.

HOW ONE MAN PROFITED BY EX-PLOITING CITY LIFE FOR THAT
OF THE FARM.
The fact that many men on salaries in our cities could do much better and have a royal living has been argued time and time again.
The Farmers' Advocate of London, Ont., quite recently offered a prize for the best article along this line. William Blain, of Simcoe county, won it, and the article is worthy of reproduction. Here are his own words of telling experience: In the summer of 1901 I decided to engage in farming. My early boyhood had been passed on a farm, but I had been absent from it for ten years. I was working for a salary in town, and my capital consisted of less than $1,000, besides household furniture. My family consisted of wife and two small children, so that all outside work and some inside depended on my own exertions.
We wished to be close to town and purchased a farm of fifty acres within a mile of town, paying three thousand dollars for same. This meant I had to borrow about $400 in order to make a start—quite a handicap, along with our inexperience—but hope beats high in youthful hearts.
The farm was cleared, except for a few acres of bush at the back, adjoining which was about nine acres of permanent pasture land, which was very rough, and contained logs, stumps and berry bushes. The buildings were a good brick house, heated by fireplace, a barn and a silo, all in good repair.

WENT SLOW ON IMPLEMENTS.

I invested in only necessary implements—mower, rake, plow, disk, scuffle, harrow and smaller articles, besides necessary vehicles. I hired a good drill and pay for binder by the acre. On my farm it would not pay to invest in either for a few days work each year, and they would require extensive buildings to store them.
I divided the farm into six fields, and try to follow a rotation, as follows: First year, hay; second year, hay; third year, pasture; fourth year, oats; fifth year, roots, potatoes, corn; sixth year, oats, seeded down to red and alkali clover and timothy. My main crops hay, oats, potatoes and strawberries; other crops, corn, roots and garden vegetables.

I grow only the best varieties of oats and potatoes, and I am able to dispose of my oats for seed at a good advance on market prices. Last year I received 75 cents per bushel for all sold. My land is a sandy loam and is rather low, so that I have never tried to grow wheat or barley.
In potatoes I try to have the bulk of crop of early varieties, which find a ready sale, at good prices, for shipping to northern markets in August and September.

STRAWBERRIES BRING GOOD RETURNS.

I soon found that my ground was adapted to growing strawberries, and as there is an unlimited market, at good prices, I like to have an acre, which yields from $300 to $400 per season. I set out a half acre each year, and thus take two crops of before plowing down. The old batch generally comes in a few days earlier, and thus lengthens the season. In 1905 I sold 1400 boxes of one-sixth of an acre at an average of seven and one-half cents per box. Last year we averaged 9 cents per box. The strawberry crop requires a little more than the usual amount of manure, and I am able to supply this by growing a few acres of potatoes, and using the tops and leaves as a top-dressing. I also use a good amount of stable manure, and a few loads of lime, which I spread on the ground in the fall.
I have found that the best variety to grow is the "Hovey's Wonder." I have also tried the "Glen Holliston" and the "Hovey's Prolific," but they do not seem to do so well as the "Hovey's Wonder." I have also tried the "Hovey's Prolific" and the "Hovey's Wonder," but they do not seem to do so well as the "Hovey's Wonder."

Mr. Blain's Ruth gasped in delight, and her face bloomed in rapture. "Why, I've just been dying to go—now, I can't! It's so good to you to ask me."
"I'm sure to be so in my rich voice," he talked to her; he told her amusing stories, and Ruth forgot that she was timid and forlorn, and laughed and laughed in him until it seemed that she had "told him every secret of her poor little life." It is happy that you have had to neglect your music when you love it so, he said, "but I am sure that with a few good lessons you could pick it up again easily."
"I suppose so," Ruth sighed, "but you see I haven't the time."
"Take time. Give your housekeeping over to your sisters." As she started at him in surprise he leaped forward, resting upon the arms of her chair, and said, "Ruth, tell me, if you could, wouldn't you contemplate yourself by marrying somebody who had money and would be good to you? Wouldn't you dear?"
"But—nobody—would!"
"Yes, somebody would—does I, Ruth, I must seem like a pretty old fellow to you, but I believe I could make you happy. I want you, dear, and my sister is willing. We have talked it over together. If you will marry me I can promise that you shall never regret it." An hour later, Ruth somewhat revered from the excitement of receiving and accepting her first proposal, she sat up in her room an unusual length.

You Can Afford to use 40c. Tea Just as Well as 30c. Tea if You Use 40c. Red Rose

A pound of 40c. Red Rose goes further than any 30c. or 35c. tea and it is distinctly superior in quality.
30c. and 35c. Red Rose Teas are good teas, so good that very many people say they want nothing better. But, if they would once try a package of the Red Rose Tea, they would find nothing else in future.

Just think, five cups of 40c. Red Rose Tea will only cost 1c. One lb. makes over 200 cups. Not a question of affording.

Spring Reminders
of Rheumatism

Raw, Damp Weather Starts the Pain,
But the Trouble Lies in the Blood.

Changeable spring weather, often raw, cold and damp, is pretty sure to bring a return of rheumatism to people who suffer from rheumatism. But it must be borne in mind that it is not the weather that causes rheumatism, the trouble is rooted in the blood—the damp changeable weather merely starts the aches and often almost unbearable pains going. The trouble must be reached through the blood, and this is a medical truth.
Every rheumatic sufferer should read this. Linalin, outward applications and so-called electric appliances, never did, and never can, cure rheumatism. The sufferer if only waiting valuable time and money with this sort of treatment, and all the time the trouble is becoming more firmly rooted—and harder to cure. There is just one sure way to cure rheumatism —Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They act directly on the inner system, bringing back the blood to its normal condition. They purify and strengthen it and so root out the cause of rheumatism. Mr. John Fin-more, Maryville, N. E., says:—
"I was laid up with rheumatic fever for a year, and for eight months of that time I could not get on my feet. My trouble is becoming more firmly root-
