ROME, Monday—The Observator Romano, the organ of the Vatican, in an editorial, concerning the recent Pan-Anglican Congress in London, says: Religion without a legitimate hierarchy, although calling itself Christian, is the religion only of this world, as the questions discussed by the Pan-Anglican congress show. Throughout the centuries all religions that have arisen without the seal of the real divine personality are similar to that discussed at the Pan-Anglican congress. All of them aim at securing the largest amount of joy in this life without caring for the other world.

At the end of a strong attack, the Observator says, that Catholic Rome tomorrow will celebrate with veneration the anniversary of the death of St. Peter at his tomb in the curch which is a miracle of art, and this veneration will answer better than any thing else the superstitious poverty of the Pan-Anglican Congress. From the attitude of the Observator Romano it is supposed that Pope Pius will deal with the recent Congress held in London in his forthcoming encyclical.
